May Appeal To Kennedy For Writ

NEW YORK (AP) — Growing discontent over a strike by seafaring unions led today to a New York Port work stoppage by longshoremen and a threat by one of their top officials to ask President Kennedy for a strike-ending injunction

Tony Anastasio, longshore union boss on the big Brooklyn waterfront, said if other officials of his union didn't request such an injunction from Kennedy he would Anastasio is a union vice president.

William A. Bradley is president of the International Longshoremen's Association and Thomas Gleason is chief organizer. Their reaction was not immediately available.

Stoppage Ordered

However, the union already had ordered members to quit work today, apparently in an effort to force the striking maritime unions to clarify their demands in a situation which has led to great confusion.

The action caused a virtual paralysis in operations of the vast New York harbor, already hard hit as a result of the sweeping national strike.

The walkout of longshoremen who load and unload ships and handle baggage, hit the port at a crucial time. The nation's two largest passenger liners — the United States and the Constitution—arrive from Europe today.

In Middle of Dispute

Thomas Gleason, general organizer of the ILA, said the dock workers are "in the middle" in the sea dispute.

"Some of the (striking) ship officers are sitting in their ships, eating well and getting paid, and we have about 6,000 longshoremen out of work," Gleason said.

Many longshoremen have refused to cross maritime picket lines

Negotiations between unions and management are at a virtual standstill. A policy meeting of leading industry representatives was held Tuesday night at an undisclosed location.

The creeping paralysis of the maritime dispute has spread around the nation and has immobilized more than 100 liners, freighters and tankers. Numerous industrial concerns ashore also are stilled.

U. S. Spy Charges Result in Problem For Hammarskjold

Note Alleges Czech Major Secret Agent

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.(AP) —The United States told communist Czechoslovakia today it has revoked the diplomatic status of Miroslav Nacvalac, Czech diplomat accused of spying. It said he now is subject to deportation as an alien illegally in the United States.

The note declared that under the laws and regulations of the United States Nacvalac "may elect either to depart voluntarily, or in lieu of such voluntary departure, be removed."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was caught today in a cross-fire from the United States and Communist Czechoslovakia over U.S. spy charges against Czech diplomat Miroslav Nacvalac

The United States sent Hammarskjold a note charging that Nacvalac, handsome 39-year-old counselor at the Czech U.N mission, is Prague's chief intelligence agent in America and that he paid an instructor at the U.S. Army Language School in Monterey, Calif., $1,700 for information.

The United States said it had pictures to prove it. The language instructor, a naturalized American citizen born in Czechoslovakia, confirmed the U.S. account.

Demand Renewed

The U.S. note declared anew that the Czech government should recall Nacvalac at once and denied that the demand for his departure violated the agreement between the United States and the United Nations giving special rights to diplomats accredited to the United Nations.

Nacvalac denied all the U.S. charges. His delegation indicated it would press Hammarskjold to rule that U.S. action against the counselor violated both the U N charter and the U.S.-U.N. agreement.

The U S. note said Nacvalac was known to U.S. authorities as the "chief of Czechoslovak civilian intelligence operations in the

Rural Hilbert Man Dies After Car Accident

Injuries in Crash At Midnight Prove Fatal to Edgar Hurley

CHILTON — Edgar Hurley, 68, route 1, Hilbert, died at 9.15 a. m. today from injuries he suffered in a two-car collision shortly before midnight Tuesday on State 55 about four miles north of Stockbridge.

Erwin Popp, age unknown, route 1, Hilbert, also in the Hurley car, is in critical condition at Calumet Memorial Hospital.

According to County Patrolman Fred Martens, the Hurley car was struck broadside by a car driven by Daniel G. Van Linn, 50, 112 E. Eighth St., Kaukauna, who told police the car entered the highway from a town road without stopping. Van Linn was uninjured.

Tossed from Car

Both Hurley and Popp were thrown from the car and Hurley was pinned beneath the vehicle. Martens said Hurley was freed from under the car by two unidentified passers-by. Martens said he was unable to discover who was driving the Hurley car.

Hurley's death was the eighth in Calumet County this year. County Coroner Leroy Hughes is investigating the accident.

Japan, U. S. Set Up Committee

Joint Economic Group Planned at Cabinet Level

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Japan have agreed to establish a joint economic committee at Cabinet level, U.S. officials disclosed today.

The agreement appeared to be a major outgrowth of talks between Japan's Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda and President Kennedy which entered their second day today.

The high level committee would function in much the same manner as the present U.S.-Canada Trade Committee which meets annually on trade problems.

Trade Partnership

American officials considered the proposed committee a symbol of the trade partnership between the United States and Japan and an answer to critics who contend that military security forms the only real tie between the two nations.

The Canadian-American group brings together the top financial

U. S. and Russia Confer but Can't Agree on Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks headed into their third day amid signs of a hassle even before the two sides get to a formal conference.

John J. McCloy, the U.S. disarmament chief, and Valerian Zorin, representing the Soviets, arranged a midmorning resumption of the talks which have shown no sign of progress since they began Monday.

Meanwhile, the top U.S. delegate at the stalled Geneva nuclear test ban talks, Arthur H Dean, was slated to return to Washington late today for consultations with President Kennedy and others

State Department press officer Lincoln White said it was an "open question" whether Dean would return to the faltering Geneva parley which has been under way since November 1958. White said the United States will continue to seek an effective test ban agreement there.

During Tuesday's 2½-hour McCloy-Zorin meeting, Zorin was reported to have given a lengthy restatement of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's disarmament views Both McCloy and Zorin declined comment after the closed session

Assembly Defeats Lobby on Patrol

State Powers Widened in Abrupt Reversal of Earlier House Vote

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Delivering a stinging defeat to the usually powerful county police and sheriff lobby, the legislature Tuesday did an abrupt about-face and gave its approval to legislation to broaden the arrest powers of the rival state traffic patrol of the state motor vehicle department.

The vote in the assembly, with a comfortable 56 to 42 margin, was a sharp reversal of an earlier defeat for the measure in the lower house and was in the form of concurrence in a measure strongly approved by the state senate a week ago.

Enactment of the controversial and long-sought broader arrest powers bill is now virtually assured. Gov Nelson will sign the measure when it reaches him, he has announced.

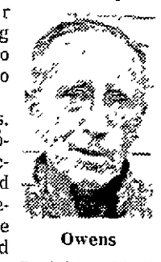

The prospective law would permit the 250 officers and men of the state constabulary, now limited strictly to traffic patrol work, to make arrests for felonies and misdemeanors observed during their road patrols Offenders would be turned over to the sheriff or police of the jurisdiction where they were apprehended.

The county police and traffic men had fought the measure bitterly and stubbornly, asserting that it was a cloak for ultimate absorption of all local police manpower into an all-powerful state

Gets 30 Days in Jail For Beating Man Who Fired Him 2 Years Ago

MADISQN (AP) — A former state employe began serving a 30-day sentence in Dane County Jail Tuesday for horsewhipping the man who fired him two years ago.

Owens

Glen Owens, 61, of Knapp, appeared in Superior Court and offered no defense to a charge of aggravated assault upon Dwight Mack, director of the motor fuel division in the state tax department. Judge Roy Proctor offered the choice of a $100 fine or the jail term. Owens was unable to pay the fine.

Owens stormed into Mack's office Tuesday and struck several blows with a 3-foot horsewhip before office workers came to the rescue and called police.

Mack did not require hospitalization.

Kennedy Receives Dog From Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has received a dog named Pushinka from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Pushinka, a white flufly pup with brownish spots, is of no particular breed. But she has a celebrated mother—Strolka, whom the Soviets put in orbit around the earth and recovered last August.

Kennedy got another gift from the Soviet leader, a model of an American whaler carved from a walrus tusk by a Russian craftsman.

Near Accord On Coalition Setup in Laos

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—The military strongman of Laos' pro-Western government announced today that virtual agreement had been reached on unifying the fighting forces of his nation's three rival factions.

"Some points remain to be discussed, but they are minor ones," said Gen. Phoumi Nosavan after a working session of key advisers to the politician princes who are holding a summit meeting in this Swiss city.

Nosavan said the three sides had agreed on most problems connected with integrating the country's armies.

This indicated that one of the most important obstacles to agreement among the three sides had been virtually overcome

But it appeared to leave unsettled the problem of administering provinces now under military control by the pro-Communist forces.

No Record Vote As Senate Backs Farm Fund Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without the formality of a record vote, senators have shouted approval of the biggest annual farm money bill in history.

The measure would provide slightly over $7 billion to carry on the wide variety of agricultural programs in the year which begins July 1.

Passed Tuesday by voice vote, the bill now goes back to the House which had voted some $115 million less, although both versions provide nearly $2 billion more than Congress supplied for the current year.

'Cross to Carry'

Technician Guilty of Helping Wife Kill Self

MADISON (AP)—A 21-year-old Air Force technician who said he told his wife she was "a cross for me to carry" and then watched her die from an overdose of drugs, was held today on a charge of aiding and abetting a suicide.

DuCharme

Robert J. DuCharme Jr., a former La Crosse resident now stationed at Truax Air Force Base here, pleaded guilty in Superior Court Tuesday to the charge of aiding and abetting a suicide. Judge Roy H. Proctor ordered a pre-sentence investigation.

DuCharme's 18-year-old wife, Kathleen, died March 27. She was the mother of two boys, aged 1 and 2. An autopsy disclosed her body contained a fatal dose of drugs

Dist Atty. William D. Byrne said that on the day of Kathleen's death, DuCharme returned to their trailer home and his wife told him she didn't feel like going to her part time job as a store clerk. An argument ensued.

DuCharme then told his wife that he didn't love her anymore and that she was a "cross for me to carry," Byrne said, and suggested that she take a bottle of "pain pills." The husband brought water to his wife and she took 80 pills while he remained at her side.

Byrne said DuCharme left the trailer when he believed his wife was dead. Then he locked the children in the trailer home with the body and returned to work. Later he telephoned police and reported his wife's death.

The airman showed no emotion in court as Byrne gave his account. He told Judge Proctor the story was true.

Aiding a suicide carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

Face Uphill Battle

Kennedy's Backers Trying to Win Support for Education Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces begin an uphill struggle today to rescue President Kennedy's school bill from the sea of controversy that has all but swamped it in the House.

Democratic leaders in the House looked to the President to do some personal pushing on the $2 5 billion measure

Kennedy and House Speaker Sam Rayburn were dealt a setback Tuesday when the Rules Committee refused to send the bill to the floor as Rayburn wanted

Instead it voted 9 to 6 to delay any action until the House Education Committee sends along another bill—the National Defense Education Act — with loans for parochial schools included.

The success of the Rules Committee in blocking action illustrated, in capsule form, the potent forces allied against the administration bill The measure calls for a three-year program of grants to the states for either public school construction or teachers' salaries, as the states desire.

The nine-man majority was composed of five Republicans, two Southern Democrats and two Northern Democrats—both Roman Catholics representing heavily Catholic districts.

Republicans in the House are nearly unanimously opposed to any school bill. The opposition of the conservative Southern Democrats is heightened by their concern that a federal education program would hasten integration in public schools. Many Catholic congressmen are under pressure from their constituents to withhold support from public school aid until they are assured parochial schools also will get some form of aid

In addition, the bill faces heavy attack once it gets to the floor from members who oppose the provisions for teachers' salaries but favor the construction program, and those who object to the formula under which poorer states will receive a greater proportion of funds than richer states

Such formidable opposition has kept the House from ever giving final approval to a general aid to education bill. Supporters of the current measure are now agreed that only vigorous action by the administration can change that pattern

House and Senate Democratic leaders met at the White House Tuesday for talks that focused on the school bill

Changed Attitude

Rep. Adam C Powell, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Education Committee, who Monday called for the administration to step up its backing, told a news conference he saw a change in the atmosphere shortly after the White House meeting.

Powell said Majority Leader John W. McCormack, D-Mass., who had shared the view of the Catholics on the Rules Committee that the parochial school issue should be acted on first, has now agreed to let the public school bill be called up first—after both have won Rules Committee approval.

Customs Officials Hold 42 Diesel Engines Scheduled for Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Customs officials are holding 42 diesel engines they said were shipped from the United States to France as military surplus, then resold to the Cuban government.

The engines, built by General Motors to power Sherman tanks, were taken off the freighter El Pridrato when it docked here Tuesday, en route to Havana from Le Havre, France.

Joseph Fortier, district customs chief, said the shipment was detained pending an investigation as to whether it violates this country's Cuban embargo.

Canadian Budget Continues in Red

Finance Minister Suggests Moves Offering Incentives To Modernization of Plants

OTTAWA (AP) — Finance Minister Donald M. Fleming has pinned his hopes for economic growth on a series of intricate financial moves whose keystone will be a bold move to push the Canadian dollar to a "substantial" discount on the exchange market.

The recovery program set out in his budget speech last night wiped out the 7½-per cent excise levy on automobiles and gave corporations new incentives to modernize their plants and step up scientific research.

Fleming, leaving all tax rates unchanged, held no immediate hope of recovery from red-ink financing He forecast a $650 million deficit, Canada's fifth in a row and a peacetime record to tal

The big news in his "high finance" budget was the decision to use the exchange fund administered by the Bank of Canada to buy U.S. dollars and thus depress the Canadian dollar's exchange value to a lower unspecified level

The goal is to give Canadian producers a price advantage against foreign competition at home and abroad and help them sell "many hundreds of millions of dollars worth of additional Canadian goods and services "

If it achieves its aim there would be a substantial drop in Canada's big international balance of payments deficit — $1,270,000,000 last year. Fleming said the ultimate objective is to bring this "much closer to balance "

No Suggestion

Nor was there any suggestion of how much money might have to be put into the exchange markets to depress the dollar's value. It appeared the amount could run to several hundred million dollars a year. The government now has some $1 95 billion in its reserves of gold and U S dollars.

Fleming also announced policies intended to reduce interest rates in Canada in order to promote Canadian expansion and discourage some of the heavy inflow of foreign capital that has helped cause the payments deficit.

There will be a new royal commission to study Canada's financial structure and institutions — including the Bank of Canada — and seek new means of generating Canadian savings for capital investment

Opposition Acid

Opposition comment was acid.

Liberal financial critic William Benidickson said the budget didn't live up to Fleming's "expansionist" promises.

Observers saw chances of an early election fade when Fleming announced no big personal tax cuts.

Cuts Auto Price

Removal of the auto excise tax, effective today, is estimated to cut around $140 from the price of a $3,000 car if the saving is passed on to buyers.

Among the miscellany of tax charges were several to encourage industrial research in Canada. Companies will be allowed to write these off against taxable income in one year instead of three and will be able to claim as tax-deductible expenses any payments to non-profit research organizations doing their work in Canada

Shows Gulf

Part of Fleming's 24,000-word speech showed the gulf between the government's fiscal policies and those of James E. Coyne, governor of Canada's Central bank. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's government wants to oust Coyne on grounds his views are too conservative

Fleming made clear the tax collector is going to crack down on fancy expense accounts He said tax inspectors are being instructed to subject expense accounts to "more intensive scrutiny "

Chief Should Take Own Advice About Leaving Keys in Car

DALTON, Ga (AP) — Police Chief L. L. Vining urged motorists not to leave keys in their cars, as did the driver whose car was stolen from the driveway of his home.

Officers found Vining's patrol car stuck in a ditch Tuesday and charged Dale Walston, 19, with car theft.

Tape Recorder At Hearings Brings Protest

Had Been Ordered By State Senate Committee Head

MADISON (AP) — A tape recording of committee testimony on four appointments to state posts by Gov. Gaylord Nelson touched off a sharp controversy Tuesday.

The tape recorder was ordered for the hearing of the Senate Committee on Labor, Taxation, Insurance and Banking by Chairman Alfred Laun, R-Kiel. Laun said some serious charges had been made at previous committee hearings on state appointments.

"People are a little more guarded in their questions and answers when they are put on tape," said Laun.

Protests Recorder

Not a single witness appeared to object to any of the four appointments, but Sen. Lynn Stalbaum, D-Racine, raised a protest about the presence of the tape recorder.

"I've served on committees during four sessions of the Legislature and this is the first time I've been in a position of having my own words taken down on tape," Stalbaum said. The Racine Democrat also objected to Laun's statement that the tape recorder was arranged for after consultation with committee members

Not Consulted

Stalbaum said he had not been consulted on the matter.

Another committee member, Sen. Walter G. Hollander, R-Rosendale, supported the presence of the tape recorder. He agreed with Laun that there had been some unwarranted charges made in previous confirmation hearings where no record of testimony was kept.

The appointments under consideration were:

John K Kyle of Madison as director of the Department of Securities, to succeed Edward J Samp of Madison.

Harold E Gilbert of Elkhorn as a member of the Wisconsin Real Estate Brokers Board, to succeed Julius J. Dinger of Eau Claire.

Stanley P. Hebert of Milwaukee as a member of the Public Service Commission, to succeed Martin Glaeser of Madison. If Hebert is confirmed, his would be the highest Wisconsin government position ever held by a Negro.

Bernard J. Lontkowski of Pulaski as a member of the State Banking Review Board, to succeed John Rose of Green Bay.

Eisenhower at Stage Dinner in New York City

YORK, Pa (AP) — Former President Dwight D Eisenhower was guest of honor at a stag dinner of some 300 industrial leaders of York County Tuesday night

Although Eisenhower had accepted the invitation to attend with the provision there would be no speechmaking, he did urge the industrialists to take an active interest in politics

He told the group they must 'put business sense into the business of politics or we are going to wake up some day and be sorry."

State Senate Defeats Bill To Speed Claims Settlement

MADISON (AP)— Legislation originally aimed at forcing speedy settlement of automobile accident claims by insurance companies was defeated in a 15-13 Senate vote late Tuesday

The measure sponsored by Sen Norman Sussman, D-Milwaukee, would have put a five per cent interest rate on damage claims growing out of any type of accident if the claim remained unsettled for more than 30 days

Sussman intended the legislation to cover only automobile accident claims But an amendment by Sen John Potter, R-Port Edwards, made the measure applicable to all accidents and Senate defeat followed

A bill that would have forced all contractors to pay the prevailing area wage on all state jobs failed in a 15-15 tie vote in the Senate.

The Senate then gave preliminary approval to a bill prohibiting a school district not operating its own high school district from incurring additional building debts prior to July 1962 That is the deadline set by the Legislature for all territory to be in or operating a high school district.

Sen Carl Thompson, D-Stoughton, said the measure would keep areas joining high school districts from "saddling the district with a big building debt "

Indians Want Greater Voice

National Conference Asks U. S. to Give Them Larger Role

CHICAGO, (AP)—The first national conference of American Indians has called upon the United States to give Indians a greater voice in determining government policy toward them.

Such a change would be a part of a redefinition of the responsibilities of the government in this area called for in a declaration of Indian principles.

The declaration approved Tuesday, was the product of an eight-day conference of 700 Indians representing 200 tribes from the Bering Sea to the Florida Keys and Canada and Mexico.

Conference Organized

The conference was organized by Sol Tax, a University of Chicago anthropologist, and followed a series of regional Indian conferences.

Abandonment of the so-called termination policy of the previous administration was one of the prime recommendations of the declaration.

Chaos Results

The policy was adopted by the 83rd Congress and removes the federal government from the administration of Indian affairs, returning the responsibility to the tribes. Chaos sometimes has resulted in the few cases in which this has been brought about, and Indians generally oppose the policy

Reorganization of the Bureau of Indian Affairs also is among the major recommendations The declaration calls for abolition of the bureau's area offices with the responsibilities of these offices to be turned over to reservation superintendents.

Police Get Threat On Castro's Life

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Police Tuesday received an anonymous letter saying that an organization is planning to assassinate Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro if he comes here for the Latin American economic meeting

The letter, which enclosed a two-page detail of the organization, said an attempt would also be made on the life of Argentine-born Ernesto Guevara, the leftist economic czar of the island.

Professor Says

Good Teacher Mainly A Matter of Opinion

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa (AP) —The qualities of a good teacher, like the ingredients of a dry martini or a cup of coffee, are largely a matter of opinion

That is why, says Prof. Nicholas Fattu of Indiana University, "there appears to be no such person as the universally effective teacher."

Fattu told an education conference here that teachers are largely what the communities want them to be

Lists Goals

"Some communities value intellectual goals," he said in an address for the National Conference on Teacher Education and Professional Standards. "Others are more concerned with the more visible characteristics, such as sociability. Some are only concerned with carrying on schooling at the lowest possible cost Teachers in adjoining communities may be rated superior for diametrically opposite reasons."

He said it would be a mistake, however, to assume that teacher effectiveness is only whatever a community choses to designate it

Rather, Fattu said, it is for the teaching profession to set guidelines and standards on the basis of the best available research

Education Complex

To make these guidelines and standards effective, he said, the profession must convince the public that education is a complex thing, that the extended special preparation is indispensable, and that educators are better qualified to handle the job than any other group.

"Almost everyone feels qualified to speak confidently about educational problems because he has been to school," Fattu said "If the practice of medicine was regarded the same way, every grandmother automatically would be practicing medicine.

Nation's First Plant To Convert Sea Water Will be Opened Today

President Kennedy Calls Project More Important Than Putting Man Into Space

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP)—President Kennedy touches a button today and officially starts a project he has called more important than putting a man into space.

Kennedy's button was in Washington. The machinery was in the nation's first salt water conversion plant at the little Texas Gulf Coast town of Freeport, 50 miles south of Houston.

Johnson Speaks

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Stewart Udall, secretary of interior, were to be speakers at the plant dedication with D. F. MacGowan, director of the Interior Department's office of saline water, as master of ceremonies.

The $1 5-million plant, first of five being built by the federal government, converts sea water into water so good it is purer than the water in most municipal water systems.

The plant has 12 evaporators that heat the sea water to about 250 degrees The steam, when condensed, makes the fresh water.

$1 A 1,000

Water produced at the plant will cost about $1 for each 1,000 gallons If the plant turns out as well as government officials expect, it may be the pilot model for other plants that would convert the earth's deserts into plush gardens.

That's why Kennedy called the conversion project more important to more people than putting a man in space.

Water from the plant will be used by the city of Freeport and by the Dow Chemical Co.

The Navy has been converting sea water for years on ships, but even aboard the nuclear submarines the cost is about $5 or $10 for each 1,000 gallons.

Record Enrollment Predicted for UW Summer Sessions

MADISON (AP)—University of Wisconsin officials looked at registrations Tuesday and predicted that the enrollment in the current summer session will set a record.

By noon, a total of 8,336 students had enrolled—12 per cent above the total on the corresponding day last year.

Officials said late registrations and students who will enroll for the July four-week general session and eight special sessions are certain to push enrollment over the 8,474 record of the 1949 summer total.

Berlin May Produce 1961 World Crisis

Writer Gives Background Which Produced Situation in Germany

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is an ABC on how East and West got tangled in the Berlin net which may drag the world into crisis before 1961 ends.

The central question: Will Russia try to grab off Berlin by shutting down the routes over which the West sends supplies and people to the city?

The United States, Britain and Russia—during and immediately after World War II—agreed:

1. To divide Germany into four zones — France was included—with each of the Big Four occupying one zone.

The Russian zone naturally was in the East since it was nearest Russia. And Berlin, since it is in Eastern Germany, was in the Russian zone.

2. To treat Berlin as a special area, with each of the Big Four allowed to have troops there.

The city was to be run by the four powers' military commanders. Each was to serve in rotation as chief commander.

All Western people and supplies bound for Berlin—since it was in the Russian zone, now known as Communist East Germany—had to move through that zone.

In light of what follows these two questions are pertinent:

Any Agreement?

Was there any agreement with the Russians on specific access routes to Berlin? Did the Russians agree to keep them open?

In 1945 former Soviet Premier Stalin agreed with former President Harry Truman that the allies would have free access. And the State Department in 1958 said specific routes were agreed to.

Things went fine but not for long. Real trouble began in 1946 when Communists were overwhelmingly defeated in Berlin's first free elections in 14 years.

Vetoed Education

The Russian commandant in Berlin vetoed the election of a pro-Western mayor. More vetoes followed.

In 1947 the Big Four sat down to work out a German peace treaty. The result· zero.

So the United States, Britain, France and some other West European countries called for setting up a West German federation.

Soviets Quit

The Soviets, protesting, quit the Allied Control Council in Berlin. In 1948, contrary to his agreement with Truman, Stalin shut off Berlin from the west by closing down all the access routes. rail, road, water, air.

Truman ordered an airlift to supply the city. This, after almost a year, broke the blockade.

That same year, 1949, the new states of West Germany and Communist East Germany were founded, with the Soviets agreeing the Western allies would have at least the same access routes to Berlin as before the blockade.

By this time Western Berlin, of course, was thoroughly pro-west. The Russian sector of the city, East Berlin, was under the Soviet thumb.

Establish Relations

By 1955 Russia and West Germany had established official relations for doing business.

But the West Germans and the Western allies refused to recognize the East German Communist government as legitimate because it was not based on free elections. They still keep that position to this day.

Yet, while Russia said Communist East Germany was fully sovereign, it kept in its own hands control of those access routes from the West to West Berlin.

Avoids Trouble

It was a good way to avoid trouble. No one could predict what would happen if, for instance, the Russians gave the East Germans control of those routes and the allies refused to deal with them because they were not considered legitimate.

Meanwhile, West Berlin had become a bleeding sore to the Communists. Right in the heart of the Communist world it was a Western showcase of prosperity.

It was also a handy refuge for East Germans fleeing from communism. The Russians said it was a spy center for the West.

Builds Crisis

Finally, Premier Khrushchev threatened to turn control of the supply routes to the East Germans in 1958. He built this threat toward a crisis.

In 1959 President Dwight D. Eisenhower met with him and cooled him down But Khrushchev still insisted, although more quietly, there had to be a settlement.

Now once again he makes the threat which has dangerous implications for these reasons:

No Permission

The West, because of the agreements mentioned here, claims it doesn't need permission to keep troops in Berlin and move supplies and people into the city. The West argues the Soviets have no right to interfere.

Khrushchev says those Western rights are outdated by history Turning control of the access routes over to the East Germans wouldn't mean anything by itself.

The East Germans couldn't by themselves attempt to keep the allies from Berlin—the West could run over them—and therefore would need Soviet support. Soviet support against a Western smash-through would mean war.

Khrushchev talks about having a conference to settle the whole thing. But he wants it settled before the end of 1961.

U.S. Driving To Get Reverse Tourism Going

Trying to Garner Money, Government Runs Into Problems

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam hopes to entertain more foreign visitors this year than last. But the big drive to encourage reverse tourism, and thus garner needed dollars, has run into problems, chiefly money, distance, language.

Government agencies and private enterprises are trying to dent these barriers. And today they they have some advice from an unsolicited source: an official of the Soviet travel agency Intourist, in New York to see about setting up direct Moscow-New York air service.

He says Russian visitors would increase if the United States would advertise there, would end visa red tape, and cut prices. Last year only 1,000 Soviet tourists visited the United States while about 15,000 American tourists went to the Soviet Union.

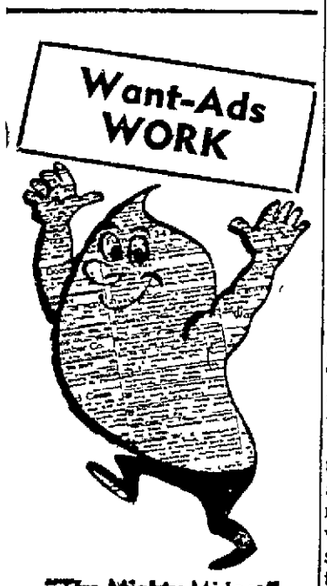

Washington officially hopes for an over-all influx of early 500,000 pleasure and business visitors from overseas, plus 400,000 from Latin America, and an estimated five million Canadians to spend more than 48 hours in the United States. Travel from South America is expected to top that from the United States for the first time. And Japanese visitors may come in volume because of eased currency restrictions.

To beat the cost problem, various economy packages are being featured, such as $99 excursion rate bus tickets good for 99 days.

To tackle the difficulties from the great distances to be covered here are such package tours as one covering 20 leading cities. Prices range from $40 for a quick shopping tour of Miami to $613 for a transcontinental air and rail tour.

On the language front, great progress is reported in an American Express poll of various agencies and private firms.

Expanded interpreter services at ports of entry are being offered by airlines, steamship lines, international travel agencies, and Travelers' Aid.

How to Beef Up NATO Has Puzzled U. S. for Many Years

Formulas, Suggestions Went By the Boards, None Helped Much

BY WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
Chicago Daily News Service

LONDON—For years Americans have been pondering the problem of what can the United States do to make the North Atlantic Treaty Organization more effective?

All kinds of formulas have been concocted by the experts.

We have offered "more consultation" with our European allies within the North Atlantic Council, to give the organization more political content.

We have offered NATO various kinds of nuclear weapons (with the nuclear warheads remaining under our effective control) in an effort to make its so-called "military posture" more convincing to the Russians.

At one time we seriously discussed making it the medium by which the 15 NATO members would funnel economic and technical help to the backward nations of Africa and the Far East. This was designed to give it a "reason for being" at a time when the Russian threat of overt aggression against non-Communist Europe seemed to be fading.

Expand Area of Interest

Now we are seriously discussing the advisability of expanding NATO's area of interest to include areas far away from Europe where some of the major NATO powers and some of NATO's major enemies have clashing interests.

Many of these suggestions have been dropped or watered-down and none of them has really amounted to much.

Perhaps the most important thing about them is that they have been put forward in an attempt to keep NATO alive.

Some of NATO's 15 members—though maybe not all of them—seem to be aware of the fact that NATO must be kept alive if free Europe—Northwest Europe, Western and Southern Europe are to be protected against Communist aggression.

American Reprisals

This they believe is so because it is the only medium through which the United States, the only power in the Western alliance today capable of restraining Russia, remains allied to most of the medium and small fry of Free Europe.

With the guarantee of immediate American reprisals against an act of aggression there is generally admitted to be little or no chance that Russia will attack anybody beyond the Iron curtain.

The minute that guarantee ceased to exist the danger would once more arise.

To a large extent the European members of NATO have all failed to meet their commitments to the organization.

But this has happened only when the failure to meet those commitments has not threatened to destroy the alliance.

France's Lonely Way

A possible exception has been the case of France which, since the beginning of the Algerian war in 1954, has often behaved as though it did not belong to the alliance.

But its shortcomings have been permitted by the United States because there was no immediate threat of Russian attack and because American national interests demand that the French section of the continent should be defended and used for the defense of Western Europe in general.

If France were actually threatened with the collapse of NATO, even President Charles de Gaulle might change his tune.

How, Americans are entitled to ask, should the United States exploit the general feeling in Europe that American protection is absolutely vital?

Play Their Parts

It should be possible, in this situation, to make every member of NATO play its full part in providing money, manpower and facilities for the alliance.

It is a complex problem and nobody could hope to have all the answers. But here are some ideas that occur to anybody who has followed NATO closely since the alliance treaty was signed April 4, 1949, and since Gen. Dwight Eisenhower became supreme commander early in 1951.

NATO should be recognized as a defensive military alliance and effort should be concentrated on making it effective from a military point of view. Politics and economics should be given purely supplementary attention when they are involved in military planning.

There should be a thoroughgoing review of the military requirements of NATO in the light of conditions prevailing in 1961.

These facts and figures should be made public. So should the actual performance of every members of the alliance. The plans should be reasonable but they should be made firm.

If, for example, it is decided that two years conscription is not required, then the fact should be announced. If two years conscription is required for adequate training, then members should be told — by the United States—to increase their training periods to the level originally demanded by Gen. Eisenhower 10 years ago.

Atomic Weapons

If tactical atomic weapons are really needed, then NATO's European members should be required to provide for their use. If strategic nuclear weapons—hydrogen weapons — are sufficient, then we should drop our demand to have NATO equipped with tactical atomic weapons.

In the past the United States has repeatedly changed its mind about what it thinks is necessary Consequently any requests it makes are treated with reserve, sometimes with disdain.

Efforts must be continued to bring France back into the organization as a fully co-operating member making a contribution commensurate with her importance and the amount of protection she receives from the United States as a member of the alliance.

France's new relationship with NATO must obviously be based on American recognition of her as an equal of Britain and the United States in the Western Big Three.

Undoubtedly it must also involve recognition of her right to be a nuclear power.

President Kennedy's remarks in his report to the nation June 6 indicate that he has decided to "do something about France" and has already started the operation in a big way.

On the negative side it might be better not to keep repeating that the United States "will not withdraw its forces from Europe as long as they are required."

In the final analysis the greatest American contribution to NATO is bound to be the nuclear deterrent.

Provide Own Soldiers

The European members of NATO—primarily West Germany, France and Britain—cannot expect the United States to maintain sizable forces of troops in Europe forever. They must provide the soldiers themselves, with no more than a modest number of Americans to back them up.

It is different as far as sailors and rocketeers are concerned. Only the United States can afford and produce the ships required for modern warfare—notably Polaris submarines and supercarriers. So they have to provide the personnel. Likewise only the United States can afford more than a token force of missiles, hydrogen warheads and the men to handle them.

Fewer American promises might cause NATO's allies to ponder the possible consequences to themselves unless they continue to give NATO the support it deserves.

Pills, Developments Make Medical News

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New pills for diarrhea, brain radios, and ant buttons figure in the medical news:

Friendly Germs

Pills containing billions of dried but still-living bacteria look promising for treating diarrhea caused by virus infections or by antibiotics.

The pills supply new colonies of, Lactobacillus acidophilus, a friendly germ normally existing in the human intestine. Through competition, they help keep down the numbers of other germs which cause diarrhea, knock down the population of Lactobaccili. The pills are designed to restore the balance, two Chicago physicians report.

Brain Radios

A tiny radio transmitter is successfully broadcasting the brain waves of a cat to a recorder 100 feet away.

Placed under the skin of the animal's head, the thumbnail-sized radio permits free, normal movements, with no interference or stress from electrodes planted in the head with their wires dangling off of the recorder.

Tulane University researchers who developed the device hope it will prove useful in studying reactions of human mental patients. And, they said, the transmitter could be designed to send electrical impulses into the brain to burn out selected nerve centers and thus kill severe pain of cancer or other diseases.

It could also be used to record brain waves of birds, swimming mammals, and tree-climbing animals.

Ant Buttons

Ants are attracted by the sweet taste of poisons distributed about in the form of buttons, or cups.

But so far young children and pets. Connecticut's Poison Information Center tells of five babies and young children poisoned by them in a single month, and urges parents to take precautions.

Appleton Man Sees Far East on Trip to Tokyo for Rotary Parley

Harold C. Adams Visits Points of Interest; Notes Nations' Problems

BY JOHN KELLOGG
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Camels in Cairo, elephants in India and boat bazaars in Bangkok — such were the oriental scenes emerging in conversation with Harold C. Adams, president of the First National Bank, as he recalled his just-ended trip to the far and mysterious East.

Adams

Along with making his tour Adams attended the 52nd annual International Rotary convention in Tokyo.

Adams left the United States by plane May 23 to begin his jaunt in Athens, Greece, and returned last Wednesday. After visiting Athens, which the inhabitants proudly labeled as the first center of democracy, Adams went to the oracle of Delphi.

Delphi Oracle

It was at Delphi that the god Appollo was supposed to give answers to questions through an oracle. Trouble was, the oracle's responses could usually be taken at least two ways, such as the answer given to a worried general over 2,000 years ago that said, "A great army will be destroyed tomorrow in battle." The general confidently entered into battle only to find that the great army that was destroyed was his own.

The sites of Biblical history engrossed Adams in the Holy Land. "The Biblical atmosphere is heaviest in the Garden of Gesthemane," observed Adams. "The other holy places — Golgotha, Bethlehem — are all covered with churches, and one doesn't get the same feeling as when you are standing on the actual spot in nearly its original condition. You have to use your imagination more in these places. It's still a thrill, however, to be at the spots we've all read about in the Bible But to get the feeling of its original importance, you've got to see something there besides the physical buildings."

Adams found Jerusalem a divided city between Arab and Jew, with a wall running through the center of it. This dichotomy between races and religions was made even more pronounced when in Adams' words, "My guide, wh owas not an Arab, appeared very uncomfortable about crossing the border from Lebanon to Syria, and was refused permission to guide me through Damascus." Syria is part of the United Arab Republic, which is run by Gamel Nasser.

A high point of Adams' trip came in Cairo, where he clambered onto a camel and took a ride astride its hump. Describing his sojourn by camelpower, Adams remarked, "It had more of a rocking motion than a horse. They're dangerous to get on and off of, for they get up and go down with a jerk."

Pesky street beggars were a problem in Cairo. "I finally learned that a direct refusal was meaningless," Adams stated. "The only way to get rid of them was to tell them I'd be back in the afternoon. Of course I never was."

Elephants were a traffic problem in Ceylon. "There they were —wandering around the road," Adams said, as though he were describing women drivers instead of elephants. Conditions in Ceylon were still primitive, Adams found with farmers using wooden sticks for plows.

Road conditions were even worse in India, with "water buffaloes, cows, camels, and people milling all over and the driver speeding through all that at 55-60 miles an hour."

At Benares on the Ganges river, Adams saw the center of the Hindu religion "While pilgrims ceremoniously bathed themselves in the river, townspeople would calmly do their wash and even throw the ashes of their dead into the same water." The dead are cremated in India, and Adams often saw bodies being carried on stretchers through the streets, the women wrapped in redcloth and the men in white, on their way to be cremated. Sometimes the bearers would leave the body lying in the street while they went on another errand.

In the Indian cities the streets are the center of life for many people. "The stories of constantly finding corpses lying around are no doubt exaggerations," Adams asserted, "but with those conditions it's bound to happen at some time or other."

Tremendous Bargains

The threatening presence of Red China pervaded at Hong Kong, Adams discovered. The island of Hong Kong is only a few miles off the mainland of China. The tremendous bargain prices on almost all items is the main attraction there. "You can buy Japanese cameras cheaper there than you can in Japan," noted Adams, "and have a good suit made in a day for as little as $15."

The most American city Adams saw on his tour was Manila, the capital of the Philippine Islands. "The streets were jammed with jitneys, which are jeeps converted for passenger travel." As a bank president Adams was interested in monetary conditions in the countries through which he traveled. He found that in the Philippines "the monetary controls were very tight. Each company is allowed only so many dollars to export the import."

Japanese Polite

The Japanese were "most polite and courteous" to Adams and his fellow Rotarians gathered in Tokyo for the convention. "Although it's a matter of form with them, we also detected a real interest on their part for us as persons."

On the way back to America Adams made brief stops at Wake Island and Honolulu before reaching San Francisco.

Making general observations about the peoples he had seen, the bank president commented, "There seems to be a great stirring around of people wanting to lead a better life, although there are some who are content to remain as they are. In some places, such as Damascus and in India, their main concern was just to get enough to eat. Communism and space travel interested them not as much as it does us. They want to learn how to do things for themselves, not just be given handouts. There was a great interest shown in wanting to have technical help from the United States and to export in order to broaden present markets. We also sensed a great feeling of people wanting to be identified by language and customs and be known as a nationality."

Yale Professor Tells How to Go Broke in Two Ways: Slow, Fast

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NEW YORK — Professor Robert Triffin of Yale writes with wisdom on how to go broke. Of course, it is not essential to go broke. This is most often avoidable, but some set out to do it without much thought of the aftermath.

Sokolsky

There are even those who enjoy going broke, spending their way through life until nothing is left for them but to make a touch.

So the learned professor does an essay on the subject with apt applications to what has happened and is happening to the American dollar because of the improvident spending of our money. Professor Triffin says:

"There are two ways to be broke: a slow one and a fast one. The slow way is to go on, year after year, spending more money than you earn. But if you are rich to begin with, you won't go broke very fast that way. You will pay for your overspending by depleting your bank balance and other assets and by getting loans from people who trust your capacity to repay them later.

"A much faster way to go broke is to finance too much of your overspending by short-term borrowing. Even if you stop overspending, you may then still run into serious trouble if your IOU's are suddenly presented to you for repayment at a time when your bank balance has fallen too low to cover them. If you still have other, longer-term assets in sufficient amount, you will remain perfectly solvent, but you will be confronted, nevertheless, with what is called a liquidity crisis."

The term, "liquidity crisis," might be translated into the simple word, tight. Many of us have been tight, or to put it another way, short of cash. When a nation gets to be short of cash, it can, of course, print more paper money. It can go on printing money until its money is worthless.

Professor Trifflin makes the point:

"We have, over the past decade, spent, lent, and given away about $20 billion more than we earned and covered the difference by cash payments in gold ($6 billion) and also by short-term IOU's ($14 billion), which foreign central banks, private banks, and individuals were, until recently, quite glad to invest in, since the dollar was regarded as safer than any other currency, and even, for the time being, as safe as gold itself."

Dollar Goes Down

It was, of course, too much to give away; so the dollar depreciated in value. We were not conscious of this in the United States because we did not go hungry here. The country was rich. The people were well off. We have a high standard of living. Nevertheless, economics walked its harsh way without regard to human enthusiasms and the result was that our gold supply began to disappear. As a short-cut solution some bankers proposed that we withdraw the small gold protection that the American dollar has — a ridiculous proposal which would not have been made by those great men of Wall street who rejected populism and free silver and other attempts to cheapen the American dollar.

Those who believe in cheap money suffer from the aberration that the more money you have the richer you are. This is only true if the money has value If, for instance, a currency stands at, let us say, 288 to the dollar, it means that a fellow who has $100's worth of it has 28 800 of that currency. Looking at it, 28,800 is more than 100 but is it worth more?

I can remember when $25 a week was very good pay for a secretary who could take stenography, spell, add a column of figures, and say "good morning," politely A girl who can do all that today might command $100 or more a week, but is she getting more? The liklihood, adding taxes, social security, and the high cost of living is that she is getting less. The same is true of all wage earners; their nominal wages go up but it is in money that is worth less.

Money is nothing to fool about and politicians have a way of covering up errors by doing the wrong thing grandiloquently. But it is our money and we need to give it watchful attention. Money is the business of Congress and Congress has not been too keen on resuming its responsibility to rest on the American dollar.

Negroes Attempt to Stop Panic Selling by Whites

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Panic selling by white persons in an integrated section of the Lake View community has led to a campaign by Negro residents to keep the area from becoming predominantly Negro.

One of the first Negroes to move into the area, Lincoln Lynch, said the campaign was designed to stop panic selling and to alert Negroes that if they continue to buy in the neighborhood they run the risk of creating a segregated situation.

Lynch said Negroes are being urged not to buy homes in the section so the community can be stabilized at its present ratio of about eight white residents to each Negro.

He said about 40 white families in the community of 150 to 200 residents have offered their homes for sale because of the increase in Negro population. The homes cost from $17,000 to $25,000.

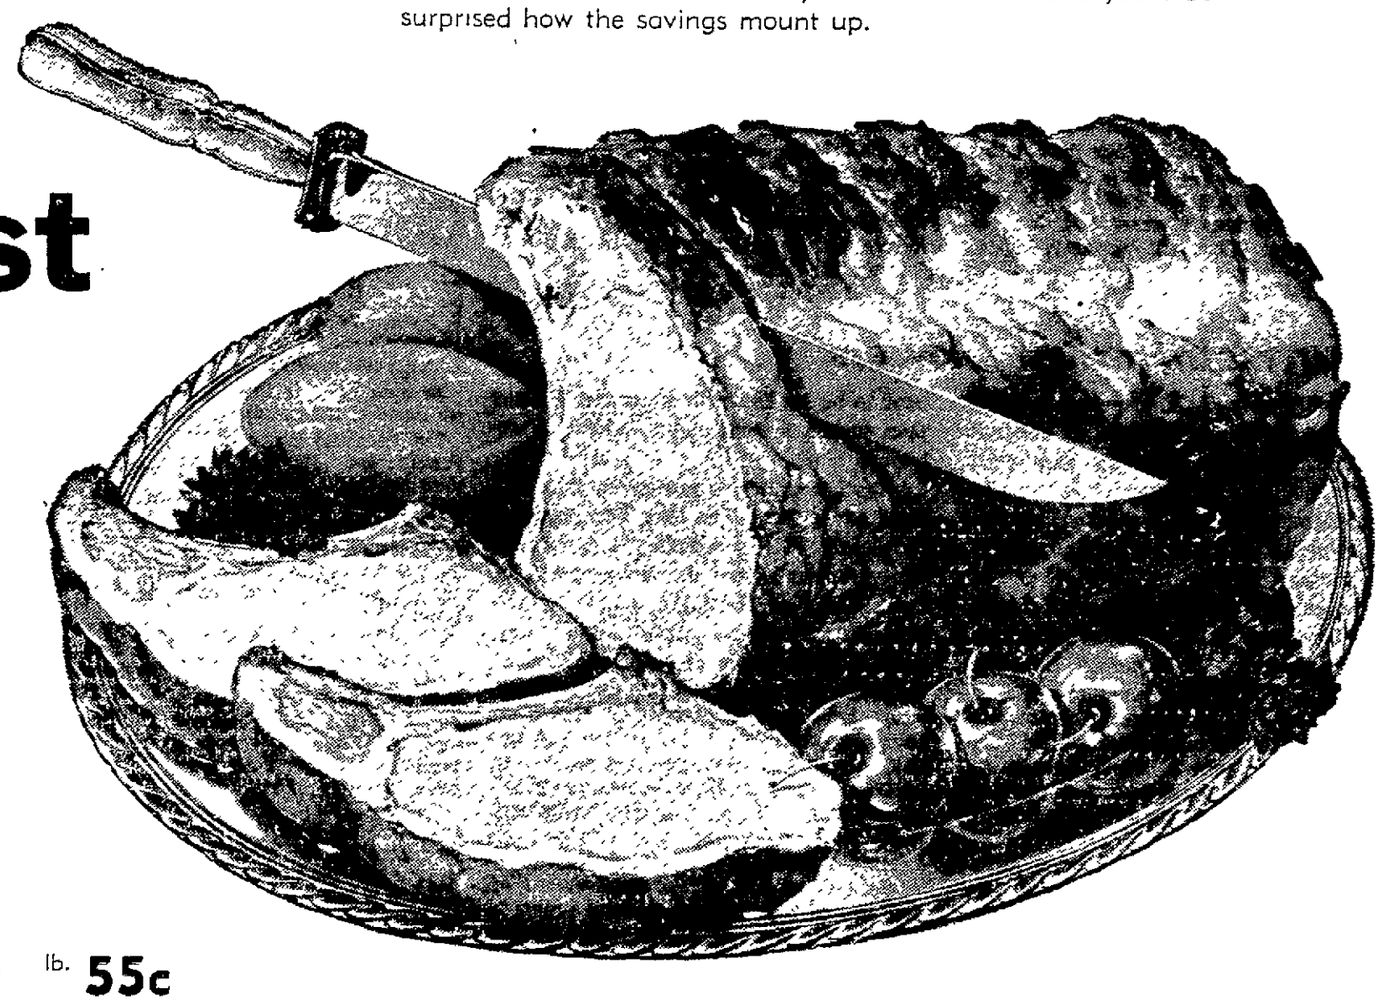

Meanwhile, at Louisville, Ky., about 300 white persons cat-calling and throwing rocks greeted Negro anti-segregation demonstrators at a private, segregated park.

Four or five white persons were arrested after the incident in front of Fontaine Ferry Park, but there were no injuries. Nearly 30 Negroes were arrested at the amusement park earlier Monday when they blocked an entrance during a demonstration, police said.

A New I-Road for Wisconsin

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin has announced he is preparing legislation to place Highway 41, from the Illinois line to Green Bay, in the federal interstate highway network.

Under the present interstate highway law about 450 miles of I-road are approved for Wisconsin. The main road extends from the Illinois line diagonally across the state to St. Paul and Minneapolis. There are connecting lines for Milwaukee, Madison and LaCrosse.

Rep. Laird's plan is to extend the 4-line road, which now is being built from Illinois to Green Bay through state financing, northwest in the direction of Shawano, Antigo and Rhinelander to Superior. When an earlier attempt to have Highway 41 included in the I-system failed in 1958, Sen. Wiley backed the plan on the grounds that the new St. Lawrence Seaway would bring greatly increased traffic through the industrial Fox River Valley. Furthermore, he said, it would be the principal artery for vacationers who visit northern Wisconsin.

Rep. Laird has advanced similar arguments in announcing his proposed legislation. He notes that the interstate highway net is being built primarily on national defense considerations. The Superior docks, he said, are extremely vulnerable to bombing attack. Furthermore, the Great Lakes shipping traffic during the next decade will transform the economy of eastern Wisconsin and especially such port cities as Green Bay and Milwaukee. Linking Superior with those ports would be a contribution to military security and the expansion of the Wisconsin economy, he declared.

Both Rep. Laird and Harvey Grasse, chairman of the Wisconsin Highway Commission, have indicated they feel that Wisconsin was unfairly treated when the interstate highway program was laid out. This also was the opinion of Harold L. Plummer, former chairman of the Wisconsin Highway Commission, who fought hard to have the 180 miles between Milwaukee and Menominee, Mich., added to the interstate system as an important link between Chicago and the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

When the original plan was presented, much was made of the argument that military consideration and the needs of the nation as a whole were deciding factors in selecting the routes. In the meantime there have been many applications for additions to the network, and it is quite obvious that, with this whole thing handled by Congress, this network of highways is heavily influenced by political considerations.

Wisconsin has taken a broad view of the road building as a national problem. However, it is quite apparent that with the opening of the St. Lawrence seaway and the expanding industrial developments in the vicinity of the principal seaway ports, Wisconsin has an outstanding claim for further consideration in the expansion of this program. The opening of the highway through the resort area of the state is an important argument also, for it should be noted that visitors to Wisconsin from Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland and elsewhere will be benefited through the use of the proposed highway just as people of Wisconsin may look forward to using long open stretches across the state of Kansas, for example.

Acceptable Tax Bill Faces Many Problems

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — What the state legislative Republican majority sorely needs and obviously lacks, as it struggles with the job of developing a tax policy alternative to the Nelson fiscal program it wants to reject, is a strong leader.

Wyngaard

The need is for a leader who can apply not only his own personality and persuasion in this crisis of party performance that will almost inevitably affect its fortunes in the next elections, but who also can apply party discipline to doubters and rebels and recalcitrants.

In the caucus deliberations on a tax bill, for example, it is perfectly evident from the reports that have leaked out that there are so many individual ideas and objections and reservations that it is going to be extremely difficult to write a package that can be put through the legislature over Democratic objections and laid on Gov. Nelson's desk.

The difficulties are great because there now is an obvious need for compromise and concession. Gov. Nelson is not going to sign a naked sales tax bill. It must be clothed with some attractive finery — such as bank taxation; withholding of income taxes, perhaps some amelioration of the levies upon lower income earners, some redistribution of utility taxes, some favors to influential voting groups such as farmers who are pained by their livestock levies, perhaps yet others.

NEW EXPERIENCE

That would be a large order in any legislature in this country, however well schooled. It is a profoundly strange experience to the men leading the present Wisconsin legislative majority. Most of them never have had any exposure to divided statehouse rule. Only a handful of them, in fact, have any memory of the time when the legislature hewed in one way while the executive department sought another for it was well over a quarter of a century ago.

To say that this legislature is not strongly led is not to impugn the men who hold the leadership positions. Chances are they are about average in competence and will. The leader of the leadership cadre in this contest is probably Sen. Frank Panzer, now presiding at the tax-writing caucus. Panzer is a shrewd bargainer, an expert in close contact politics. But he is not a table pounder, or the kind of man who will insist upon discipline and followership.

It is only fair to say, moreover, that there is very little control that is available over the dubious or frightened members of the caucus, or those who are holding out on principle against this, or for that, in the tax package.

In other jurisdictions there would be hard rules of punishment, as in the Congress, and even in some of the legislatures of neighborhood states. A recalcitrant might find his job patronage drying up, or his own favorite or local bills languishing in committee, or his committee seats downgraded.

NOT HERE

But the Wisconsin legislative tradition is different. These resources, except at rare intervals and under exceptional provocation, are not available to the majority legislative caucus. Tradition is strong. Any attempt to impose discipline by any of such means would explode in the faces of the men who tried it.

Even the comparatively routine expedient of the unit rule, as practiced currently by the Democrats in their legislative caucuses, has rarely been successfully applied during the years of the Republicans' majority in the modern Wisconsin legislature. The word "maverick", the attentive reader will recall, has an almost exclusively Republican connotation. There are no Democratic mavericks in the state legislature.

For these and other reasons, not the least of which is the superior publicity weapon of the governor on the other side of the capitol, the Republican tax-authoring assignment is a difficult one. If it is brought off, it will be a minor marvel.

Down From the Ivory Towers

Probably never in history have college professors become so involved in national politics. The ordinary citizen may take comfort, not only because he has to go to the dictionary a little more often, but because the Ph. D's don't agree any more than the rest of us.

The number of former Harvard teachers who now are in Washington in various advisory positions to President Kennedy probably is the main reason for all the points of view being so openly expressed. The men who were appointed held the limelight. But some of them have stubbed their toes and no one has jumped quicker to point out the flubs than their fellows.

Dr. Stuart Hughes, professor of European intellectual history at Harvard, has been a vocal critic of the nation's role in the Cuban mess. With 40 other Harvard teachers, he signed an open letter to the President protesting the attempted invasion. Hughes considers himself far to the left of the present administration but some of his critics point out that Hughes used to be for Henry Wallace and Wallace then turned around and voted for Eisenhower!

Another group of professors signed a large advertisement in New York newspapers early in May pleading for patience with the people and the government of Cuba. Many of them are active in the Fair Play for Cuba organization. Now another large group of teachers, most of them former professors at Cuban universities, have written and signed an advertisement pointing out the perfidy and tyranny of the Castro regime and the march of Communism in their homeland. Finally, two University of Wisconsin professors made news by giving out opinions on President Kennedy's administration.

Seriously the whole involvement of teachers in politics and national policy is healthy. Some of the best, well-trained brains in the country are giving valuable advice. And becoming involved in the day to day, down to earth hard facts of political life is very good for those who have dwelt for so long in ivory towers.

Plutonium Production and Electricity

The management of investor-owned public utilities producing electricity are greatly concerned over a proposal to authorize the construction of electrical generating facilities at the new Plutonium Reactor at Hanford, Wash. The joint committee on atomic energy recently heard proposals to adapt the reactor to producing electricity for the Bonneville power administration. The A. E. C. wants $95 million to build the facilities necessary to begin generating electricity by steam produced by one of the plutonium reactors at the Washington plant. It is said the change would provide 700,000 kilowatts of electrical power.

The electric utilities fear this proposal since it would establish a precedent for the operation of government owned steam plants outside of the Tennessee Valley Authority area. Furthermore, it is indicated quite clearly that the establishment of this electrical producing plant would inevitably lead to a huge network of electrical lines also operated by the government or by cooperative organizations.

The general public should be interested since it involves the expenditure of public money for the development of electrical power in competition with privately owned business. The magazine Electrical World declares that "this would be the first large block of federal thermo power outside of the Tennessee Valley. It would create a precedent with implications no one should miss. It is vital that this early attempt by government planners to break the barriers restricting federal steam to the TVA area be defeated decisively."

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a statement to the joint committee on atomic energy, declared the expenditure of $95 million is not needed to provide electrical energy for the Pacific Northwest. It pointed out that the report of the Bonneville Power Administration for 1960, reported that as of June, 1960, Bonneville had an idle plant capacity of about 400 million kilowatts. Obviously, to utilize any additional power developed at Hanford, it would be necessary to transmit this power outside of the present Bonneville service area.

The U. S. Chamber further noted that a new treaty between the United States and Canada is in prospect which will permit the development of the Columbia River with an increased output of electrical energy generation available to the Bonneville Power Administration of another 2,600,000 kilowatts. Its conclusion is that the use of funds for the construction of electrical generation facilities at Hanford would be a waste of the taxpayers' money.

The Chamber of Commerce statement also undertook to show that the investor-owned utilities were not only fully capable of producing the needed electricity but were already spending millions of dollars to keep up with the industrial needs of the nation. The Edison Electric Institute was quoted as reporting that the nation's electrical companies, in 1959 producing 127.3 million kilowatts, expected to more than double their capacity reaching 263.2 million kilowatts in 1970. By 1980, the companies anticipate they will be generating 492.6 million kilowatts or nearly four times their output for 1950 and nearly twice the predicted output for 1970. The Institute reported that 132 electrical companies were participating in one or more of 26 projects aimed at making atomic energy a practical economic source of electrical power. Of the 11 atomic power construction projects either in operation or projected for immediate construction, the utilities have or will have spent $331,554,000 to generate 932,000 kilowatts. It is notable for this huge program the A. E. C. spent only $46,175.000 as compared with the $95,000,000 proposed to be spent for approximately two-thirds of that amount of power to be produced at Hanford.

It is rather obvious there is no call for such an expenditure by the federal government to promote the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. The privately owned utilities are moving forward rapidly in all fields of electrical production and are fully capable of supplying the nation without any public investment in this field.

Compliments School Board For Long Study of Released Time

Editor, Post-Crescent:

An open letter to the Appleton Board of Education:

The thoughtful letters of Mr. Roelofs and Mrs. Hollinger show me that I have an equal responsibility to comment on the recent action of the Board of Education. Foremost in my mind is the service to our community that the members have given.

Before the recent vote on dismissed time I spoke with members of the board who voted each way. We discussed the reasons for and against dismissed time. Regardless of the position on the vote, two things were clear and significant. These were: First, the care, the consideration, the searching of all discussers for the wisest solution: second, the conviction that religious values are instilled primarily in the home through the example of the parents. We all recognized the need for guidance from religious leaders, assistance which makes it possible for more parents to meet their responsibilities in religious education than would otherwise do so.

The members of the board of education deserve praise for having convictions wisely arrived at and for taking the responsibility of standing by these convictions.

My responsibility takes me beyond complimenting the board for careful deliberation and responsible action. It requires me to answer the arguments of others, to bring forth convictions of my own.

That the public schools be maintained as non-sectarian institutions is important. In the context of his times, Horace Mann expressed this most eloquently in his twelfth annual report as Secretary of the Board of Education of Massachusetts. Mr. Roelofs referred to Horace Mann and his position. Readers will find the section of the report on religious education in Cornerstones of Religious Freedom in America by Joseph L. Blau.

Mr. Roelofs comes to the true crux of the question about dismissed time under his fifth heading where, in discussing the Zorach vs. Clauson case, he states: "Doubts concerning the wisdom of the released time program are not as easily resolved" as the constitutionality. The constitutionality question was decided by a split vote of 6 to 3, showing that there was doubt here.

Affidavits were submitted in the Zorach vs. Clauson case which would have brought more clearly before the courts and the public the question of the wisdom of these programs. However, "for technical reasons. . . these affidavits were not included in the record considered by the appellate courts in New York or by the United States Supreme Court;. . .the persons filing the affidavits undertook in their affidavits to appear at the trial and testify in person subject to cross-examination. It was because of the strenuous opposition of the board of education that no trial was ever held. . .the affidavits are on file in the office of the County Clerk of Kings County in the case of Zorach vs. Clauson, Index No. 10327 - 1948." (Leo Pfeffer, Church, State and Freedom, pp. 356 and 636.)

Mr. Pfeffer shows, in quoting extensively from these affidavits, that there is serious doubt about the wisdom of releasing children from public schools specifically for religious education. When Appleton was a smaller and more homogeneous community there may have been less cause to question the wisdom of dismissed time, but, as Appleton grows in diversity as well as numbers, we must continually reexamine the wisdom of dismissed time. It is just such a re-examination which shows the responsibility of our Board of Education.

There are people with strong religious convictions who insist upon their children knowing the family religion, yet who strongly oppose the divisiveness of dismissed time. We feel our children should learn of the diverse religious heritages of our nation, should grow tolerant through knowledge, not through ignorance. This knowledge comes through education in history, for example, from learning of the striving for religious tolerance by Lord Baltimore (Catholic), Roger Williams (Baptist), and William Penn (Quaker). As parents, let us teach our children more about our religion in the home, and so, as Mrs. Hollinger and Mr. Roelofs know, learn more about our own religions.

Sincerely,
Leonard W. Weis

Safety Becomes Bland

Recalls Days Of Boyhood

From The St. Louis Globe

Among numerous other things, this country needs a return to the days when a 12-year-old could get his fill of molasses sugar from a reasonably empty hogshead lying in the sunshine behind a general country store.

In those flavorful days when women cooked food instead of frightening it into limp submission in a pressure cooker, families bought tangy, saliva-starting molasses by the gallon. An earthenware jug with a gooey, dark-stained cork stopper was standard pantry equipment.

When the big, black-colored hogshead was empty, a sympathetic storekeeper took out the wooden bung, put in a makeshift plug, and rolled the barrel out back where small fry could get a taste of molasses sugar.

In hot sunshine, the sticky liquid semi-solified after it drained down to the valley from the sides; and if the lads were sufficiently strong-minded to wait a few days, the sugary, chewy material was as delicious as taffy.

Trouble was, even in less-hurried days there were young citizens who were impatient, and the inclination for less than perfect results overcame judgment that decreed a waiting period. We feel, however, that if boys with long slender sticks could reach into molasses hogsheads and capture generous mouthfuls of the sweet, soft goodness, it would have a salubrious effect on the so-called juvenile problem.

Foreign Aid Plan To be Major Test

Kennedy Administration to Need Support of Both Parties on Bill

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON — The supreme test for the Kennedy Administration, but even more for this country, is now approaching — the time to divide the men from the boys, the big from the little.

White

Soon now, when all the minimum-wage and public housing and other comparatively two-bit issues have been laid to rest, the truly big one will come before Congress. This is President Kennedy's new, wholly revised, $4 billion foreign aid program.

If he gets what he really needs here, which is not merely money but the authority to spend it how and where and when it counts the most, this will be a stronger nation in an already excessively dangerous world. If he winds up skimped and fettered, we shall be a weaker nation in a world even more dangerous than now.

Moment of Truth

It is hardly too much to say, indeed, that the moment when Congress makes its final decision on this bill will be a moment of truth—the President's moment of truth, yes, but also the moment of truth for this country and for the western world.

Given the right kind of bill, his presidency—and this nation—may be said to have been a success in the first half of this year. Given the wrong kind of bill, this first half-year may be said to have been largely a failure. For not all the rest of the Kennedy record, however favorable to him it may be claimed to be, can really over-balance a refusal by this country to arm itself and its friends, economically and militarily and psychologically, with the right kind of foreign aid program.

The old, the existing, program is out of date. It is wasteful and in some parts simply silly. It is too costly for the return it brings; for the future it simply will not do.

The President's new plan frankly recognizes all this. It is sound and practical. No banker or businessman, assuming he accepts in the first place the necessity for collective strength in the West, will find more than the irreducible minimum of bureaucratic or ideological nonsense in it.

It is, moreover, not "Democratic" and not "Republican." It ought to stand, and can stand, on its own bottom, whatever one may think of any or all of the President's other legislative recommendations. It is an American policy which has the twin virtues of cleaning up an untidy past in foreign aid and instituting a strong and hopeful future.

Conservative Plan

If it would cost three times what it does, it would still be, in the deepest sense, a truly conservative plan. It is a case of sending good money, and admittedly a lot of it, after far better coin—the coin of collective strength and security. This is a coin we must have, for the cold war in sober truth has never been so menacing as now.

The President will require—and he is fully aware of this—not "Democratic" support, not "liberal" suport, not "Republican" support, not "conservative" support. He will require a national, repeat national, and non-political backing. This is no high-school piece of politics; this is the adult, the payoff, game in a world we never made but must begin to control before it begins wholly to control us and our destiny.

Knowing all this, the president in every other question before congress has avoided crying "must," and avoided going directly to the country. It is well that this has been so—that he has not gone over congress' head thus far. For this time he may need to do just that. And if he does, he is entitled, this time, to be listened to—by Democrats, Republicans, liberals, conservatives and even Socialists or what not.

For this time it will be as much an Eisenhower speech as a Kennedy speech, as much a chamber of commerce speech as a labor union speech. This time he will be speaking not for a man and a party and not for some big or little doctrinaire pressure group, but for the United States of America and for its vital interests.

State Bar Head Pledges Attack on Lawyer Apathy

DELAVAN (AP) — The new president of the state bar of Wisconsin, John Whitney of Green Bay, has promised to campaign against apathy which may exist among his 6,000 colleagues in the state.

Whitney made the pledge after Carroll Callahan of Columbus, the outgoing president, told the annual assembly that apathy was the greatest obstacle confronting the bar on the road to progress.

"There are still some lawyers who do not have pride in their profession," Callahan asserted.

Whitney said he intended to bring about "a closer relationship between the state bar headquarters in Madison and every local bar group in the state."

He also said he planned to open a branch office of the state bar in Milwaukee and assign a special investigator in it to handle matters of ethics, grievances and unauthorized practice of law.

James Fornary of Racine was awarded the state bar plaque as the outstanding local bar president in the last year.

OUTDOORS in WISCONSIN

Early Summer Days Offer Outdoor Fun

BY CLARA HUSSONG

GREEN BAY — It was raining one morning and I was reminded June rain water was once considered a beauty treatment for hair and complexion. Ladies of 100 years ago caught June rain water in jugs, fruit jars and other containers and saved it for future use.

Hussong

It went farther those days than it would now. Many of us can remember the time when it wasn't considered good for the hair to be washed more than once every two weeks.

Summer arrives this week. These are our longest days, as you have no doubt noticed. From now on days will get shorter by about a minute a day. After Dec. 21, the time of the winter solstice, days will begin to get longer.

Outdoor Events

A number of outdoor events take place during these early summer days. In our area, it is the height of the nesting season. If you take a walk across fields or along country roads you will see evidences of nesting. Parent birds are carrying food to their young. Killdeers and some other species put on a "broken wing" act to lure you from the nest. Other species rise up hurriedly from the ground and circle over you with distressing cries. Second and third clutches of eggs are being incubated by some species.

Caterpillars are hatching out of the eggs laid by the adult female insects. Some moths and butterflies are just emerging from cocoons in which they spent the winter. Look for the pale green luna moth with its long tails, the gray-brown, rosy and yellow cecropia, and the golden-colored polyphemus moths.

Look for Young

If you have trouble distinguishing between the cecropia and the polyphemus, two of our largest moths, remember that the cecropia has the eye spots on the upper, or fore wings, and the polyphemus on the lower, or hind wings.

Many young mammals are seeing the world for the first time these early summer days. Until now they've remained in their dens and fed on their mother's milk.

Many grasses are in full bloom, and they make attractive bouquets. The miniature blossoms may be pink, lavender, cream-colored, yellow or pale green. Under a microscope or magnifying glass you will see that the color is often that of the pollen which decorates them. Several kinds of grasses are very dainty and beautiful. Put them in a small-necked vase or bottle, without water, and you will have a bouquet which will last for years.

Visit Sanctuary

Wild roses, blue flags (wild iris), yellow and white daisies, clovers, cranesbill, robin's plantain and many more common kinds of flowers are in full bloom. You can pick bouquets of these and others without worrying about their extermination. To the farmer, most of them are weeds.

Early summer is the best time of the year to visit The Ridges Wildflower Sanctuary in Bailey's Harbor. The flowers here, of course, cannot be picked.

A number of orchids should be blossoming there now. You may still find some yellow lady's slippers, the pink moccasin flower, grass pink and some of the other early species. Soon the showy lady's slippers will be in bloom, as well as the pitcher plant. Wood lilies, bluebells and Indian paint brush are others which blossom there, or in other woodland places.

Late Shrubs

You'll find some late-blooming shrubs if you go exploring in country spots. Some of the dogwoods, viburnums and heaths, including the Labrador tea, bog rosemary, bearberry and blueberry still are in bloom, or due to blossom soon.

These long summer evenings are just made for bird listening. Take along some mosquito "dope" if you're planning this kind of an excursion. Any kind of a country place is good — a field, a marsh, a swamp or a wooded hill. You don't have to go more than a few miles out of town to hear such beautiful bird voices as those of the veery, wood thrush, rose-breasted grosbeak, song sparrow, the upland plover or the warbling vireo. If you stay late enough, you may hear the whip-poor-will.

Son of Janitor Who Returned $240,000 Gets Job in Studio

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A son of the janitor who returned $240,000 that fell from an armored car has a new job as mail clerk in the Allied Artists Studio.

Richard Johnson, 17, hired this week considers the $72.50 a week job an important step in his quest for an acting career.

The youth's father, Douglas W. Johnson, got a $10,000 reward for finding and returning the money lost from a Brink's Inc. truck March 10. At the time, the studio promised Richard a job.

Assembly Okays Nelson Program

MADISON (AP)— The Assembly has given preliminary approval to Gov. Gaylord Nelson's $50 million outdoor resource development program, then sent the measure to the Joint Finance Committee.

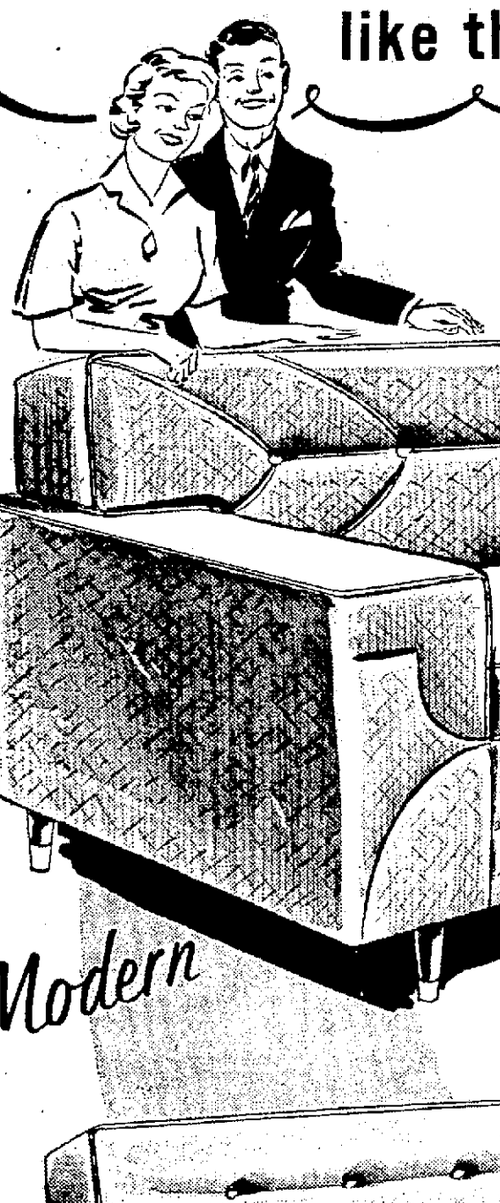

The vote was 92-2, with Assemblymen William Owen, R-Menomonie, and Russell Olson, R-Bassett, the only dissenters.

Republican Floorleader Robert Haase of Marinette called for bipartisan support of the bill but said finance committee action was necessary since the measure involves levying of a penny-a-pack tax on cigarettes.

Assemblyman Willis Hutnik, R-Tony, labeled the bill a political measure and said the Joint Finance Committee would have to carefully study what is going to be done with the program in the next 10 years.

The Assembly also gave preliminary approval to a bill providing medical care for persons over 65. Because of its $10 million price tag, the medical care bill also was sent to Joint Finance.

Senate Report Attacks Former Commissioner

Committee Says Gordon Tiffany Not Competent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee said today that Gordon Tiffany, former staff director of the Civil Rights Commission, "had neither the executive ability nor the competence" for the post.

The report, submitted to the Senate by Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., was based on a staff investigation and closed-door hearings conducted by the subcommittee last year.

McClellan said the inquiry was initiated because of complaints of mismanagement and inefficiency made against Tiffany by members of the commission staff.

Resigned Jan. 1

Tiffany, the first staff director of the commission set up by the 1957 Civil Rights Act, resigned last Jan. 1. McClellan said it was apparent to him that Tiffany's resignation was due to the subcommittee's probe.

In a dissenting statement, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said that Tiffany resigned with the change in administrations and quoted a resolution adopted by the commission saying Tiffany had served "with devotion, intelligence, and distinction."

Javits is not a member of the subcommittee but serves on its parent body, the Senate Committee on Government Operations, which approved the filing of the report.

Didn't Participate

Sens. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., and Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., both members of the subcommittee, said they were unable to participate in the hearings and neither approved nor disapproved the report.

The report said that Tiffany, "by design or through ineptness, demonstrated a thorough lack of cooperation with the subcommittee's inquiry."

Specifically, it said he persistently questioned the subcommittee's authority, refused to permit some employees of the commission to be interviewed at the time requested, and gave advice to subordinates that was tantamount to warning them not to cooperate.

The report also said Tiffany had refused to permit the review of certain financial records, on the ground they were merely estimates, and had refused to make available at first the names of 26 prominent federal, state and local officials and clergymen given security name checks before being called as witnesses at commission hearings.

Throngs Crowd Party To See Mother of President Kennedy

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy went to a party Tuesday night at an ancient villa outside Florence. The throngs outside were so great that President Kennedy's mother spent 35 minutes working her way inside.

The lavish affair for 400 guests was given by Ernest Boissevain, a New York banker, and his wife, Jane, to celebrate their purchase of the 16th-century mansion—Villa Delle Rose, two miles south of Florence.

In 'Blue Angel'

Stricken With Polio, Woman Still Travels

CAMARILLO, Calif. (AP) — Marie Thompson, 35, is seeing Southern California reflected in an 18-by-24-inch mirror — on her iron lung.

Mrs. Thompson, confined to the lung day and night since she was stricken with polio 8½ years ago, doesn't let this hamper her yen for travel.

Touring is possible because of the specially designed panel truck Mrs. Thompson calls the Blue Angel.

The Blue Angel arrived in Camarillo Tuesday from the Thompson home in San Leandro, in the San Francisco East Bay area. The truck was driven by nurse Louette Barber. Mrs. Thompson's children, Marie Ruth, 14; Joy, 12, and Gay, 10, were in a car driven by Marion Ray.

The visitors are guests of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Delay in this Ventura County community north of Los Angeles.

Where next?

Knott's Berry Farm and Marineland Oceanarium are both on the agenda and Mrs. Thompson also hopes to see Disneyland, the homes of the movie stars and perhaps to visit a studio.

Later on, she'd like to go to San Diego and stop at the famed zoo there. Tijuana, Mexico, figures in her plans, too.

"It's a dream come true," she said. "You wouldn't believe how much I can see."

Designed By Husband

Mrs. Thompson's late husband, the Rev. Fred Thompson, designed and outfitted the panel truck. It has portable generators, a resuscitator, humidifier, a ramp and other equipment. They made some short trips in it together, but in 1956 he was killed while working on their San Leandro home.

As the Blue Angel rolls along, Mrs. Thompson watches the landscape unroll behind her in her mirror.

"Oh, there are so many places I want to go—so many things I want to see," she said. "We'll be on this trip for a month, probably as long as there's anything to enjoy."

United States and has a long background in Czechoslovak intelligence work."

6 Meetings Reported

It charged that Nacvalac had six meetings with the Army language instructor, Karel Hlasny, between 1958 and 1961, offered an exit permit from Czechoslovakia for Hlasny's fiancee in exchange for intelligence information, and paid him various sums totaling $1,700.

The United States said Hlasny was cooperating with the U.S. government all the time and the information he passed was worthless. But Hlasny's fiancee got her exit permit in 1959 and they were married in California.

Calls Charges "Lies"

Naclavac said the U.S. charges were "all lies" and that he had never been in California. But U.S. State Department press officer Lincoln White displayed photographs of Naclavac and Hlasny he said were taken outside a San Francisco restaurant where they met.

Czechoslovakia's charge that the U.S. demands violated the U.N. headquarters agreement with the United States had aroused speculation that the Czechs would request that the case be referred to an arbitration tribunal. Clayton Fritchey, a spokesman for the U.S. delegation said the arbitration proceedings can take place only when there is disagreement between the United States and the secretary-general, and "we know of no such issue."

Await Instructions

Fritchey said he had been assured last week by the Czechoslovak delegation that Nacvalac would be leaving soon. This was denied by Zdensk Cernik, acting Czechoslovak delegation head. He said he had informed the United States that his government rejected the charges against Nacvalac, and that he was awaiting further instructions from Prague.

Fritchey said Nacvalac's last assignment in Prague before coming to the United Nations in 1958 was "director of espionage, intelligence and subversive activities in the Western Hemisphere."

Nacvalac denied that and said he was in charge of the Foreign ministry department, handling U. N. affairs, its specialized agencies and similar organizations.

The story broke last Friday when Nacvalac claimed two U. S. intelligence agents approached him in New York's Gripsholm restaurant and tried to hire him as a spy.

and trade authorities of both governments to consider the most acute problems between the two countries.

The Japanese-American committee would perform a similar role.

The United States is Japan's top trading partner and the United States ranks Japan second only to Canada as the largest outlet for American goods and commodities.

Luncheon Scheduled

The Ikeda-Kennedy talks were scheduled to resume in a brief private meeting between the two leaders preceding a state luncheon at the White House. Luncheon guests were to include former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower, making their first White House visit since Eisenhower left office last January.

High U.S. diplomatic officials were pleased at the outcome of the first round of meetings between Ikeda and Kennedy.

The talks were businesslike and to the point, and both leaders were well-briefed on the problems confronting them, informants said.

Oppose Restrictions

A long session on economic problems between Ikeda and Secretary of State Dean Rusk followed the first White House meeting.

Informants said that Japanese officials said they hoped the United States will ease travel restrictions on Okinawans seeking to go to Japan.

However, there appeared to be little if any change in U.S. resistance to a Japanese bid to extend its influence on Okinawa and the Ryukyu Islands.

U.S. defense officials are opposed to permitting Japan's flag to fly from school and other government buildings on Okinawa. State Department officials have favored making this concession to Japanese sovereignty.

The Defense Department also was reported standing firm against Japanese school teachers taking over the teaching of primary and secondary grades in Okinawa.

police establishment. They had congratulated themselves earlier that the measure would be defeated as similar bills have been thwarted in the past.

Concentrated Efforts

The state department, meanwhile, this year discarded all hopes of winning legislative approval for a larger man-power complement and concentrated on the broadening of its jurisdiction. It won the backing of safety organizations and an interim legislative committee that studied the proposition.

The assembly reversal of attitude was reckoned by observers to be a result of the widespread press and public discussion and criticism about the anti-patrol votes in the lower house on other occasions this year.

Party lines were splintered on the issue, but a larger proportion of the majority Republicans backed the broadened powers bill than did the Democrats. The roll call showed 38 out of 55 Republicans for the measure, and 26 of 45 Democrats backing it.

Fire Department Now Offering Drive-in Service for Blazes

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Orlandis Breckenridge delivered a fire to the Fire Department Tuesday and it was a stinker.

Breckenridge, a truck driver for the Livermore Disposal Co., was collecting garbage when his cargo started blazing. Trailing smoke, he sped to the fire house, where the blaze was extinguished.

Kennedy's Back Ailment Nearly Ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has received permission to throw away his crutches—probably Thursday, and the White House indicates the worst of his back ailment is over.

The word he has been waiting for came from Dr. Janet Travell, the White House physician, and two outside specialists in orthopedics, the branch of medicine concerned with bone and joint injuries.

They checked him over and talked with him for more than a half hour late Tuesday.

Afterward, assistant press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said that in their combined opinion Kennedy's progress is satisfactory. Hatcher added: "He will be able to conduct his daily schedule without the aid of crutches in two days."

That would mean some time Thursday, although Hatcher declined to be more definite. Kennedy has been walking with them since June 9.

Your Problems

3-Year-Old Child Shouldn't be Allowed to Sleep With Parents

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our three-year-old child wraps her mother around her little finger and I'm sick of it.

Landers

About six months ago Sheila began to cry at night when she heard us getting ready for bed. My wife took her into our bed to comfort her and that started something. Now, Sheila refuses to stay in her own bed. We find her in our bed every night when we retire. She screams if I try to take her to her own room and my wife always gives in and lets her stay.

I am not getting the proper rest. I'm about a foot and a half too long for Sheila's youth bed or I'd go to sleep in it. Please give me some help.—Dark Circles

Dear Dark: That three-year-old is smarter than you and your wife put together. She has learned how to make trouble between you two and it's been working like a charm.

Put Sheila in her own bed tonight and let her cry until morning if she wants to—but don't give in. When she learns her little tricks won't work, she'll give up. If she hasn't settled down to normal after a week, get professional help.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband had a mild coronary a few months ago and must be at home for several weeks. A certain lunatic who works in his office phones him every day "just to talk." I don't mind her phoning him but she sends notes and wacky cards every day and I think she's overdoing it.

I always go through the mail before he gets it and I've been throwing out the cards and notes from her which I feel are too personal. I know she's a nut, but she is also very sexy and I don't want him to get any funny ideas. Do you feel I'm justified in protecting my home against possible trouble—no matter how far-fetched?—Cautious

Dear Cautious: I don't buy the bats in the belfry label just because you do. If as you suspect, this woman has ulterior motives, your childish response will certainly not do your marriage any good.

The least you can do is hand over your husband's mail—all of it. You sound like a bit of a nut yourself, Kiddo.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A year ago I started to date a fellow who was fun, a good dancer and great looking. He also has a swell sense of humor. I fell for him—and hard.

Recently I asked him about our future. He said he'd like to marry me but he was in debt—owed payments on his car and a few other things. He hinted that he might give me a ring on my birthday.

Well, I told a few friends, and this was a huge mistake. My birthday came and went—and no ring. So I went out and bought an engagement ring myself. I thought I could depend on him to keep it quiet, but he has breezed it around and now I feel like a fool.

My folks are furious at him but I feel I'm to blame because I did the stupid thing. They are urging me to break up with him. I'm 24 and he is 22. What do you think?—V. Z.

Dear V.: Of course you did a foolish thing but a fellow who would "breeze it around" shows very little maturity and no loyalty whatever. Take off the phony ring, start to date some men and leave the boys alone.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Ailing House

Cleanser Can Help Cut Stains

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: The back of the wash bowl in the bathroom, near the small vents, is rusty. I've tried many things to remove the stain, but nothing seems to do any good. Can you suggest anything?

A: Usually, the scratchless scouring powders containing bleach, or the new liquid household detergents are effective; also there are rust-removing preparations available at many hardware, housewares and variety stores, which should be used according to label directions. The following "home" treatment frequently removes stains of this kind: Make a thick paste of scratchless scouring powder and peroxide, adding a little cream of tartar; rub this on the rust stain and allow a thick layer to remain about a half hour. After rubbing the discolored area again, rinse thoroughly with clear water to remove the paste. Several treatments may be necessary to remove the stain.

CLOVER MITES

Q: We have a small red bug wherever the sun happens to be around the outside of the house. Someone told us they are clover mites. Is there such an insect? If so, how can we get rid of them? They look like spots of dirt and wouldn't be seen if they didn't move.

A: Yes; there are clover mites. They are so tiny they are scarcely visible to the naked eye, and vary in color from a sort of green to brown. They feed and breed on grass and other plants. The best method of getting rid of them is to spray any good miticide (insecticide), on all shrubbery and grass in any area at least 10 feet around the house. To kill the mites use a pyrethrum contact spray.

Our Children

Speech Defect Can Cause Emotional Disturbance

BY ANGELO PATRI

Here is a boy, a little over three years old who is pestering his mother so much that she is about to pack her bags and go. He is not talking as children his age usually do. He wakes up crying in the morning. If he gets what he says he wants, he does not want it and keeps on crying; he does not obey any direction until forced to do so. His distressed mother says that his father loves him so much that he can't punish him, meaning, I think from the tone of the letters, beat him.

Punishing such a child is the last thing one should do. He is in trouble already. Most children in sound health learn to talk by the second year at least. When one like this does not talk at the age of three plus, it is time to get expert help.

Reason for Crying

There is always a reason for a child's crying. He is unhappy about something and until that something is discovered and cleared up the situation will not improve.

Occasionally a parent says, "He will outgrow it." But that depends; it's unlikely that a child such as this one outgrows his difficulties without the help of an expert or two. A speech defect in itself is enough to cause deep disturbance in a child. It can affect, his whole being, even his mind, because his intelligence cannot be developed as it must be to make him a happy child.

Needs Special Care

We all depend on communication with others for the full development of our abilities. This includes: speech, play and work in association with others. The lack of speech, even in a child three years old, has a blighting effect on his mind, consequently on his cooperation with those about him, starting with his mother and father.

Such children should have the care of the physician, the psychologists, and special teachers. There are clinics and hospitals and public nurses ready to advise and help, if the family is not financially able to pay for such help.

The mother of such a child needs time out for rest. The nursery school could help with this. Running away is not the answer.

Look Ahead In Order to Thwart Foes

You can often tell what your opponent is going to do next. Thrust a spoke in his wheel if he is headed in the right direction.

Put yourself in the West seat. You lead the three of spades, and dummy's queen is covered and won by your partner's king. Your partner returns the ten of spades, winning the second trick. Then he leads another spade, and South wins with the ace.

Declarer leads a diamond, and you can tell just what he has in mind. He wants to finesse one of dummy's low diamonds, allowing East to win the trick.

That will be the end of effective defense. No matter what East returns South can win and run dummy's four diamonds. Declarer wins four diamonds, one spade, two hearts and two clubs.

Play the Queen

Now that you've spotted South's plan, what can you do about it? Simply put up the queen of diamonds when South leads the first low diamond from his hand.

Declarer cannot afford to let you win the trick, for then you would take the rest of the spades. He must win in the dummy with the king of diamonds.

Now there is no way for South to get four diamond tricks. The prompt play of the queen of diamonds limits declarer to two diamond tricks. South will go down one or two tricks instead of making his contract.

Don't be nervous about playing the queen of diamonds in a situation of this kind. If South has the jack of diamonds, your queen is doomed anyway; and if your partner has the jack, your play is both safe and necessary.

Summer Diet Dodgers

Are you a putter-offer when it comes to dieting? You are, if you now have to struggle into swim suits and shorts You are, if you keep telling yourself that you've missed the boat to summer trimness and may as well wait for fall.

Heavyweights invariably subscribe to the idea that the favorable time for reducing is next season, or the next. Meanwhile they are apt to gain and gain again.

Actually summertime is ideal for dieting. In hot weather you desire less food, and for comfort you require less Begin to diet now, and with the least possible agonizing you can lose up to ten pounds by August, Twenty by September. What's more you will feel better physically and your conscience will rest easy. You will look it, too!

If that's for you, follow this daily bill-o-fare: one egg—75 calories; one pint skim or buttermilk—160 c.; two slices fortified bread or equivalent in cereal—about 130 c.; meat, fish or fowl, four to six ounces—200 to 300 c.; three average servings of nonstarchy vegetables—about 125 c.; one-half cup fruit juice, one serving other fruit—about 150 c.; free choice—about 150-250 c. PET DOCTOR

By A. W. Moller, D.V.M.

Q. We are raising some pigs. We are told they can see in the dark. Can all four legged animals see in the dark as well as in the light? Mrs. R. Perry, Bryan, Ohio.

A No animal can see in the absolute dark. However, some animals are more adapted to pick up small amounts of light than others. Animals that only venture out at night and those that hunt at night have adapted their eyes through a million years of evolution to pick up the slightest rays of light and make use of it. Other animals that get around in day time and sleep at night can see very little in the dark. Pigs certainly don't see any better at night than we do. The eyesight of most of our domestic animals, including birds but with the exception of cats, is better in daylight than in the dark.

(Address your question to Dr. Moller in care of this paper. He will answer selected inquiries in his column, but cannot reply to them.)

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

SHOWERS OFTEN BURDEN

How do people cope with these many bridal showers which seem to be getting out of hand? I struggle along rearing four children and these "o b l igations" have become a serious financial problem. I get invitations to showers for high school girls I hardly know and occasionally for others whom I don't know at all, even their families. This is running into a lot of money, yet no one wants to be labeled a cheap skate. Showers and wedding gifts for friends or whose parents are friends are in another class when I'm happy to give.

Davis

Louise Davis Answers:

Wouldn't you rather be labeled a cheap skate than to know that you are a sucker? Everyone has the right to live within one's budget and without making such sacrifices as you mention. If gift obligations become a burden in any way, it's time to call a halt or at least pare down the cost no matter what the other fellow thinks of us. It is so morally wrong to feel that we must live up to the expectations of others. I see no excuse for getting shower gifts or wedding gifts for remote acquaintances and strangers simply because the alms begging hands are out to anyone willing to succumb. At the risk of erroneously being considered a miser, I suggest passing up entirely these showers for strangers and sending your regrets to the parties. I guarantee you won't lose friends because of it. Real friends don't "lose" that easily. Anyone who would criticize you for your failure to give handouts isn't worth your friendship.

SEAMS TO ME By Patricia Scott — Questions On Sewing

Different finishing details are used for specific reasons. Don't try to use the same method in everything you make. Decide first what final effect you want, and then choose the proper details.

Q. When my daughter makes darts in her blouses or skirts she insists on cutting them apart down the middle. I disagree with her. The shears don't get to the small part of the dart. I am 72 years old, and maybe I am wrong, so will you please tell me the right way to make darts? Are they cut or not? Mrs. E. S.

Pat Scott

A. Darts should not always be slashed. The reason we slash them is to avoid a bulky look and a shine from pressing on the right side. This happens when you are using heavy fabric and your darts are more than ½ inch side. We often slash darts when making tailored jackets. In Sketches A and B you can see how a single pointed dart is stitched and slashed. Slash through the fold to within ½ inch of the end. Then press the slashed part open and press the point flat to form a box pleat. Sketches C and D illustrate a double-pointed dart for jackets. It is finished in the same way, this time with two points. Darts on normal weight fabric need not be slashed.

Q. I have read in your column that tissue paper should be used when stitching jersey or chiffon, and then ripped off when finished. What is the purpose of doing this? Mrs. T. Y.

A. Fabrics such as jersey and chiffon tend to stretch or shift under the needle. To avoid this, tissue paper is placed under the seam and you stitch directly through the tissue. This will keep your fabric from slipping and also eliminate some of the stretching.

Q. I want to make a plaid dress with a band down the center front of the bodice. If this band is cut on the bias, should the interfacing be cut the same or can it be cut on the straight grain to keep band from stretching out of shape? I was told that an interfacing cut on the straight grain will keep a bias in shape Miss D.M.

A. This is not true. The interfacing for the bias band must be cut on the bias. If the outside fabric and interfacing are not cut on the same grain, you'll have a terrible problem, especially after dry cleaning. The outside bias band will sag while the interfacing will react differently. The result will be a rippled band.

Because of the countless questions received regarding altering of dress patterns, Patricia Scott has prepared a new booklet, "How to Alter Your Dress Patterns," which gives complete instructions for altering so that finished garments will fit perfectly. For your copy of this guide to correct fitting, write to Patricia Scott in care of this newspaper, enclosing 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

WANT ADS are for EVERYBODY

When my Daddy said I could have a puppy of my very own, I asked, "Where will we get him?" Daddy went and got a copy of the Appleton Post-Crescent and opened it up to the classified ad pages, and he helped me find the column where pets are advertised. He told me to read every ad to see if there were any puppies that I might like. It was easy. We went and got my little poodle that very evening. Daddy taught me how useful the Want Ads can be. As I grow up I know I'll find lots of ways to use them again and again, just as Daddy and Mommy do.

Eight Days Cost $200

Family Enjoys Interesting but Inexpensive Canadian Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Huss, 806 W. Capitol Drive, proved what they long suspected — that a family could enjoy a different and worthwhile vacation at a very small cost — when they spent eight days in Canada recently.

Mrs. Huss admitted that the trip was not a spur of the moment affair. She and her husband planned their route very carefully ahead of time. Their idea of a good vacation was seeing as much of nature's untouched beauty as was possible during the time permitted and with limited funds. Their entourage included son Michael, his friend, John Ruwoldt, and a boat and trailer.

The group left Appleton at 6:30 a.m. May 26 and went west to Duluth, Minn. They then headed north to International Falls and crossed into Fort Francis, Canada. Here they paid a toll charge of $1.25. This fee covered passage across the river by four people, the car, boat and trailer. Officials inquired as to the party's destination and planned length of stay.

Lake of Woods

The travelers then entered the beautiful Lake of the Woods region. Mrs. Huss related that this area is mostly water, with small roads built for the passage of cars. The first night was spent in this tourist resort, and the cabin charge—the most expensive of the trip—was $8.00. The first day's journey covered 520 miles but seemed like less because of the small amount of traffic.

The Husses took a side trip to Kenora the next morning because, as Mrs. Huss said, "if we did not, everyone would ask, why didn't you go to Kenora?" This is a very prosperous little town whose main industry is rough paper.

The party had lunch and bought gas in Vermillion Bay. The price of gas is 47 cents a gallon, but because of a difference in measuring, the amount is equal to five quarts. A full meal averaged from 75 cents to $1.25..

Cabins in Ontario are called light housekeeping camps. Going north on Red Lake Road, the Husses saw camp vacancies with accommodations for four for $5.00 a night. Moose were seen on this road. Mrs. Huss reported that the big animals looked like mules. The group tried their fishing luck at Cliff Lake, famous for trout. Only Michael was successful, boasting the landing of a 20 inch lake trout.

Canadian Bush

The woods area of Canada is known as the bush, and the group penetrated deep into this virgin timber-land to the town of Red Lake, known for its gold mining industry. There are many Indians in this region, and, as Canada is open for immigration, there are also many Polish, Swedes and French.

The Appleton party met a group of six fishermen from Alexandria, Minn., who went to Orded Lake for walleyes and northerns and came back daily with their ice case full.

Mrs. Huss welcomed the lack of radio and television and the perpetual discussion of world problems. This wild, untamed and beautiful country made these seem very far away, and provided a vacation for the mind and spirit as well as the body.

Saw No Wardens

No game wardens were encountered, but the group occasionally saw a member of the provincial police.

Three days were spent at Arenberg Camp at Cliff Lake, and the Husses had an opportunity to know the hospitality of the Canadian people.

Dryden, a town whose main industry is paper and working in the bush, and Upsola were the next stops. They then traveled northeast on the new Trans-Canadian Highway along Lake Superior. The family then went to Nipigon and directly north to Longlac. At David's Lake the travelers saw the camp where German prisoners of war were interned.

Moose were seen again just before the family reached the town of Beardmore. Gold mining and paper are the chief industries here. Miners finish gold right down to the bricks and send it to Ottawa.

'Favorite Place'

Flint River Tourist Camp 26 miles east of Longlac was, according to Mrs. Huss, 'our favorite place.' The river, Flint Lake and Klotz Lake are accessible from the camp site on Klotz Lake.

It is in this section on Ontario that Kimberly-Clark Corp. has leased thousands and thousands of acres of bush for pulp. Lumbering is therefore the most important industry. Moose hunting and fishing are excellent here, the Husses stated. There are no deer, as the winters are too cold.

Early mornings are almost beyond description. Beaver swim by, intent upon their business. Moose sound their cry from the woods and the birds call across the water. No one seems to hurry; life is lived at nature's pace.

Fishing is excellent and offers many varieties. Exceptions are bass and muskie. The camp, 800 miles from Appleton, is operated by Roy Westover.

The party traveled east through Terrace Bay and Marathon. They had dinner at Wawa and entered Lake Superior Provincial Park. This too, is nature's wonderland, full of beautiful pines and tall oaks, abundant with moose and other wild life.

The Husses slept at a camp 40 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. In the morning they crossed into upper Michigan at St. Mary's River. Toll charges were $2.25.

Total Cost $200

Total cost of the trip was $200. This included lodging, food, souvenirs, the unexpected cost of a new tire after a blowout, and a leather jacket for Mrs. Huss.

The family considers the venture a great success; one that they intend to repeat. They also feel that others who want to see parts of this continent that are still virtually as they were hundreds of years ago, might enjoy a similar inexpensive trip north.

Post-Crescent Photo

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Huss, 806 W. Capitol Drive, were prepared for fishing when they enjoyed a recent vacation in Canada. The couple, John Ruwoldt, a friend of their son, and Michael Huss spent eight days in the Canadian bush. They took their own boat and trailer and found that camping is permitted along the roads in Canada without charge. The vacation cost, including expense of a tire and souvenirs, was $200.

Predict Below Normal Rainfall, Near Normal Temperature for July

MADISON (AP)— The weekly weather and crop report, issued by U. S. and state weather and agricultural agencies, said Tuesday it looks for near normal temperatures and below normal rainfall for the next month.

The service made the prediction while noting that recent rain brought relief and renewed growth to dried out crops, but the amount was generally too little to be of more than temporary help.

"This much or more is needed every week," the summary added. It said there are still many localized dry spots. These are mostly in the northern and southern thirds of the state.

Livestock are beginning to get their normal roughage requirements from pasture although there is a considerable amount of green chop feeding.

Early and heavy spraying has done much to keep the crop insect problem down, the agency said.

Pipe Line Will Transport Oil At Lower Cost

Will Connect State With Refineries in Hammond, Indiana

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The proposed new oil pipe-line between Hammond, Ind., and Green Bay will be able to move refined petroleum products at a price substantially below the charges of the Great Lakes tankers with which it will compete, according to the record of the proceedings before the public service commission.

The commission has published an order approving the acquisition by the West Shore Pipe Line company, in the public interest, of a 50 foot right-of-way for the construction of the line in Brown, Sheboygan and Washington counties. The commission granted the application and overruled property owners in the line of construction.

Present lake tanker charges from Hammond to Milwaukee total 19.8 cents a barrel compared with the proposed pipe-line price of 15 cents, the commission said. The figures for Green Bay were put at 31.1 cents and 27.5 cents.

Continuous Service

The commission also noted that the line will be able to provide "essentially continuous service throughout the year whereas lake tanker service is subject to interruptions from bad weather and from heavy ice conditions on the lake and in the harbors. Tanker service to Green Bay is not practical during the winter months."

The commission said the record was not entirely clear on the reasons why some property owners objected to the pipe-line construction, but speculated that some of them are dissatisfied with proferred compensation and that "others were dissatisfied with the company approach and apparently objected to the methods and procedures used by the survey crews."

The pipe line firm is a Delaware corporation, owned by 10 oil companies who have agreed to use the line to assure the economic success of its operations.

The 260 mile line will be 16 inches in diameter from Hammond to Milwaukee, and 10 inches to Green Bay, will be built of steel. Minimum cover will be 36 inches. Pressures will vary from about 1,000 pounds a square inch at the input, to about 200 pounds at Green Bay. Initial transport will be about 75,000 barrels a day, which is expected to increase to about 150,000 barrels in 20 years. Products to be carried will include kerosenes, gasolines, fuel oils, heating oils and possibly jet aircraft fuels.

Navy Can Keep Private Firm's Employee Off Property, Court Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decided the government may bar a civilian employe of a private firm from navy property on mere notice the worker has failed to meet security requirements.

Justice Stewart delivered the 5-4 decision.

Justice Brennan wrote a dissenting opinion, joined by Chief Justice Warren and Justices Black and Douglas.

The verdict applied specifically to Mrs. Rachel M. Brawner, 39, a cafeteria short-order cook. She worked in a cafeteria operated by M & M Restaurants, Inc., a private firm, in the naval gun factory here.

On Nov. 15, 1956 the factory's security officer required Mrs. Brawner to give up her plant identification badge. The officer did not explain how she failed to meet security requirements and she was not given a hearing.

Lacking a badge, Mrs. Brawner could not enter navy premises. Her employer offered her work in a public cafeteria in nearby Springfield, Va., but she refused the job. Instead, she sued the navy for return of the badge and sued her employer for back pay.

Teacher Sadly Finds Bottle Toss Risky

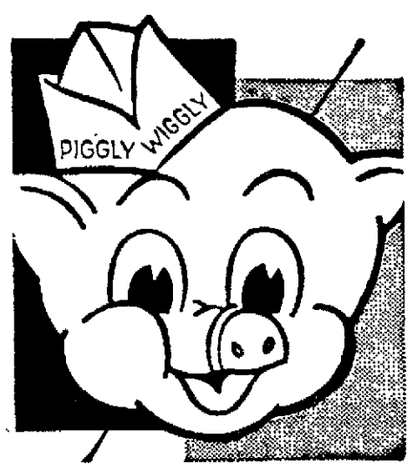

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— A pupil at an Oklahoma City elementary school brought to the teacher on playground duty an empty whisky bottle tossed by some imbiber onto the grounds.

The teacher told the pupil to take it to a waste basket. She had in mind the large refuse box of the janitor in the basement.

A short time later consternation reigned and explanations were in order. Pupils spotted the bottle in the waste basket of the first grade teacher.

Mormon Missionary to Mexico New Job for Ara O. Call, Wife

Western Condensing Employee for 17 Years Heads Monterrey Mission

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Three years of Mormon missionary work in Mexico is the new chosen job of Ara O. Call, employee for 17 years of Western Condensing Co. and manager of product control for the firm since 1956.

Call is the new president of the northern Mexico mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints (Mormon). The mission is located in Monterrey, capital city of the state of Nuevo Leon, Mexico. His work will be administrative and supervisory, with jurisdiction over approximately a third of Mexico. He will supervise up to 200 volunteer missionaries and be responsible for membership work in the area.

The mission presidency pays no salary, but a family home and expenses are furnished to Call by the church. He received his call from an apostle of the church while he was making plans to accept a position in Argentina with the international division of Foremost Dairies, Inc., parent firm of Western Condensing Co.

Born in Mexico

Missionary work is not new to the Call family. For Mr. and Mrs. Call this is a return to Mexico where they both spent their childhood through high school. Both were born to American parents in Mormon colonies in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico. They were educated in church schools there and both speak Spanish fluently.

Mr. Call's father was a Mormon bishop in Chihuahua. He knew Gen. John Pershing well, meeting him during the U. S. Army punitive expedition to search out Mexican revolutionist Pancho Villa. The Mormon families had to leave Mexico several times during the revolution.

The Call's son, Ronald, presently is in England as a missionary and their older son, Ara Jr., returned last August from a 2½-year mission in Germany.

Young Ara now is studying physical chemistry at Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah. Another son, Duane, now with the family, also is a student at Brigham Young. The couple also has three daughters, Mrs. Rey L. Barnes, Logan, Utah; Julia, who will live with her married sister in the fall to attend high school in Logan, and Kathy, 8, who will attend school in Mexico.

Family in Utah

The entire Call family is in Utah at the present time. Mr. Call will attend a two-week seminary of all mission presidents throughout the world from June 26 to July 7 at Salt Lake City before going to Mexico.

He came to Appleton in April of 1944 direct from graduate work at the University of Wisconsin in biochemistry and the dairy industry. He started with Western in the research department, but soon became manager of the control laboratories. In 1955 he was made manager of technical services and became manager of product control the next year.

His education included two years at Brigham Young University, three years at Iowa State University from which he received his bachelor of science degree, a year at Utah State and two years at the University of Wisconsin, where he earned his master's degree.

He has been active in church work since coming to Wisconsin, serving first in Madison and later serving as president of the Appleton branch. He was counselor to the president of the Wisconsin district for several years. When the district was divided in 1952, he became president of the new South Wisconsin district, the position he held until March, 1960. Since then, Call has been on the mission board of the Northern States Mission with headquarters in Chicago.

Community Work

Both Mr. and Mrs. Call have been active in other community interests besides church work during their residence in Appleton. They have been connected with the teen-age "We Believe" code since the project began with the Roosevelt Parent-Teachers Association. Mr. Call served as chairman of the project this past year. The Appleton PTA Council recently honored the couple for their 17 years of work by presenting them with an honorary life membership to the Wisconsin Congress of parents and teachers.

Mr. Call has been active in the Appleton Lion's Club, serving as second vice president in 1959, and was president of the Outagamie County Health Council.

Mrs. Call formerly was an active member of the Appleton League of Women Voters and was interested in Girl Scout work, serving as a member of the Fox River Area Girl Scout Council.

These Members of the Ara O. Call family, formely of 911 E. Hancock St., soon will be living in Monterrey, Mexico, where Mr. Call will take over the presidency for three years of the northern Mexico Mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Later-Day Saints. From the left are Kathryn, 8, Mr. and Mrs. Call, and Julia, 15. Kathryn will attend school in Mexico, but Julia will return to the States in the fall to live with her married sister, Mrs. Rey L. Barnes, Logan, Utah, and go to high school in that city.

Crying Out Loud

Congressman Gets OK For Weekend Fishing

BY WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—It took a lot of pleading and a little "crying" in the House Tuesday for Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, R-Mich., 85, to get an okay for a weekend fishing trip.

The No. 1 congressional fisherman directed his entreaties to Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, who had objected to a request by the leaders to start debate today on a housing bill. The request required unanimous consent. Without its approval, the House faced the dire prospect of a Saturday session.

Vote Together

Gross and Hoffman, who almost always vote together and have a reputation for upsetting the well-laid plans of the Democratic and Republican leaders, call themselves "the only members of our party."

"We are the party of good government and economy," they explain.

Hoffman asked Gross not to object to the housing bill request. He said he is "an old man" and, "It's a question of health; I want to conserve my energy."

"You ought to have a little consideration for me. How about it?" Hoffman begged.

Know Reasons

Gross wanted to know the reason behind Hoffman's plea.

Well, Hoffman said, Gross is a leading champion of economy and could save some money by not forcing a weekend session and its accompanying Congressional Record printing costs.

"Does the gentleman want to go fishing?" Gross inquired.

"Yes, I want to go fishing," Hoffman conceded.

"Has it been wet enough for the night crawlers (fishing worms) to come to the surface?" Gross asked.

Hoffman keeps a supply of night crawlers in his office.

Gross finally gave in and withdrew his objection "in view of the impassioned plea made by the gentleman from Michigan."

"You mean my crying," Hoffman said.

Manufacturers Trying to Win Buyer's Faith

Making Guarantees Stronger, Products Better in Attempt

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer complaints about appliances and other purchases that seem to go haywire much too soon are being countered today on two fronts.

Many manufacturers are making their warranties or guarantees stronger and for longer terms.

And many say they are now using parts that are simpler, cleaner and easier to operate.

Often the two approaches are combined as manufacturers seek to win back shaken consumer confidence. They hope that the all too frequent breakdown may rapidly and happily be relegated to the past.

Into the Future

Some designers look further into the future and predict that the space age with its demands for precision will foster new techniques and methods which can be applied to consumer goods.

The longer or stronger warranty is being applied to autos, shirts, bowling balls, plastic dinnerware, women's hosiery, and a host of appliances.

Also working for the consumer are some public and private agencies.

The Federal Trade Commission says it is monitoring ads carrying guarantee statements, watching for fraudulent claims.

The Better Business Bureau warns consumers to read the fine print. Its advice: Get the guarantee in writing, get the specifics, find out who stands behind the warranty, be sure what is guaranteed and for how long, and find out all the conditions.

Guaranteed What?

The guarantee has been on the marketing scene for a long time. Some were pretty doubtful—as the 1887 ad which said the product was "guaranteed to cure drunkenness; endorsed by everybody but saloon keepers." That was in the carefree days before the government started checking up.

The guarantee acquired status about the time Montgomery Ward built a business on the statement, "Guaranteed Satisfaction or Your Money Back." In 1933 Zippo came out with a "guaranteed for life" statement, and fixes free about 200,000 lighters a year to back it up.

Auto warranties go back nearly 50 years. Ford extended its long established 90 days or 4,000 miles guarantee to one year or 12,000 miles on its 1961 models and other car makers offer similar warranties. Perhaps the longest is the three-year service warranty on the Rolls-Royce.

Extended or new warranties reported in a survey by Lippincott & Margulies, Inc., include: Motorola's car radio guarantee for one year, up from 90 days; Hamilton Beach's five-year guarantee on all its products, including electric blankets; Bulova radios with a one year guarantee.

Extended Warrantees

Hotpoint extended to 15 years its guarantee on water heaters, formerly for 10 years. Wepco has a 10-year warranty on aluminum siding. Bissell keeps its one year warranty for Sweep Master and Scrub Master, but has added a four year one on the motor.

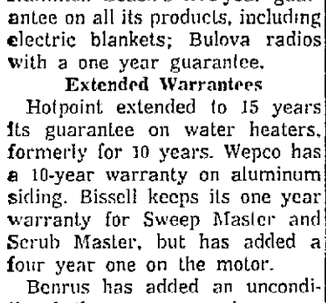

Benrus has added an unconditional three year repair or replacement guarantee on its watches. Polaroid's new Electric Eye camera carries a two year guarantee. B. F. Goodrich has added a tire guarantee against road hazards. And Easy Laundry Appliance division of Murray Corporation is out with a lifetime warranty on transmission parts in domestic washers.

Still Plugged

IDABEL, OKLA. —(AP)— Four years ago Ira Banta went with officers to smash an illicit whisky still. They shot the barrels full of holes.

Recently he went with them again on the same mission. They found the same barrels, with the holes plugged.

Like Father?

Son of Orval Faubus Running for Office

HUNTSVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Farrell Faubus, 22, politically a carbon copy of his controversial father, Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus, is diving into politics at the grass roots.

Young Faubus, a first-year law student at the University of Arkansas, is the only candidate for state representative from Madison County in a June 27 special election.

He filed 30 minutes before the Saturday noon deadline. There could be a write-in candidate, but Farrell doesn't expect one.

"But I'm going to campaign just as if I had an opponent," said the vigorous, husky young man.

The governor said he had neither encouraged nor discouraged his son. "But he's wanted to go into it," Faubus said, "and he might as well get his feet wet."

Farrell was born in mountainous Madison County (pop. 9,700) in northwest Arkansas and has lived here all his life. He was a star tackle on the Huntsville High School football team and has worked as an advance publicity man in all four of his father's successful gubernatorial campaigns.

Welcomes Incoming Students With Song

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP) — New students seldom know quite what to expect when the president of Muskingum College, Dr. Robert N. Montgomery, declares he is ready to sing a solo.

The annual event takes place during the week first-year students arrive to begin college life, and it's designed to put them at ease. After a few deceptive classical notes by the pianist, Montgomery launches into "Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey."

Your Money's Worth

New Stabilizer Sought in Taxes

BY SYLVIA PORTER

We have had four recessions since World War II, each fairly mild, relatively short and comparatively painless to the vast majority of Americans. The key reason this has been so is that in the last three decades we have built into our economic society "automatic stabilizers" which begin to cushion a business decline almost from the week it starts.

Porter

Unemployment insurance is one obvious stabilizer. Social Security is a second stabilizer which needs no elaborate explanation.

Budget Stablizer

A third is our huge Federal budget, which is a stabilizing force because as business slows the Treasury's tax take dwindles, a deficit automatically appears in the budget and as a result the Government pours billions more into the business stream than it takes out and thereby helps to create jobs, pad paychecks. The built-in flexibility of our Federal budget is estimated to have offset one-third to two-fifths of our business declines in the postwar period—making it an impressive anti-recession weapon by any standard.

Now we are on the threshold of another break-through toward the conquest of depressions in the form of automatically flexible tax rates.

In simplest words, what would happen if a tax weapon were added to our anti-recession arsenal is that at the first clear signal of a business downturn there would be an automatic cut in the tax rate on the first bracket of our personal incomes. This tax cut would pour money into the hands of millions who would spend it immediately and who thus would give our economy a cash shot-in-the-arm at a crucial moment.

Major Recommendation

A flexible tax rate responding to short-run ups and downs in our economy is a major recommendation of the Commission on Money and Credit and in its monumental report on our financial structure, released yesterday, the Commission outlines the proposal at length.

This is immensely important.

All my informed instincts tell me that here will be the next breakthrough in control of depressions and inflations. Britain's Conservative Government is studying legislation along these lines. Leading economists in our country have been quietly discussing the idea for months. Key policy-makers in Congress informed in advance of the Money Commission's recommendation, indicated intense interest.

Here, in briefest summary, is how the weapon would work.

Conditions Imposed

Congress would give the President limited and conditional power to make temporary adjustments in the first-bracket rate of the personal income tax—the conditions to be the following:

The President could use the power only after he had issued a statement demonstrating that our economy was threatened by an undesirable downswing or an undesirable inflationary upspiral.

The range of adjustment would be limited to 5 per cent upward or downward—meaning one - quarter of the present 20 per cent tax rate.

The duration of the adjustment would be restricted to six months, subject to renewal on condition the President went through the same process—unless Congress acted sooner to extend or end the change.

Congressional Veto

Congress would retain the power to veto the adjustment and to achieve this, the President would have to propose the tax adjustment 60 days in advance of the effective rate, during which time Congress could decide to disapprove the move.

If this law were enacted, it would mean that as soon as accepted economic indicators flashed a recession warning, a tax cut would swell the total of funds in the pockets of America's families. (The rate would be restored at a specified point in an upswing.)

This would, mind you, have nothing to do with basic changes in our tax structure. It would be strictly an automatic adjustment in the tax rate for short-run purposes of helping to fight recessions or curb inflations. It could be a magnificent addition to our arsenal.

Movie Stars Give Hints on Trip to Europe

BY BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Going to Europe this summer?

If you are among the 700,000 fortunate Americans who are doing so, you'll want some advice to pack along with your drip-dries and wash-and-wears. Few travelers are more experienced than movie stars. And though you may not be traveling in movie-star style, you might want to listen to some advice to European tourists I have gleaned.

Anne Baxter: "Be sure to take a half-day's trip from Paris to Chartres. And pick a clear day so you can see the sun shining through the cathedral windows. There's a restaurant nearby where the lunch is magnificent. Charles Laughton and I agree that Chartres is our favorite spot on this earth."

Drive Through Continues

Lana Turner: "Above all, don't just take the airplane through Europe. Rent a car and drive through the countries, especially from Paris to Rome and on down to Sorrento. And don't hang out in the big hotels and famous restaurants; all you'll see is Americans, if you do."

Debbie Reynolds: "Just remember you're a guest in their (the Europeans') house. Act accordingly. I've seen too many Americans who go to Europe and shout at each other down the streets and get mad because the shop people can't speak English."

Travel Light

Bob Hope: "Travel light. Leave plenty of space in your bags for all the junk you're going to bring back with you. I had so much overweight coming back that I could have saved money by chartering the Queen Mary."

Thus armed, I am embarking on a tour of the Continent. A show biz reporter has to keep on the move these days.

I'll be sending reports on filming in Stockholm, Munich, London, Amsterdam, Paris, Rome and points in between. It's tough work, but I'll try to bear up, especially now that I have such good advice.

Militant Right Fights Any, All Movements Toward Collectivism

Moderate Conservative Thinks Opponents Err, Not Treasonably

BY JULES LOH

It takes one distinct step, according to students of America's right wing, to cross the chasm which separates rock-ribbed conservatives, like Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, from blood-redemption militants, like Robert Welch of the Birch Society.

Third of Series

AP Wirephoto

Robert Welch

Yale sociologist L. M. Lipset says in his view the difference is not so much one of degree as of ideology.

"The extremist" says Lipset, "questions the patriotism of anyone whose actions fall within the scope of what he considers the road toward collectivism.

"The more moderate conservative, on the other hand, may feel just as strongly that a certain act would be a step along the same road, but he takes the view the man who did it simply is in error, or perhaps even foolish or naive —but not a traitor."

'Liberalism Is Treason'

In his book, "The Politician," Welch described former Presidents Eisenhower and Roosevelt plus Gen George C Marshall and others as Communists or traitors; and the activist publication "Right" calls upon its readers to "fearlessly proclaim to the world that liberalism is treason"

Other militants, such as Texas broadcasters and former FBI agent Dan Smoot, often take the less extreme position of labeling persons as "Communist dupes" rather than out and out traitors

"Practically all influential liberals in America," say Smoot "want the same kind of society that Communists are after" — an assertion practically all influential liberals would reject.

Smoot contends that "under liberal leadership our national effort to resist the spread of Communism is . . . self contradictory," besides being "aimless and confused"

Part of this confusion results, from their opponents' refusal to agree that Communism's greatest threat is through internal conspiracy, not external conquests.

'Right in Our Midst'

Welch laments:

"Although our danger remains almost entirely internal, from Communist influences right in our midst and treason right in our government, the American people are being persuaded that our danger is from the outside, from Russian military superiority"

Right-wing activists frequently feel federal programs to fight Communism abroad — foreign aid, NATO-type treaties and the like — are a sorry waste of time, effort and tax money.

Or worse, Former Ambassador Spruille Braden said in a speech to the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies. "Truly, foreign aid is a treacherous if not a treasonous adventure"

But should the national effort to thwart Communism involve attempts to negotiate with the Soviets, whether at Geneva or the U.N. or the summit, some rightists regard the moves not only as foolhardy (as others may also feel) but as downright insane.

Mental Illness?

Even to suppose we could negotiate with the Reds, says Dr Frederick Charles Schwarz, director of the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade, shows "a failure to understand Communism so completely that it approaches mental illness."

Schwarz, an energetic, Australian-born physician, psychiatrist and Baptist lay preacher, travels the country putting on weeklong "Anti-Communist schools"

The schools use the shock approach in unveiling "right here before your own eyes" the "demonic brutality" of Communism and its steady erosion of "the moral fiber of America"

To do this he puts together a smooth presentation of film strips, tape recordings and speeches by himself and members of his faculty, plus such outside recruits as former FBI undercover agent Herbert Philbrick.

Schwarz sounds the keynote for the course

"Communism is a disease that will probably kill more Americans in the next 10 years than cancer, tuberculosis and heart disease . . .

"We learn that the Communists plan to put to death 50 million people, more or less" in the United States. He himself, he says, is marked for liquidation.

Organize Cells

"Anyone who is not startled and profoundly alarmed by these figures," he declares, "is evidently free from the responsibilities of rational comprehension."

Schwarz suggests organizing cells, one of several well tested Communist methods right-wing militants have borrowed to turn against their foes.

Others, as outlined in the Birch Society's Blue Book, include front groups, pressure tactics, heckling speakers with "mean and dirty" questions, midnight telephone harassment, letter writing campaigns, infiltrating the PTA and other groups, creating a demand for approved authors, commentators, books and magazines.

Except for top leaders, membership rolls are kept secret in the Birch Society (lest Birchers "be subject to persecution and attack").

Although Welch is the sole boss and author of most of the tracts, the society also has a panel of endorsers in various states, and a council whose main function seems to be to pick a successor to the founder "if and when" as he puts it "an accident, 'suicide' or anything sufficiently fatal is arranged for me by the Communists."

The council includes former Ambassador Spruille Braden, former Notre Dame Law Dean Clarence Manion, former Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews and other conservatives including three former presidents of the National Association of Manufacturers, a Roman Catholic editor-priest and several physicians.

The leadership of many right-wing groups frequently overlaps.

For instance, Welch and at least five other Birch leaders are sponsors of the Manion Forum; Manion is a Birch director; Schwarz is a Manion Forum contributor

From one another they gain support in efforts to impeach the chief Justice (Welch), pull out of the U. N. (Manion), fight progressive education (Smoot), stop foreign aid (Braden), and oppose the Peace Corps (Daughters of the American Revolution, by a vote of 2,082 to 1).

Anything that isn't fundamentally American — which in the view of some on the outermost tier of the right wing includes abstract art, jazz music and water fluoridation — is suspected of being of Communist origin

The Small Business Review urges the president 'Do not put anybody in an official position unless his parents were naturalized United States citizens before he was born, and not less than second generation if possible."

How Effective?

Another group, the American Action Council, recommends a law restricting public office to "American born Christians"

It is difficult to assess how effective the militants are or to measure their influence

Sociologist Lipset feels "their effect on the body politic as a whole is next to nil" But the tendency of militants to regard anyone who advocates social legislation or any other left-of-center program as an unwitting (or witting) tool of the Communists does, Lipset believes, have some consequences

"In a medium-sized town where the typical rightist exercises considerable influence" he said, "any person who advocates what he conceives to be socialistic ideas —a teacher, librarian, city councilman — often is subjected to harassment which at times is pretty severe."

Activists also contribute money, ring doorbells and write letters on behalf of conservative political candidates who, though not considered an extremist by the electorate, is deemed at least "safe" by the militant

Identify City in Addition Puzzle, Win 12 Story Books

BY CAPPY DICK

Can you discover the name of the city represented by the 12 little drawings in today's picture-addition puzzle?

If you can, you have a good chance to win two prizes — a Magic Pencil as a local prize and the 12-volume Encyclopaedia Britannica "Great Books for Children" as a national prize. Five Magic Pencils will be given away as local prizes to boys and girls of the Fox Cities area. The contest entries of these local winners will then automatically compete for the "Great Books for Children,' five sets of which will be awarded to the boys and girls whose entries are judged to be the best from all cities where this column is published

The contest judges, whose decisions will be final, will select all winning entries on the basis of correct solutions plus originality in preparation.

To solve the puzzle and discover the 12-letter city you must decide what the name of each object in the picture is, then take the first letter of each name and add them all together. They will spell the city's name Here's a clue. The third picture in the drawing is of a needle Therefore, "N" is the third letter of the name.

Clip out the picture, paste it on paper or a postal card, print the deciphered city beneath it and also print your name, age and address. Decorate your entry in any way you consider neat and original Address it to Cappy Dick's Midweek Contest at the Post-Crescent. Judge Orders Hedy LaMarr to Appear in Court

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Judge Bert Trunks has actress Hedy LaMarr under orders today to report to his court Thursday for a hearing on her former husband's plea for an injunction.

Oilman Howard Lee, divorced from the actress last year, is now married to Gene Tierney, also of the films. He asked for a court order to prevent Miss LaMarr from taking depositions which he said would be illegal "fishing expeditions" into his private affairs.

Lee contended all issues were settled when he obtained an uncontested divorce from Miss LaMarr on April 22, 1960. The actress got a fourth interest in leases and royalties of two of Lee's oil companies plus $400 a month for 125 months.

Menasha Receives Gift of New Masonry Pavilion for Smith Park

Gilbert Paper Foundation Gives Funds

MENASHA — Smith Park here will have a new masonry pavilion, a gift of the Gilbert Paper Foundation, Inc., accepted last night by the common council.

The pavilion project has been pending several months. Complete building plans were approved recently by the foundation.

Mayor's Statement

Mayor John Klein, in a written statement, hailed the gift.

"On this occasion I would like to extend my own personal thanks and that of the city to a benefactor. It is only occasionally that an individual or a group does something civic with so much enthusiasm.

"We have a beautiful park on hand in Menasha called Smith Park. Because of the generosity and long-range thinking of the Gilbert Paper Foundation Inc., Smith Park is going to have a 'face lifting.'

"It is one of the most beautiful parks in the state of Wisconsin. The only things detracting from the beauty are the present pavilion, kitchen and rest rooms. This is to be changed by the generous civic plan advanced by Mr. Ted Gilbert, Mr. William Gilbert and Mr. Art Haselow, representing the Gilbert Paper Foundation.

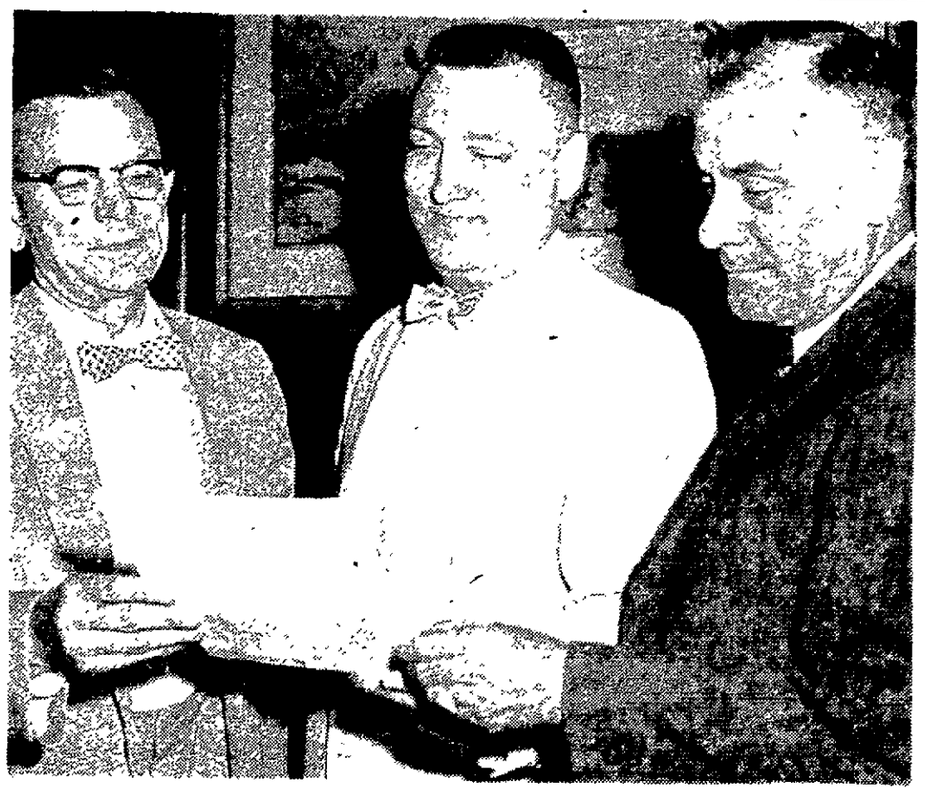

Present Buildings

"The present three buildings will be removed upon the completion of a modern building, which will improve and expand the existing facilities.

"Construction will begin this week and should be completed by Sept. 1. The building has been designed by R. E. Kelly, designer and associate of McMahon Engineering Co. of Menasha.

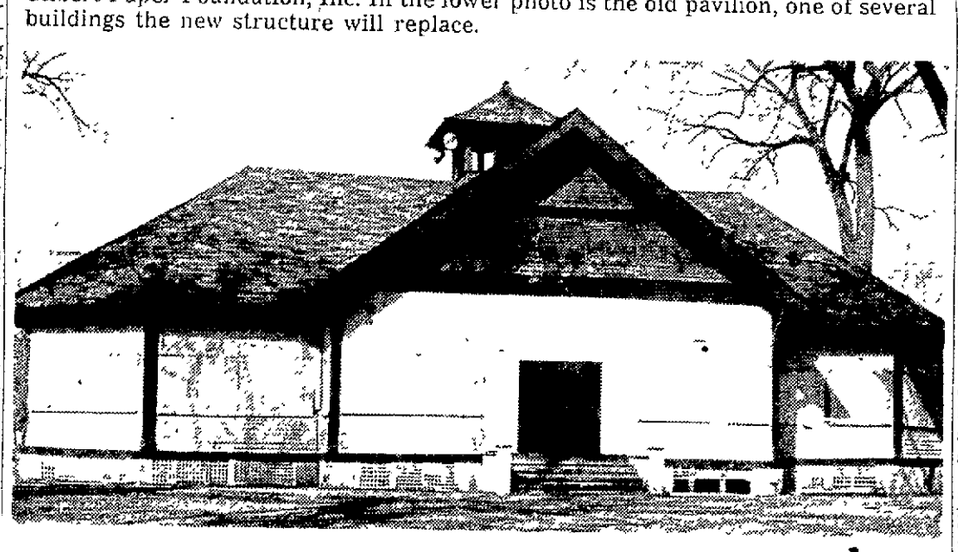

"Entire cost of the project is

Beer Drinking Age Set at 21 in Park

Little Chute Village Board Sets New Rules Because of Vandalism

LITTLE CHUTE — An ordinance prohibiting persons under 21 from drinking beer in Doyle Park was passed unanimously by the village board Tuesday night.

Provisions read that persons under 21, however, will be allowed to drink beer if they are accompanied by their parents or if they purchase the beer from a licensed concessionaire at the park. (There is no permanent concessionaire in the park.)

The ordinance also prohibits bringing beer in bottles into the park at any time. Persons in the park after 9 p. m. with beer must have a permit signed by a member of the police department.

Village Resident

The ordinance committee explained that the permits will be issued only for groups that will be in the park after 9 p. m. The applicant must be a resident of the village and names of all those in the party must be included when a permit is requested.

Trustees said the age limit was set at 21 because of vandalism that has occurred at the park. It was felt that older groups would have more respect for the grounds and facilities.

Persons issued a permit allowing them to be in the park with beer after 9 p. m. also will be responsible for cleaning up the area they use, according to the ordinance.

A fine of not less than $5 or more than $25 will be assessed those violating the ordinance, the first of its kind in the village.

Nelson Signs Budget Bill For Biennium

Vetoes Cuts on Administration, Employment Funds

MADISON (AP) — The 1961-63 biennium executive budget bill for Wisconsin was signed into law today by Gov. Gaylord Nelson after he vetoed sections applying to the Department of Administration and the Employment Practices Division in the Industrial Commission.

When it approved the budget measure, the Republican controlled Legislature reduced requests for the department of administration and practices division to amounts less than those under which they operated in the 1959-61 biennium.

Effect of Nelson's veto of the new appropriations will be to give the agencies the same amounts as those under which they operated in 1959-61—providing the governor's vetoes are upheld.

Budget Trimmed

The Democratic chief executive had recommended a $503 million executive budget. The Legislature trimmed it to $493.6 million.

Nelson termed the Department of Administration cut "unrealistic, especially considering the fact that increases in spending and personnel authorized for other state agencies will mean an additional work load for the department."

The Department of Administration will have to absorb the additional workload in the next biennium without an increase in operating funds, Nelson declared.

Not Justified

Noting that the Legislature had eliminated two employes in the Fair Employment Practices Division, authorized in 1959, Nelson stated:

"This reduction in staff is not justified at a time when responsibilities have been broadened and when increased efforts are required to assure equality of opportunity for all Wisconsin citizens."

Check Downspouts On Neenah Homes

NEENAH — City building inspector Carlton Williams announced today that Neenah homes will be checked again for compliance with the downspout ordinance.

Checks will be made of residences found to be in violation of the ordinance during a first inspection last fall.

Menasha Attorney Files Brief With Court on Gay 90's

Richard Steffens to Defend City Against Injunction on License

MENASHA — "This is the first time in the state of Wisconsin that 10 individual aldermen not only are named defendants but also accused of crime," City Atty. Richard J. Steffens commented Tuesday to the common council.

Steffens

He was referring to the temporary injunction secured Friday by Kenneth Schavet against Mayor John Klein and the council to force the city to issue Class B beer and liquor tavern licenses to the Gay 90's tavern, 10 Tayco St. Schavet claims a conspiracy blocked the licenses.

Steffens gave the aldermen copies of the reply brief to be filed today with Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane, who issued the injunction. Steffens told the council "I look forward to getting Mr. Schavet on the witness stand and asking him to name the aldermen who conspired. There will be no compromise when anyone calls my client a crook."

Schavet, owner of the tavern building, contends he was arbitrarily, unjustly and capriciously denied the licenses after the council refused to issue new licenses to his tenants, Wayne and Betty Jane Wolf.

Outlines Steps

Steffens' reply brief outlined the steps taken by the council and its health and license committee in examining all tavern license applications this year and held that the council seldom had spent more time on any issue than the Gay 90's licenses.

The licenses, under the quota system, were subsequently issued to Lenz-Gazecki Post 152, American Legion. Schavet's complaint cites Steffens' service, until June 6, as Legion post commander.

The reply tells the court that Wolf was unfit to receive new licenses because of a past police record and for nonpayment of bills, and that police had been called to quell fights there five times.

Steffens stated he and City Clerk Harry Kind, who serves as Legion post finance officer, never

State Rules Firing Not for Misconduct

Teamster-Elm Tree Dispute Goes to New Appeal by Company

The Wisconsin State Employment Service, unemployment compensation department has ruled that drivers striking against Elm Tree Bakery were not discharged for misconduct.

The ruling means that the men are eligible for unemployment benefits.

The company has filed an appeal. Elm Tree President Ben Pfefferle said today the appeal claims the drivers "engaged in misconduct detrimental to the employer, resulting in their discharge."

Teamster officials said they expected the appeal and described it as a delaying tactic resulting in a hardship on the striking drivers. They added that the ruling indicated clearly that the men were discharged and did not quit.

15 Drivers Off

Fifteen Elm Tree drivers were laid off for insubordination May 16, joined the teamsters the next day and were described as "discharged" the next day by Pfefferle. The dispute stemmed from a sales meeting which the drivers, all in the long-haul department, declined to attend. At issue also, from later statements, were wage rates and commissions.

The Teamsters filed unfair labor practices after the men joined and a preliminary hearing by an examiner has been held.

One of the drivers returned to work and a light bulb filled with paint was tossed at his house June 9, two days after he went back to the bakery.

The Teamsters have offered a $25 reward for information leading to the identification of whoever tossed the paint.

Teamster pickets have appeared at various retail stores handling Elm Tree products in Appleton, Milwaukee and Waukesha since the strike began.

Suspect Economic Pressure Coming From Car Dealers

GREEN BAY (AP) — The Brown County Board of Supervisors has asked the attorney general's office Tuesday to take a look at the "economic pressure" some city automobile dealers allegedly are exerting to keep their competition out of the local auto show.

Brown County Arena manager John Holloway complained to the board Tuesday that three unnamed city dealers want the January auto show in the Arena limited to city dealers, because some of the suburban auto dealers can sell cars for less money than their city cousins and thus may attract some city buyers.

The board took formal note, passing a resolution asking for an inquiry.

Enrollment Rises for OSC Summer Session

OSHKOSH — Late registrations for the 1961 summer session at Oshkosh State College have raised the enrollment figure to 1,377.

The 1961 total is 162 students above the previous high of 1,213 students set in the summer of 1959.

Lakeview Okays Unified District

School Becomes First Rural Unit to Join With Neenah

NEENAH — The Lakeview best serving a combine rural-city School Board has endorsed a unified school district with the City of Neenah.

The Neenah Board of Education and the Neenah-Menasha League of Women Voters officially took the same stand favoring unification June 1.

Six reasons were cited by the Lakeview board for its stand. They are:

Six Reasons

1. An original study discarded the idea of an independent high school district for lack of complete curriculum, teacher facilities taxed to a maximum and cost very questionable.

2. Through the growth of Neenah and adjoining territory, school problems via a unified system will be less involved and complex.

3. A unified system can be more effectively and efficiently administered by one fiscally independent policy making body.

4. Reorganization can be accomplished without major changes in present administrative procedures.

Strengthen Bond

5 Affiliation with Neenah under a unified district will strengthen the social, educational and economic bonds between all people of the city and rural area.

6. The unified district has been in existence since the last legislature as a result of six or seven years study for the purpose of educational situation.

John Murphy, Spring Road School District, who has been a spokesman for the rural districts, said he did not think the Lakeview District's action would influence decisions of the other districts.

The Spring Road school board will be meeting on this issue early in July. Members of the board still are divided on whether to support a unified district or an independent district, Murphy said.

Henry Bickerstaff, chairman of a committee studying the possibility of setting up an independent high school system, said Lakeview School board's action would not have any effect on his committee.

He said his committee would be holding its final meeting next Tuesday and would be disbanded, as originally planned, without making any recommendations.

This is equal to $3.34 a share on 9,115,535 common shares, as against $3.44 on 9,102,595 a year ago (adjusted to give effect to the 2 per cent stock dividend paid April 17). The previously reported estimate had indicated earnings of $3.28 a share for 1960-61.

MADISON (AP)— The largest construction project ever undertaken by the state of Wisconsin gets underway in Madison this week.

Contracts were signed Tuesday for the $12.7 million Hill Farm State Office building development on the city's west side. There will be five buildings expected to be completed by 1964.

Trucks Collide On Highway 41

OSHKOSH — Two semi-trailer trucks were damaged in a line of traffic accident on Highway 41 in the Town of Oshkosh at 7 a.m. today.

State traffic police said that a semi-trailer driven by Leonard J. Kasper, 43, Chicago, collided with the left rear of a semi-trailer driven by Dennis L. Juhlke, 32, Merrill, Wis., as both trucks were headed north.

Kasper said his brakes failed momentarily as he began to pass the other truck.

Keep Park Beautiful

Menasha Industry's Gift Recalls Earlier Donations

MENASHA—A Menasha industry has renewed the efforts of a late industrialist to insure that the city has a beautiful urban haven—Smith Park.

The 20-acre park, bounded by Nicolet Boulevard and Park, Keyes and Cleveland Streets, was donated in 1897 by Elisha D. Smith, founder and long - time president of Menasha Wooden Ware Corp. Smith also was benefactor of the city's public library, which bears his name and was given to the city the year after the park donation.

Gilbert Paper Foundation, Inc., founded in October 1952, has now donated a masonry pavilion for Smith Park. The building will replace three antiquated wood structures, a pavilion, a kitchen and a comfort station.

Gilbert Firm

Gilbert Paper Co. was founded in April 1887 by the late William Gilbert. A grandson, Theodore M. Gilbert, was president of the local firm until last year, when it was purchased by Mead Corp. of Dayton, Ohio. The company makes rag content paper.

The Gilbert foundation's stated purposes when it was incorporated, were to maintain and support charitable, scientific, literary or educational institutions, promote education and scientific research for care of sick, aged or helpless and to provide recreation for all classes.

Famed Architect

The park's original landscaping was done by Olaf Benson of Chicago, a nationally recognized landscape architect, whose services also were financed by Smith. Benson executed construction of an amphitheater, preservation of three Indian burial mounds, development of swimming and dock facilities and installation of recreational apparatus.

The park's present appearance is largely due to efforts of Park Supt. Harry Kargus and his crew, who give great care each spring to the flower beds, among the largest and most beautiful in Wisconsin.

On July 4, 1928, Menasha citizens dedicated the Memorial Building, standing north of Keyes street at the banks of the river, to the Menasha veterans of World War I. "The Mem," as it is called locally, was financed by popular subscriptions. It houses park and recreation department offices, hobby and crafts programs and is the scene of "Blue Inn" dances.

Speaks at Oshkosh

Ex-Delinquent Says Time in Reform School Good for Him

OSHKOSH — An All-American University of Wisconsin boxer who sold more than $1 million of life insurance in a year told a group of about 500 State Corrections Department personnel that the best thing that happened to him was when he was sentenced to the Wisconsin School for Boys at Waukesha.

Robert Hinds, Madison, spoke at Tuesday noon's session of the fifth biennial conference of the Wisconsin Corrections Services.

He had just turned 12 when he began serving 15 months at the state boys school for breaking and entering. The sentence took him from an environment that was not too favorable, he said.

Too many times you see the bad results coming from the state institutions and no one gives credit for the good things done because that is probably what is expected, Hinds declared as he called for more publicity to be given to the good results and not always criticism of the bad.

Speaks Humorously

Speaking humorously with the phraseology of the boxer and the juvenile delinquent, which he said he was, Hinds declared that no one is more important than every single person who works in an institution. Each of them, whether he be the gardener or the superintendent, should have a deep understanding of and a sensitivity about the human being.

There must be firmness and consistency and not just the "goody-goody" atmosphere, he continued. He called also for more experimentation in the field of corrections, adding that the state has come a long way.

AP Wirephoto

Robert Hinds, Left, former All-American boxer at the University of Wisconsin, told more than 400 members of the state department of welfare corrections division of his life in the Waukesha School for Boys, where he was sent as a teen-ager. He is shown here with Sanger Powers, corrections division director, at the division's biennial conference in Oshkosh.

He told of his practice teaching while a University of Wisconsin student and of his being given a group of problem boys, "the 10 most unwanted persons in the school system." Since reading "Ivanhoe" and Shakespeare were the meaningless to them, he started them reading "Life in Sing Sing" and in designing and writing essays about cars.

He said he tried to give them something practical and create true life situations for them. Those boys took an interest in what they were doing and would come early and stay after school for his class, Hinds cited. Before that, they were not interested in school.

The speaker commented he had been successful in getting to college and in business because people helped him all along the way, adding that is important to those who get intro trouble.

Orientation, Programming Sessions Begin

Oshkosh State to Hold Meetings For New Students

OSHKOSH — The first of five one-day orientation and programming sessions scheduled at Oshkosh State College this summer for new students will be held Thursday.

All new freshmen and transfer students are required to attend an orientation session. Sessions are scheduled for June 22 and 29, July 6 and 20, and Aug. 2. Parents are encouraged to attend the orientation period along with sons and daughters.

Some 135 new students and 160 parents have indicated that they will attend the first session. During the summer, about 1,000 new students are expected to report for orientation.

During the one-day visits to the campus, new students will write a series of guidance tests, become acquainted with various aspects of the college, and will meet their academic advisers to plan their fall schedule of courses.

The tests will be helpful to the students in planning their programs.

Mathematics tests will determine the level of mathematics at which a new student will be able to begin in the fall.

English department tests will be given to the students in order to diagnose strengths and weaknesses of the new student in the understanding and use of the English language.

Students will be introduced to various college deans who will explain the services available through their respective offices. Students also will become acquainted with the college library.

Students interested in extracurricular activities, such as athletics, music and speech, will have time to meet with representatives of the departments having special interests in these areas.

The orientation days are scheduled to begin at 7:30 a.m., and end at 2:30 p.m. with a coffee and punch hour for new students, their parents, and members of the faculty.

Post Office to Replace Walks, Improve Service

KAUKAUNA — Work has started on replacing and widening of the sidewalk in front of the post office to permit installation of drive-up mail deposit boxes, according to Robert Grogan, postmaster.

Two boxes will be installed when the walk is completed, one for local and the other for out-of-city mail. At a future date, similar work may be carried out on the opposite side of the street, according to Grogan.

Purpose of these boxes is a safety measure as the street is probably the most heavily traveled in the city and often drivers are forced to cross in the middle of the block during periods of heavy traffic the hazard of opening car doors into the face of traffic will be eliminated.

Man Falls Asleep At Wheel, Gets Severe Head Cut

Vernon A. Riehl, 23, route 2, Black Creek, lost control of a car and was carried into a ditch and then into a culvert on State 96, 1½ miles north of County Trunk S, late Monday. He suffered a severe head cut.

Riehl told Outagamie County police he thought he fell asleep. Riehl lost control when he tried to drive out of the ditch. The car went 180 feet in the ditch, hit a culvert and rolled 78 feet, police said.

Riehl was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Hortonville Still Without Police Chief

Richard Macomber Quits After Oath; Cites Personal Causes

HORTONVILLE — The village, without a police chief since Ira Dominowski resigned in May, will continue without a chief until July 1.

Richard Macomber, route 1, Appleton, was engaged by the board of trustees as police chief and was given the oath of office June 2 with his duties to start June 5. However, before he went on duty he resigned giving "personal reasons" for his action.

At the last board meeting, Douglas Jones was appointed police chief. He will not go on duty until July 1. Jones has been acting as special policeman since Dominowski and Paul Vance, Dominowski's assistant, left the village's services.

Ask Road Work

The trustees have received three applications for special police and crossing walk guard positions but they tabled action on the appointment of the second member of the police force until the next meeting.

The village has applied to the County Highway Commission for the resurfacing of County Trunk M in the village. The request covers work on N. Nye Street to Oik Street and on S. Nye Street to S. Mill Street.

The board's auditing committee, William Weyers, Leonard Buchman and Emery Dorn, reported the village books audited.

The board of equalization, President Ray Warner, Trustee Lester Thern, Village Clerk James Sommers Jr. and Assessor George Bellile, will meet July 10 to review the assessment rolls.

Counties May Have to Join Pension Plan

Compromise Rule Offered by Solons Backed by Unions

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Legislation to compel the county boards of Outagamie, Shawano, Waupaca and many other counties of the state to put their employes under the state municipal retirement system now appears fairly certain of passage.

The Wisconsin County Boards Association, apparently persuaded that it cannot stop the drive of the organized public employee unions for mandatory state pension coverage for all county government workers, has worked out a state subsidy plan that the unions also are backing.

The compromise measure has won the endorsement of the legislative finance committee, which will probably mean its approval in both houses of the legislature.

Help Counties

The measure would provide subsidies to the low tax base counties, to meet their objections that such pension contributions would be too costly for their budgets.

The special aid feature would apply to eight counties, most of them in the far northern part of the state.

Twenty - seven of the 72 counties of the state, with more than 4,500 workers, remain outside the pension system that has been on a voluntary basis since its inauguration about 20 years ago.

About 8,400 county employees are now under the system, by action of their employing county boards.

Council Discusses Street Resurfacing

Receives Petitions From Kaukauna Citizens for Concrete Roads

KAUKAUNA — Proposed permanent road surfacing projects, along with financing and assessment procedure, was discussed by the common council Tuesday night.

Petitions were read for concrete road on Glenview Avenue, Kenneth Avenue, Sullivan Avenue, Garfield Street, McKinley Street and Grant Street.

Financing of these projects, estimated by the city engineer to cost over $120,000, was referred to the finance committee for study. The board of public works is to continue study on the road program.

Second Ward Ald. Ed Oliva indicated that a permanent road program would reduce maintenance costs on many streets, improve traffic safety and the appearance of the city. He suggested a revolving fund whereby money returned in assessments for street improvements could be returned to the road program for other work. He indicated the city must absorb a larger share of the cost for work on streets, as young properly owners were heavily in debt yet were interested in improving the city.

Mayor Speaks

Mayor Joseph Bayorgeon advised the council to set up a firm and definite road program, let property owners decide whether they prefer blacktop or concrete roads and determine whether the program is to be maintained on a mileage per year or cost per year basis.

Bayorgeon suggested that policies concerning assessments be in ordinance form, thus treating all people the same for future street installation. He advocated a close study of finances, indicating the city would shortly be faced with a bond issue of over $1 million for the schools, and $300,000-$400,000 for the sewage plant, the road program an da new municipal garage.

The mayor also warned that the sewer budget for the year may not be adequate and reminded the council of the $60,000 promised the school board for remodeling the school heating system. In conclusion he praised aldermen for setting up a road program and asked them to continue the program each year.

The council approved assessment plans whereby the city would pay one-third of the concrete pavement installation program on city streets, plus costs of intersections. The same policy was adopted for asphalt surfacing. After 1961 the council approved a policy of assessment for seal coating work.

Interest rates for permanent street surfacing assessments was set at three per cent the first year and five per cent for the balance of an eight-year payment plan. Interest rates on all other assessments, effective Jan. 1, 1962, were set at three per cent the first year and five per cent for the balance of an eight-year payment plan.

Little Chute Residents Ask House Numbers

President Suggests Continuation of Kaukauna System

LITTLE CHUTE — Riverside Drive residents have again requested the village board to assign house numbers on the street in order to facilitate mail service.

Over eight months ago a request was made to the Board but action has been stalled because new village maps are being drawn. When the maps are completed a full house numbering system will be included.

President Paul Kostka said the residents on Riverside Drive have "waited long enough" and asked for a study to be made as to the possibility of continuing the Kaukauna numbering system which ends on the street at the city-village boundary.

Adopt Ordinance

In other action the board adopted an ordinance supplementing the Dutch Elm disease ordinance. The supplement provides that property owners who have a tree between a sidewalk and road must share the cost for removal with the village if the tree is infected. Trees on private property must be removed at the owner's expense.

Purchase of six new picnic tables for Doyle Park was approved. The tables will be bought from the Little Chute Supply Co. for $17.50 each.

Members of the local Explorer Scout Post were given permission to use the village hall garage for a car wash July 3, pending approval by the fire department.

being financed by the Gilbert Paper Foundation."

Park Supt. Harry Kargus for some years has sought to have the three Smith Park buildings replaced, because of their unsightliness, unsafe condition and impossibility of repair.

The new building, to stand immediately south of the wooden pavilion, will include a 41 by 70 foot dance floor, rest rooms, a kitchen with serving counter and sliding curtain and a 12 x 20 foot bandstand. Outside dimensions will be 41 by 103 feet.

Site preparation, to be assumed by the city, includes removal of three trees and extension of sewer and water to the building.

When the new building is finished, the other buildings will be razed and the landscaping completed. Outside walls will be of weathered stone.

'Christian's Walk'

EUB Youth to Camp At Forest Junction

FOREST JUNCTION — Eastern district youth of the Wisconsin conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church will be having a three-day convention at the district camp here from Monday to Wednesday next week.

Theme of the convention is "The Christian's Walk." The Rev. Erling W. Peterson, professor of English at North Central College, Naperville, Ill., is the speaker.

Registration at 9 a.m. Monday will be handled by the Rev. Clarence Knoespel of Lark. A get-acquainted period at 2:30 p.m. Monday is to be led by the Rev. Richard Bonney of Plymouth, who serves as recreation director. The Rev. Herman Siedschlag of Lomira is song leader and will conduct a period of singing for 15 minutes Monday and Tuesday evenings preceding the 8 p.m. services. The evening services are open to adults.

Youth Activity

Youth groups conducting devotions at worship periods Tuesday morning, Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon are from Greenville, Brillion and Van Dyne. The convention business meeting is on the agenda for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday to be conducted by the Rev. Verlin Wandrey of Gillett, district president.

Other district officers are the Rev. Harry Stewart, Van Dyne, vice presidenet; Miss Mary Boettcher, Marinette, secretary; and Miss Renee Schultz, Reedsville, treasurer. Counselors are the Rev. John Bartel of Appleton, the Rev. Willard Schulz of Fond du Lac, and the Rev. Gordon Bender of Oshkosh.

The convention for 40 years had been held simultaneously with an Eastern district camp meeting in an August assembly each year, with the late summer date and is being held from Aug. 18 to 27 this year. In 1960, the youth group reverted to June dates observed by a previous generation prior to 1920, when a small pox epidemic forced a postponement for two months.

Summer Solatice

Today's Day Sun Appears To Stand Still in Sky

WASHINGTON (AP)— Today is the day the sun seems to stand still. No one — not even the space agency — is concerned.

In ages past, this day of the transfixed sun brought fear and wringing of hands.

It's the first day of summer in the northern hemisphere — beginning in the United States at 10:30 a.m. — but if you want to be astronomically correct, you'll refer to it as the "summer solstice."

"Solstice" comes from the Latin "sol," meaning "sun," and "sistere," to stand. Hence, "the day the sun stands still."

Peak of Climb

The name derives from the fact that the day marks the peak of the sun's apparent northward climb in the celestial sphere — and the fact that for the next few days, the noon position of the sun will seem to remain fixed in the heavens.

For centuries it has been known by astronomers that the sun really doesn't go haywire at all, even temporarily. The "solstices" occur not because of any antics of the sun, but because the earth, in its orbit around the sun, is forever tilted 23½ degrees on its axis.

The result is that for six months of the year, the northern hemisphere receives the near-direct rays of the sun, and also enjoys sunlight for longer periods than during the rest of the year.

Opposite Effect

In the southern hemisphere, the effect is just the opposite. In that part of the world, June 21 — or sometimes June 22 — marks the beginning of winter.

Researchers for the National Geographic Society provided some facts about the ancient fears and forebodings:

Seems that —

1. To encourage the sun to stay warm, superstitious farmers of northern Europe kindled huge bonfires.

2. Below the equator, the pre-Columbia Peruvians viewed the period before the summer solstice with much alarm—living in constant fear that the receding sun would fail to return.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration granted today that with all their sophisticated satellites and space probes they don't expect to learn anything more about the solstices. There's just nothing more to learn.

Menasha Applies for Aid in Sewage Work

MENASHA — The first step toward obtaining federal aid for construction of the Twin Cities' secondary sewage treatment plant was taken Tuesday by the Common Council.

Neenah's Council is expected to make a similar move tonight. Both cities jointly furnish funds for the disposal plant's operation.

The two cities are under State Board of Health orders to provide secondary treatment (about 95 per cent purification before discharge into the Fox River) by Dec. 31. The mayor said the commission probably will receive an extension.

13 Complain About Pigeons

Menasha Council Receives Petition Claiming Nuisance

MENASHA — Complaints of a pigeon nuisance were filed with the common council Tuesday, but no ordinance against a person's keeping the birds is on the books. The ordinance and resolution committee was asked to study the matter.

Thirteen residents of the 700 block on Fourth Street signed a petition presented the council and cited "considerable annoyance, unsanitary conditions and general nuisance."

The council offered $2,500 for three lots on Mathewson Street owned by Hassan Mastaffa on a resolution of intent to purchase.

Not Received

The model resolution was not received from the city's bonding counsel, Chapman and Cutler of Chicago, and action directing the city clerk to advertise for bids for the $1.3 million bond issue was postponed until July 6. The bonds will pay for the Ninth Street storm sewer project.

A picnic license was granted Lenz-Gazecki Post 152, American Legion, for Jefferson Park June 30 to July 4.

Charles and Hazel Royster received a secondhand store license, despite a pending condemnation on their building.

The council approved $4,935 purchase of street light standards and fixtures for Main Street from the square west to Tayco Street and south to John Strange Paper Co.

Bids Meet Oshkosh State College Budget

$1,065,000 Allowed For Construction Of 2 Dormitories

OSHKOSH — Bids opened Tuesday afternoon at Madison for construction of two Oshkosh State College dormitories are within the $1,065,000 construction budget, college officials said today.

The bids are being analyzed by the architectural firm of Sandstedt, Knoop and Yarbro, Oshkosh. Contracts will be awarded early next week.

No announcement of the firms receiving the contracts was made because the use or rejection of various alternates may make changes in the awards.

Total estimated cost for the projects is $1,365,000, which includes furnishings and the architects fees.

Both dormitories are to be ready for occupancy by September, 1962. The contracts call for completion within 350 consecutive calendar days after the award of contracts.

Both dormitories will be four-story buildings housing 246 students each. They will resemble the present college dormitories.

The girls dormitory will be built along High Avenue. This site is ready for construction. The boys dormitory will be built on Elmwood Avenue at the end of West Irving Avenue.

Vacate Houses

Five houses purchased by the college during the last year now occupy this site. Occupants of the houses have until July 1 to vacate. The homes then are to be removed by the general contractor.

The bids were opened by the Wisconsin State Colleges Building Corporation, which will finance the construction. The dormitories will be self-sustaining with the revenues going toward the construction costs and operation.

had sought the votes of any aldermen directly in the license issue to the post. He informs the court the Legion was given the vacant license because its application was received about one month prior to Schavet's.

The Legion post in 1944 had received licenses but surrendered them because of inability to secure a suitable building for clubrooms, Steffens said.

In June 1954, the council minutes show, licenses were granted Schavet under condition he actively manage the business. Steffens noted Schavet leased his property from 1955 to the present operator. Schavet has no intention of taking over active management, the attorney contends.

Of no concern to the council is the private agreement between Schavet and the Wolfs, which provides that failure to qualify for new licenses from 1960 to 1965 would result in cancellation of the lease, the reply states.

Menasha Council Sends Family Condolences

MENASHA — A resolution of condolence to the family of the late Andrew F. Wickeham, water and light commission president, who died Friday, was approved Tueesday by the Common Council.

Mayor John Klein told the council Wickeham, on the commission since September, 1941, had "done a tremendous job as head of the commission. His was a definite guiding hand."

Neenah Teacher To Attend Session On Reading

NEENAH — Miss Anita Dahlke, who will teach reading at the new Neenah Junior High School this fall, will attend a five-day reading institute July 10-14 sponsored by the Science and Research Association of Chicago at Chicago.

The program is aimed at enabling teachers to initiate their own reading program or to improve existing programs.

Topics include: Improving comprehension, increasing reading rate, developing meaningful vocabularies, building effective study habits, identification of reading difficulties and survey of reading texts.

Miss Dahlke will be starting a new reading program at the junior high school and will be working with all seventh graders. New devices for aiding in reading problems, such as the control reader and reading accelerator, will be used.

Father Who Stole to Feed Family Placed on Probation

Five year's probation was ordered Tuesday for a man who stole $1,399 worth of farm equipment to sell for $303 for his family.

Gerald L. Boringer, 36, route 4, Appleton, was sentenced after he admitted three thefts in Outagamie County, including two electric motors and an outboard motor.

Other Thefts

He has also confessed to thefts of two other motors, three rotor tillers and a power mower from farms in Winnebago and Shawano counties. He has not been tried on these charges.

Outagamie County Patrolman Calvin Spice stopped Bohringer on U.S. 41 near Kaukauna Thursday night. He spotted the car described by a resale merchant as that driven by Bohringer. The merchant had been alerted to the stolen property by Sheriff Robert Heinritz and Bohringer tried to make a sale at his shop.

'Love to Work'

"I was just trying to feed the family," the defendant said in court. "I just love to work, but everywhere I looked they turned me down."

Bohringer told Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiege he had come from California and had been in the Fox Cities area only a week.

Land Rezoned To Allow Parking For Banta Firm

MENASHA — Properties at 465 and 469 Ahnaip St., owned by George Banta Co., were rezoned from residential to commercial Tuesday by the Common Council. The company plans to use the land for parking cars of employees, salesmen, agents and visitors.

Two area residents told the the council during the public hearing the company should be allowed to use the land for parking to get cars off the street. Mrs. T. L. Hartley, 477 Ahnaip St., thought some children on their way to and from schools might be endangered.

John H. Wilterding, George Banta Co. president, told the council the plan was to have employees living south of Ahnaip Street use the lot, to ease traffic flow, and that his company planned no building on the lots. The houses there were torn down in the last few weeks. Wilterding said he hoped the company could acquire other land in the area for offstreet parking.

OSHKOSH — Preliminary hearing on the charge against Donald Quick, 33, East Chicago, Ind., of selling mortgaged property, was postponed by Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane Tuesday until July 14 at the request of Quick's attorney.

Two Appleton Bankers Given 50-Year Honor

A. F. Zuehlke, R. W. Ebben Win Recognition at Milwaukee Banquet

Two Appleton bankers with more than 50 years each in the banking business were honored last night in Milwaukee by the Wisconsin Bankers Association.

Arthur F. Zuehlke, board chairman of the Appleton State Bank, and Robert W. Ebben vice president and member of the board of directors of the First National Bank, were initiated into the Association's 50-Year Club, along with twenty-five other Wisconsin bankers.

Zuehlke began his banking career in 1902 by becoming a bookkeeper and teller for the Bank of Hortonville, the Reedsville State Bank and the Bank of Shiocton. Except for five years spent in the lumber business, Zuehlke has been a banker since that time. He has been a director of the Reedsville State Bank since 1911 and also held similar positions with the Bank of Shiocton and the Bank of Black Creek.

His Appleton banking connections began in 1924 when he became a director of the Appleton State Bank. In 1945 he became the bank's vice president and was promoted to president in 1953.

Zuehlke's current banking connections are as director of both the Bank of Black Creek and the Reedsville State Bank, in addition to his board chairmanship of Appleton State.

Ebben entered the banking business in 1910, working in the summer as a messenger for the First National Bank. He was promoted to assistant cashier in 1924 and cashier in 1931. Ebben became vice president in 1946 and was elected to the board of directors in 1947. He also has served as president of the Kimberly State Bank, vice president of the Zwicker Knitting Mills, and secretary of the Western Elevator Co. Inc.

Grand Chute to Codify Its Laws

The Town of Grand Chute Board has been meeting with its attorney, Donald Herrling, the last three months preparing a Grand Chute Code of Ordinances.

The last time town ordinances were codified was in 1936, Herrling said. When the codification is complete, the town hopes to publish the ordinances in booklet form. Included will be a town building code.

Town Okays Land Use

Citizens Committee Plans Changes in Grand Chute Area

A Town of Grand Chute citizen planning advisory committee has approved the preliminary proposed land use map of the town prepared by the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission.

The 12-member unit placed one restriction in its approval. It wanted full permission to recommend changes in proposed land use as it studies the Regional changes in proposed land use as it studies the Regional Planning Commission recommendations.

In order to continue its program of study, the committee elected W. C. Vandenberg, chairman; Herman Kloes, vice chairman and Vincent Baum, secretary. The committee will meet once a month until the commission completes its study throughout the Fox Cities.

Before organization as a working committee, the men were meeting at the request of John Timmers, long-time town resident and former town board chairman.

Complain Residents of Buchanan Allowing Sewage Into Kaukauna

Aldermen Willing to Sign Complaint, Point Out Danger of Pollution to Water in Ravine

KAUKAUNA — Two aldermen at the council session Tuesday night offered to sign complaints to permit the city attorney to bring action against nuisances.

Ald. Norman Meinert, Third Ward, offered to sign a complaint against residents of the Town of Buchanan who have sewage from a cesspool draining into water which flows through a ravine into the city.

The city has found water in the ravine to be heavily contaminated by sewage and earlier asked the city attorney to take steps to correct the situation. City Atty. Emmet Rohan indicated this was a matter for the district attorney or for residents in the area to sign a complaint about the matter.

Old Barn Complaint

Pointing to the danger of pollution, Meinert offered to sign the complaint because the ravine flows through his ward. Rohan was then questioned by Russell Dix, Fourth Ward, if any condemnation proceedings had been started, as aldermen suggested, against an old barn being maintained by a city resident.

The attorney informed Dix he had looked over the structure and found no cause for condemnation proceedings. Dix indicated the area was a breeding grounds for rats and when asked by the attorney, agreed to sign a complaint.

Shelter Location

A recommendation by the health and recreation committee to have Steven Baisch and Associates draw plans and specifications for a park shelter at Riverside Park caused considerable discussion on the shelter location.

Several aldermen stated they had viewed the park and found a suitable site. Others objected, stating that drainage in the area could cause problems. Locating a log cabin used by Boy Scouts in the park further complicated the situation since some aldermen felt this was the proper site for the shelter.

The First Ward Aldermen, in which the park is located, advocated work immediately on the shelter as delays would only tend to halt work on a badly needed park shelter. Mayor Bayorgeon suggested plans could be drawn and specifications prepared since they would be suitable and followed no matter where the shelter was located; thus the site problem could be studied while plans were being made. Aldermen concurred and the recommendation was approved.

Move Band Shelter

Approval was given to a $300 appropriation to move the band shelter from LaFollette Park to the athletic field where the shelter will be converted into a storage area.

Council members approved a $1,050 expenditure to have larger signal lights installed at the Lawe Street and Wisconsin Avenue intersection. The mayor was authorized to sign a request for submission to the state highway commission for an engineering survey for road improvements on Plank Road and Green Bay Road, part of the state highway system.

Exchange Land

The city planning commission was authorized to handle an exchange of land between Kaukauna and Little Chute whereby boundary lines could be squared off properly. The city attorney was instructed to draw up a resolution and have the city map change to reflect the vacating of Hendricks Avenue extended between Seventeenth Street and Henry Street.

A notification from the public service commission concerning investigation of the electric utility books and practices prior to granting approval for a new substation and substation improvements was placed on file. Cost of the improvements has been estimated at $66,000.

A request for a street light on 16th Street between Crooks and Oakridge was referred to the utility with power to act.

Menasha Council Okays Rezoning For Grocery Store

MENASHA—Rezoning of Harry Stanislawski's grocery store, 500 Appleton St., was unanimously approved Tuesday by the common council two weeks after a similar move was rejected because of failure to secure the necessary eight votes.

The grocery had been zoned non-conforming residential since December, 1957, when the zoning ordinance was adopted. Up to then it had been zoned commercial, a class which would have allowed expansion.

Stanislawski two months ago learned his property had been rezoned when he was denied a building permit to expand the store.

At the June 6 meeting, a petition was presented the council asking the rezoning be denied.

Wrightstown Schedules Lessons in Swimming

WRIGHTSTOWN — Swimming lessons for village children began today Walter L. Schmidt, recreation department director, announced. A bus left at 9:30 a.m. to transport students to the Kaukauna pool.

Lessons will be held Wednesday and Saturday through Aug. 19.

San Francisco Faces King-Sized Problem On Catching Dogs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 30,000 dogs in this city are supposed to go on leash July 22, or else—

But no one is sure just what else.

The police claim they shouldn't have to chase dogs, that it's a job for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The SPCA agrees, but its professional catchers want to know if the Board of Supervisors meant what it said in the new ordinance. In other words, are all unleashed dogs to be impounded?

If so, the SPCA wants a "dog task force." And that will cost money.

Winnebago County to Honor Foster Parents This Week

OSHKOSH — Winnebago County has 120 children being cared for in 109 foster homes, Robert W. Barry, welfare department casework supervisor, pointed out in connection with the observance this week of Foster Parents Week.

Throughout the state there are 5,000 foster couples caring for more than 6,000 children. Foster Parents Week has been proclaimed by Gov. Nelson to focus attention upon the importance of foster homes in welfare services.

A social hour is being planned for all county foster parents Thursday evening at St. Mary Church Hall at Omro with the assistance of the new Omro Kiwanis Club.

In addition to the county welfare department, Green Bay Apostolate division office of The State Department of Public Welfare, the Lutheran Welfare Society which has an Appleton office and the Children's Service Society which has an office at Green Bay are licensed agencies to find foster homes in the county.

In addition to recognizing foster parents this week, these agencies are giving special emphasis this week to seeking new foster homes to meet the growing need, Barry said.

Holiday Players Launch First Season With Bang

Professional Troupe at Manawa Proves Its Abilities in 'The Gazebo'

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent State Editor

MANAWA — The Holiday Players opened their first summer stock season at the renovated Manawa Theater Tuesday night literally with a bang and as the incredibly complicated plot of the superbly written "The Gazebo" became unraveled, explosive laughter took the place of the on-stage fire arm explosions.

Producer Richard Goldsmith and his troupe of professionals made good their advance notices and gave promise of even better things to come. Professional theater in Manawa is an equation that solves out to fun and when the word gets around, the Players should be playing to more than the rather select audience that watched their opening.

The Broadway hit farce casts a wonderfully lackadaisical television writer in a plot he would be afraid to submit himself. Coincidents and mishap flourish like algae on Lake Winnebago. It would be unfair to prospective audiences to say more about the doings than that no one, who shouldn't, gets hurt very badly.

Superb Actor

Despite the firmly constructed plot, the sharp lines and the nearly lifelike characterizations, the show needs one more thing to make good its promise and in the present production that one more thing is Gerry Shields.

Shields not only directed the show but plays the lead with a faultless sense of comic timing, a remarkably facile face and every trick of stature and voice the role needs. He's superb!

Others Well Cast

Jan Oliver contrasts Shields' clowning with poise and charm as the actress wife of the TV writer and Grant Killoran is correctly uncomfortable as the next door neighbor who happens to be the assistant district attorney assigned to handle the investigation that points at his friend.

Judy Becker appears as the business woman trying to sell the writer's home—gazebo and all—and Julian Rice scores as a hard-bitten detective.

James Tiplady in little more than a walk-on flashes brightly as an involuntary meddler. Phyllis Mintz tries to make the most of her role as the maid as do Goldsmith and Pete Hoffman as hoodlums and Jack MacKenzie, the technical director, as a policeman. Les Lemkins makes his home towners hum appreciatively as the dignified police surgeon.

Professional Troupe

The fact the play clicked Tuesday night, thanks chiefly to Shields and Miss Oliver, is ample proof the troupe is professional. Prior to the opening, the company made a non-stop, 72-hour headlong plunge toward the starting line. Not only were there the usual and considerable problems of staging any show to solve, but the theater itself had to be renovated and changed from a cinema to a legitimate stage facility. Lighting and even the stage had to be improvised.

The Players came close to meeting their deadline Tuesday. The impossibility of a technical rehearsal was apparent as was the inadequate training of the house personnel.

But the Players have been launched and the road ahead should be as smooth and relatively trouble free for them as the fine highways leading into Manawa from all directions are for what should be an ever-growing coterie of fans.

Money Keeps Coming in For Liberace

Entertaining but One Facet of His Financial Interests

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Report on Liberace: He's still laughing all the way to the bank, perhaps even more heartily than before.

"I'm earning as much money as ever," says the famed apostle of sincerity. "But the difference now is that it comes from a variety of sources—apartments, real estate, oil, as well as entertaining.

"I like it better this way. Back in those 'white heat' days of my career, I had to do a lot of things that I didn't really want to do. The work became hard for me. Now I don't have to take any engagement that I'm not enthusiastic about."

He didn't mention his current earnings, but illustrated with an incident from the past: "Once I became ill and had to go to bed for three months. During that time, I had to pass up $380,000 in dates. That was when my advisers decided we should invest and diversify, in case anything should happen that I couldn't play the piano any more."

Gold, White Decor

The place was built by Ann Harding, later owned by Rudy Vallee. By actual count there are nine bathrooms and 28 other rooms, slightly less than before because walls have been knocked out.

The downstairs contains about an acre of thick white and gold carpet, the threads looped and cut by hand in Japan. Gold is everywhere — on the period sofas, the antique French piano, the pipe organ, which can be played either by Liberace or automatic roll. There is gold leaf in the basin of the power room, gold on the chandeliers, and—natch—the candelabra.

AP Wirephoto

Lawrence Dorms Will Get Use in Summer Months

Dormitories of Lawrence College will be used for three professional meetings during the summer vacation.

Men attending the sixth industry seminar sponsored by the Institute of Paper Chemistry are currently using the Phi Kappa Tau and Delta Tau Delta houses. The seminar, which will last until June 30, is an intensive three week course for key men in the pulp and paper industry which surveys recent technology and scientific discovery.

A National Science Foundation sponsored conference for college teachers of biology and chemistry presenting an introduction to plant bio-chemistry will be housed in the Phi Gamma Delta house, from Aug. 14 to 25. Staff members from the Institute of Paper Chemistry and a number of guest lecturers will conduct the conference.

The annual pastor's school of the Methodist Church will be lodged on the campus Aug. 27 to 29.

'Miracle Worker' on TV, Broadway; Now Being Made Into Film

NEW YORK (AP)— Show business has gotten a lot of mileage out of William Gibson's "The Miracle Worker," about Annie Sullivan Macy and young Helen Keller. Turned down as a Broadway play, it was first produced as a Playhouse 90 show with Teresa Wright and Patty McCormack in the leading parts.

It was such a success that Broadway accepted it — with Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke in the leads originally — and it is still playing after two years. Soon it will be appearing as a movie, again with Miss Bancroft and young Patty Duke.

'Threepenny' Tune Doubles in Hit Record

Riding high on popular record polls in recent weeks has been "The Bilbao Song" by Kurt Weill. The melody is from the current long-run production of "The Threepenny Opera." But there its name is "The Bide-a-Wee in Soho."

$100,000 Kick Off Planned for Musical

Producer Alexander H. Cohen has set up a special unit with a $100,000 budget to merchandise the venture, which isn't scheduled to open until Feb. 22, 1962. Cost of the musical itself is set at $400,000.

Tax Unit to Get $90,178

Operations Board Approves $175,000 For Land Purchase

MADISON (AP)—A State Tax Department request for a $90,178 emergency fund appropriation to meet court costs and added office expenses resulting from its crackdown on income tax evaders has been approved by the Board on Government Operations.

Court costs for collecting delinquencies will exceed $100,000 this year, Harry Harder of the tax department told the board. Harder said it was estimated that court costs would be about $45,000.

Harder said there had been an increased work load in district offices because the department had received an additional 59,000 income tax returns when an increase of only 25,000 over last year had been expected.

The board also authorized the release of up to $175,000 from the public welfare fund for the purchase and improvement of the Williams Bay radar site from the federal government.

Wilbur Schmidt, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, said the purchase price could be as high as $75,000.

Schmidt said the federal government would require payment before June 30 and that the state was trying to get a grant from the Health, Education and Welfare Department for part of the purchase price.

Plans call for the radar site to be used as a minimum security prison for young men. Schmidt said the new grant would depend on whether or not the prison was "enough of an educational facility" to qualify for federal aid.

The board also approved the release of $300,000 in appropriated funds of the Department of Public Welfare for relief to needy Indians and for aid to Forest and Florence counties which are not able to finance the cost of general relief and public assistance payments.

Also approved were:

A Department of Administration request for supplementary appropriations for nine agencies totaling $67,679; $14,858 in added funds for the Motor Vehicle Department; $2,872 to the State Historical Society for unemployment compensation benefits for 11 guides at the Cassville and Greenbush historical sites; $9,000 to cover added expenses of the State Investment Board; $11,041 to the Department of Public Instruction for the schools for the blind and deaf; $30,000 to the Department of Public Welfare for care of patients and inmates at Wisconsin General Hospital.

TV Soap Operas Boost Reputation Of Organ Music

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Radio soap operas which invariably used organ music for their background gave the instrument some of its saccharine reputation. Now television is helping restore the organ to its deserved high place.

TV daytime serials still rely on the organ to provide dramatic accents and over-all atmosphere. But nowadays the music is much more sophisticated. Billy Nalle the organist on the "Young Dr. Malone" series on NBC, plays jazz for the show's music, improvising and weaving themes together as the action proceeds.

Nalle, who is also a pianist, disagrees with the widely held belief that background music is good only when it isn't really noticed.

"That usually means that the music is too pale to have meaning, and it is not performing its function of hypoing emotions," Nalle said. "Good background music is like the frame of a picture—it should set off the whole thing. Even though it is not what you came to see, it can make the picture a lot more interesting."

Nalle broke the organ-taboo in television. He played a jazz background on a CBS "Suspense" show in 1953 — long before the dramatic "Peter Gunn" theme music was even dreamed about.

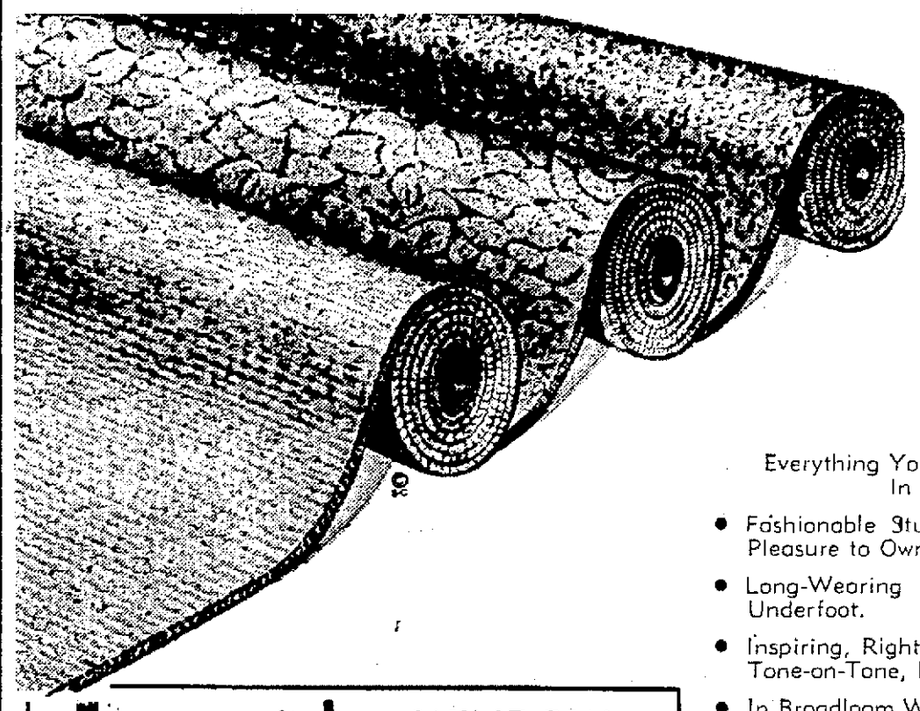

Eddie Fisher to Star Actress Wife in Four Films for Warner Bros.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Eddie Fisher plans to produce four motion pictures for Warner Bros. studio, with his actress wife Elizabeth Taylor starring in two of them.

The studio yesterday announced its association with Fisher's new company, New Frontier Pictures, Inc. The studio called it "the biggest and most important four-picture deal ever concluded at Warner Bros."

"Negotiations are currently in progress by Fisher for the acquisition of major properties," it said. Details of the films will be announced in the near future. They were not identified.

Lawrence Faculty Will Accent Writing, Research This Summer

The accent will be on research and writing among Lawrence College faculty members during the vacation months.

Warren Beck, professor of English, has been invited to use the facilities of Yaddo, a writer's colony in upstate New York, where he has worked several times in the last 10 years.

Several faculty members will continue to frequent their Main Hall offices as they work on writing projects at home: Anne Jones, who is working on a French textbook; Herbert Spiegelberg, who will prepare a Fulbright project which will take him to Germany next year to lecture in philosophy; anthropologist Harold Schneider, who will begin work on a book of the Turu tribe in Africa which he studied for 15 months recently on a National Science Foundation grant;

F. Theodore Cloak, who will write on the plays of Boucicault; and William A. Chaney, who plans to finish several articles on medieval history, law and folklore. The latter also plans a brief New England vacation.

Leonard Pinsky of the philosophy department has gone to Florence, Italy for the summer months to work on a book. Maurice Cunningham plans to complete his critical text of the poems of Prudentius.

Work on Dissertations

Four junior faculty members will work on their doctoral dissertations. Dan Cole of the religion department will work on an analysis of the pottery from the early Hyksos Age (around 1750 to 1650 B.C.) excavated at Old Testament Shechem last year by the Drew - McCormick Archaeological Expedition of which he was a member. Cole also will attend a conference of Danforth Associates and put in a week for the National Council on Religion in Higher Education.

Richard Whitcomb of the German department will work on his dissertation "The Figure of the Returning Soldier in the Post-War German Novel" at Stanford University. Richard Winslow and David Mayer will also work on their theses in Spanish and drama respectively.

Norman Taylor of the economics department will travel to Canada and Washington, D. C., to develop plans for research into migration from Canada to the United States, as well as examining archives in French Canada for data on French-Canadian economic history. He plans to work on two articles, and attend a national meeting of the Economic History Association in Bloomington, Ind., early in September. Frank Bessac of the anthropology department will do research at the University of Wisconsin on Mongolian political events.

Undertake Classwork

Eight Lawrence professors will undertake formal classwork at other institutions. Donald Lemke, education, will be enrolled at Colorado State College during the early part of the summer and then will travel to Mexico City to do research on the educational system. Theodore Rehl of the piano department will study with Dr. Bela B. Nagy at the University of Indiana.

James Ming will attend a composition and theory workshop at the Eastman School of Music, at which the faculty includes Vincent Persichetti, Henry Cowell, Bernard Rogers and Allen McHose. Dezoe Lenard, Russian, will be at the University of Wisconsin, while Arthur Coxford, mathematics, and Daniel Smith, organ, are at the University of Michigan.

Edgar M. Turrentine will direct the summer workshop on the teaching of music in the junior high school at the University of Iowa, while doing statistical research in the psychology of music.

W. Paul Gilbert will have eight weeks of study at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies and the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. He is one of 20 teachers from liberal arts colleges chosen for the advanced institute. His wife, Dr. Margaret Shea Gilbert, will use the libraries at Oak Ridge to continue her book on the embryology of the rat.

Stephen F. Darling of the chemistry department will begin a project at the Institute of Paper Chemistry which will continue into the next school year, and for which he has leave of absence from the college.

Robert Rosenberg will teach physical chemistry at Northwestern University, do research on a National Science Foundation grant at the same institution, and attend a meeting of the American Chemical Society in Chicago at the end of the summer.

Supervise Projects

Teymoor Gedayloo, physics, one of the Associated College of the Midwest faculty members to supervise student projects at the Argonne National Laboratories next year, has begun his Argonne assignment already. He will also conduct a Beta ray spectroscopy study of nuclear energy levels.

David Foulkes, psychology, will teach at the University of South Dakota, while J. Bruce Brackenridge, physics, will teach at a month-long conference at Brown University for secondary school teachers, will have some equipment built in the east for his NSF work on hydrodynamics at Lawrence, and will attend the American Institute of Physics in Denver, Colo., during August. He will also attend a conference at MIT designed for the leaders of courses which will be offered for secondary school teachers of physics throughout the nation. Lawrence will give the program, which is encouraged by the Physical Science Study Committee.

Olga Smith will teach at the NSF biochemistry seminar sponsored by the Institute of Paper Chemistry in Appleton in August. She will teach electron microscopy. Late in August she will attend a national meeting of Electron Microscopists at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Attend Summer Course

John Rosebush, director of alumni relations, will attend a Marine Corps Reserve Senior Course at Cape Hatteras, N.C., in July. Dean Mary Morton and Registrar Dorothy Draheim will take a month's vacation in Europe. Kenneth Byler will again be a member of the Peninsula Music Festival Orchestra in Fish Creek, while Tom Dietrich is planning a painting trip through western states.

Two Homers Give Spahn 2-1 Victory

Aaron and Bolling Hit For Circuit

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The combination of good pitching and the long ball makes any team look like a champion. And that's what the Milwaukee Braves looked like Tuesday night at County Stadium.

Southpaw Warren Spahn fired a four-hitter for career victory No. 296 and Hank Aaron and Frank Bolling hit homers as the Braves opened a home stand by edging the San Francisco Giants 2-1 before a crowd of 20,840, including 4,032 Ladies Night guests.

The victory was the Braves' third in nine meetings with the Giants this year. And the 40-year-old Spahn has won all three games for Milwaukee.

Home Run Pitch

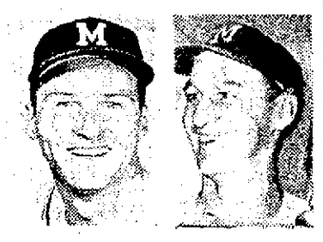

Spahn hooked up in a pitching duel with young Mike McCormick, who wasn't even two years old when the Braves' great entered organized baseball in 1940. McCormick allowed only six hits, but the home run pitch proved his undoing.

The Giants scored in the fifth on a single by Willie McCovey, a sacrifice and a hit by Ed Bailey. After that, Spahn was virtually untouchable as he narrowed the magic number to four for his 300th victory.

The Braves tied the count in the sixth when Hank Aaron cracked a curve ball for his 12th homer. The blast sailed into the left field bleachers only a few rows from the top.

Hitting Streak

Bolling looked at a ball leading off the eighth and then unloaded his 10th homer of the season. The ball just cleared the fence near the left field foul line. The homer extended Bolling's hitting streak to 11 straight games and enabled Spahn to pick up his eighth victory in 15 decisions this season.

Spahn struck out three and walked only one in dazzling the Giants, who played without Willie Mays for the first time this year. Mays, who hit four homers in San Francisco's last game in Milwaukee April 30, was given a rest by Manager Alvin Dark.

Mays is due back in centerfield tonight when the Braves and the Giants wind up their brief series. Right-hander Lew Burdette, holder of a 5-5 record, is Milwaukee's pitching choice to oppose Jack Sanford (3-3).

Cardinal Guard Signs Pact for '61 Season

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Mike McGee, a Duke University product who developed into an outstanding offensive guard as a rookie last season, signed his 1961 contract with the Cardinals.

Catcher Hal Smith eats supper in his hospital room in St. Louis last night after learning he may never play ball again. Detroit, Yankees Record Victories

Roger Maris Clouts 26th Homer; White Sox Defeat Indians, 5-3

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees are still 1½ games shy of first-place Detroit in the American League pennant chase, but Roger Maris, the Bombers' No. 1 belter of the moment, has edged a bit closer to a couple of sturdy home run records.

Maris, bustin' out all over in June, hit his 26th home run as the Yankees beat Kansas City 6-2 Tuesday night and moved back into second place. It was the 14th home run Roger has rifled this month—leaving him four shy of the one-month record set in 1937 when Rudy York hit 18 in August for Detroit.

Maris, also four back of the major league record for total home runs hit through June 30, has nine games left this month in which to crack both marks. That "most home runs through June 30" item may seem a bit pointless, except that the record was set by a gent named Babe Ruth, who did it in 1928, and again in 1930.

Ahead of Record

For the record, Maris is nine games ahead of Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927. Ruth, by the way, finished with 54 in 1928 and 49 in 1930. And York hit only 35 all season when he set the one month high in '37.

Detroit retained its 1½-game lead with a 5-4 victory at Washington, but Cleveland skidded to third, 4 percentage points behind the Yanks, when the Chicago White Sox beat the Indians 5-3. Boston made it six in a row, winning 11-8 at Los Angeles, and Minnesota beat Baltimore 5-4.

The Yankees beat the A's with three-run bursts in the third and fifth innings. Mickey Mantle's single drove in the clincher in the third. Maris' homer, off loser Joe Nuxhall, and Bill Skowron's two-run double took care of the scoring in the fifth. Nuxhall (4-3) drove in both runs off winner Bill Stafford (5-3).

First Game at Third

Al Kaline, an outfield star playing his first game at third base, drove in two runs for the Tigers, bringing in the winner with a fifth-inning single. Kaline, filling in at third while Steve Boros and Chico Fernandez nurse leg injuries, handed two chances perfectly in the field. Jim Bunning (6-6) was the winning pitcher, but gave way to reliever Hank Aguirre after Willie Tasby homered in a four-run eighth inning for the Senators. Dick Donovan (3-6) was the loser.

The White Sox, climbing into sixth place with their 11th victory in 12 games, beat the Indians with a five-run first inning. J. C. Martin's three-run homer capped the outburst that handed seven-game winner Mudcat Grant his first defeat. Turk Lown (5-2) won his fifth in a row with 4 1-3 innings of two-hit, shutout relief.

Drives in Five

Rookie Carl Yastrzemski drove in five runs for the Red Sox with a home run and three singles in his first four trips. Bill Monbouquette (7-6) was the winner, but needed relief help after giving up home runs by Leon Wagner, Earl Averill and Steve Bilko. Eli Grba (5-7) lost it.

A ninth-inning homer by pinch-hitter Julio Becquer did it for the Twins and beat reliever Jack Fisher (2-8) after the Orioles had tied it 4-all in their ninth on Earl Robinson's three-run homer. Chuck Stobbs (1-2) won it in relief.

Amateur Code Tightened by Olympic Unit

ATHENS (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today tightened the amateur code by requiring that an athlete must have "a normal occupation destined to insure his present and future livelihood."

In addition amateur athletes must have "never received any payment for taking part in any sports competition."

Under the old code an amateur was defined as someone who takes part in sports for pleasure and has not had "material gain of any kind" from this.

Controversy over the definition of an amateur has raged in world sport circles for several years, with Olympic officials generally favoring strict safeguards against professionalism. Some sports leaders in the United States and Europe have urged a loose interpretation of the code and state subsidies to promising athletes, claiming that this is the way Soviet Russia has become a power in the sports world.

Angels Acquire Toronto's Moran

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Angels Tuesday announced the acquisition of Infielder Bill Moran, 28, from the Toronto club of the International League. Moran is hitting more than .300 for the Maple Leafs.

In exchange the Angels sent Shortstop Kenny Hamlin and righthanded pitcher Russ Heman to Toronto.

Lonigro struck out five batters and pitched shutout ball until the ninth. Both Kaukauna runs were unearned.

Bowens and Smiley Bat Foxes to 9-1 Win Over Reds

Starrette Scatters Seven Hits as Fox Cities Gains on Runnersup

Post-Crescent News Service

TOPEKA — A blistering 12-hit attack led by Chuck Smiley and Sam Bowens backed the sparkling pitching of Herm Starrette here Tuesday night and moved Fox Cities to within a half game of second place in the Three-I League pennant race.

The Foxes, 9-1 winner over Topeka in the opener of a 3-game series, will try to take the final step past the current runner-up Reds tonight when Dave Vineyard takes the hill against Ted Davidson (4-1).

The Foxes scored two runs in the first inning and were never in trouble Tuesday. Fox Cities got a little help from the Reds when shortstop Tommy Helms booted a double play ball in the first frame, but from there on then they hit the ball with abandon.

Montgomery Walks

In the second, the Foxes scored twice more. Jim Liggett singled and scored on Montgomery's double to the left field corner. Montgomery tallied when Pulliam singled to right.

Fox Cities applied the finishing touches to Topeka starter Mickey Mattiale in the fifth. Smiley led off with a home run. Then "Photi" Anthony walked and Bowens scored on Jim Caldwell's single.

The Foxes scored in the sixth on a double by Pulliam and a single by Smiley. The final run came on a double by Bowens, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Liggett in the seventh.

Topeka avoided a shutout in the ninth when Art Shamsky tripled and scored on Miles McWilliams' single.

Cedar Rapids Stopped by McIlwain, 6-0

1,789 Fans See Burlington Top Des Moines, 6-3

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lincoln's Stover McIlwain stopped first-place Cedar Rapids, 6-0, on a 3-hitter Tuesday night.

The Braves' 3-I League margin remained at four games as runnerup Topeka lost, 9-1, to Fox Cities.

Cedar Rapids' Paul Roof matched McIlwain for seven innings, allowing only two hits in that span. Then, Lincoln poured across all of its runs in the eighth on an error, a walk and five straight hits.

Des Moines' top crowd of the season—1,789—lured by the appearance of onetime pitching great Bob Feller, watched the Demons tie Burlington at 3-3 in the ninth inning, only to lose in the tenth, 6-3.

Reds Split, Retain 1½-Game Lead; Dodgers Now Second

Joey Jay Suffers First Loss Since April 29; Pirates Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joey Jay's magic finally ran out, but the Cincinnati Reds still have a 1½-game lead in the three-way tussle for first place in the National League pennant race.

Pal Joey, the young right-hander who had won eight in a row for the Reds, was beaten 6-3 by St. Louis in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader at Cincinnati Tuesday night. It was Jay's first defeat since April 29, and it came on the heels of a 4-3, 11-inning Cincinnati victory in the opener that gave the Reds a six-game winning streak.

Los Angeles Second

Despite the split, the Reds retained their first-place margin as Los Angeles replaced San Francisco in second place. Milwaukee spilled the Giants 2-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Warren Spahn, who now is just four shy of his 300th career victory. The Dodgers beat the Chicago Cubs 3-0 in an afternoon game as Sandy Koufax won his 10th with a two-hitter.

Pittsburgh rapped last-place Philadelphia 6-2 in the other NL game.

The Cardinals, hanging on to fifth place by mere percentage points over Milwaukee, tagged Jay (8-4) for eight of their 12 hits in the nightcap. Charlie James drove in two runs, bringing in the clincher with a double in a two-run sixth inning. Righthander Bob Gibson (5-3) won his third in a row for the Cards, blanking the Reds on two hits until the ninth and finishing with a five-hitter.

Three-Run Homer

Cincinnati blew a 2-0 lead in the opener when Carl Sawatski hit a three-run pinch homer off Jay Hook in the seventh inning. But the Reds bounced back and tied it in the ninth on a pinch single by Jerry Lynch, then beat reliever Bob Miller (3-1) when he forced home a run with a bases-loaded walk in the 11th. Jim Brosnan (3-2) was the winner in relief—his sixth in a row over the Cards since May 1956.

The Braves packed Spahnie with homers by Hank Aaron in the sixth inning and Frank Bolling in the eigth in coming from be-

Duluth-Superior Whips Leading Aberdeen, 9-4

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Aberdeen's Pheasants finally got to Duluth-Superior's Ricardo Delgado in the ninth inning of their Northern League contest Tuesday night, but it was too late to prevent a 9-4 drubbing.

Delgado had held the league leaders to a one-hit shutout until he tired, and Aberdeen collected its four runs on two doubles and two singles.

Grand Forks emerged victor in the other game, defeating Eau Claire 7-2.

Delgado's neat victory over Aberdeen was his sixth in eight decisions. He was backed at the plate by Terry Bartholome's two-run homer and three-hit performances by both Bill Freehan and Bert Franklin.

Purdue Golfers End Houston's NCAA Reign

Nicklaus Wins Medal; Steve Smith Qualifies With 149

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Ohio State's Jack Nicklaus and Purdue University's team today has ended the University of Houston's dominance of American collegiate golf in recent years—maybe.

Houston's Dick Crawford, national collegiate champion the last two years, put 80 against an opening round 75 and it wasn't good enough to qualify for the 64-man match play beginning today.

The Texas school got only one man through the trials, but he is Homero Blancas, Texas Open and All - American Intercollegiate champion, and well able to defend his school's prestige all by himself.

Smith had 76-73—149 and was matched against Jim Wright of Oklahoma State, who had a 153, in the opening round of match play today.

Larry Wallden of Wisconsin had 75-78—153 and was one of the 10 golfers who played for the last five places in the last five places in the championship flight. He lost out. Another Wisconsin golfer, Marty Gharrity shot 80-76 and failed to qualify as did Marquette's Bob Hornak who also had 80-76.

Clem Budny of Marquette had 81-82—163 and his teammate Felix Mazur had 85-85—170.

Cardinals' Smith Has Heart Ailment

Catcher's Baseball Playing Days Are Over, One Doctor Says

BY CHUCK CAPALDO

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Catcher Hal Smith, the good humor man of the St. Louis Cardinals, faced an uncertain baseball future today because of a heart ailment.

The club's official announcement Tuesday said Smith's return to baseball "is uncertain at this time," but Smith said one doctor told him his playing days were over.

The 30-year-old receiver, favorite of the Redbird pitching staff because of his sure-handed mitt, dry wit and skillful calls of pitches, entered Jewish Hospital June 10. He complained of pains of the upper abdomen and chest.

It was feared he had a heart condition and Tuesday's announcement confirmed it. It said he is suffering from "a coronary artery condition" and heart specialists "have recommended complete separation from physical activity for an indefinite period."

Return Is Uncertain

"Obviously," said Redbird General Manager Bing Devine, "Smith's return to active baseball play is uncertain at this time."

Smith, who often snapped Redbird players out of the doldrums with a joke or a twangy rendition of a couple of verses from the hillbilly tunes he wrote, tried to buck himself up.

"He (the unnamed doctor) told me in his opinion I wouldn't be able to play any more," Smith said. "I'm very disappointed it turned out this way, but I've been assured by Bing Devine I needn't worry. There'll be a place for me somewhere in the Cardinal organization."

"Maybe the doc is wrong," he added. "Maybe I'll be able to play again."

If Smitty can't play again, he'll be the third Redbird catcher incapacitated at the peak of his career. The others were Bill DeLancy, one of the heroes of the Gas House gang of 1934, and Bill Sarni. DeLancey was stricken with tuberculosis in 1935 when he was only 23. Sarni suffered a heart attack less than 10 years ago after being traded to the then New York Giants.

Smith joined the Cardinals in 1956 and batted .282, his high-water mark in the majors. He broke in with Albany, Ga., in 1949 and played with Hamilton, N.Y., Allentown, Pa., Omaha, Neb. and Houston, Tex. before the Cards beckoned.

Dick Melcher hurled a four-hitter in leading the Post Office to a 11-3 victory over the Post-Crescent in the American Industrial Softball League Tuesday night.

It was the fifth straight victory for the league leaders who have not lost a game.

In the only other game played, Elm Tree edged AAL, 4-1. The contest between Valley Iron and Miller Electric was called after four innings because of rain and the Appleton Coated Paper and Interlake tilt was postponed.

15 Men Bat

The Post Office scored nine runs in the first inning on only three hits to take a commanding lead over the Post-Crescent. The big inning included seven walks and a pair of errors as 15 men went to the plate. The game was held to six innings because of a time limit.

Melcher spaced the four hits well. Bud Everts bagged two of the hits, including a triple. The Post Office had only five safeties off loser Sonny Kneepkens but the Post-Crescent club had seven errors.

Bert Tardiff had a shutout for Elm Tree until the last inning when AAL scored its only run. Tardiff allowed only five hits and did not walk a man. Gordy Holten was the loser.

Bolling Is Hitting .319 but Says NL Has Better Pitching Than AL

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Although overshadowed by such slugging teammates as Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron, second baseman Frank Bolling appears the Milwaukee Braves' best bet for all-star recognition.

A .261 hitter in six years with the Detroit Tigers in the American League, Bolling has become a feared batter in his initial season with the Braves. And he insists the National League has better pitching.

Bolling cracked his 10th homer leading off the eighth inning Tuesday night to enable the Braves and southpaw Warren Spahn to edge the San Francisco Giants 2-1.

11 Straight Games

Bolling's homer, which cleared the fence close to the left field foul pole, extended his hitting streak to 11 straight games. It also bettered his home run output of nine last season with Detroit.

"I think the National League has better pitching than the American League and I really respect it," Bolling said. "I just can't give any definite reason for my hitting. I don't know what I'm doing different—but I don't want I don't go into a slump. My last good start was in 1958 and I finished with a .269 average."

Bolling said he figures that hitting just ahead of Mathews and Aaron has helped him plenty.

"It's like hitting ahead of a Ted Williams," the 29-year-old Alabaman said. "Pitchers try to avoid walking a man in front of them."

Bolling, who failed to earn an All-Star game berth while with the Tigers, is hoping to get to play for the National League this season.

'A Great Honor'

"There was always (Nellie) Fox in the American League—and I never was picked as a reserve," he said. "I hope I get the chance this year. It's a great honor."

Bolling earned himself a bat with his homer. He borrowed teammate Al Spangler's bat for the game-winning blast — and promptly declared it his own. Spangler happily agreed.

Spahn narrowed his magic number to four in firing a four-hitter against the Giants. It was his third victory of the year over the San Francisco sluggers en route to his 300th lifetime triumph.

Asked about reaching the coveted mark, the 40-year-old great replied:

"I don't care where or when it is—but I hope it will be soon. I want to get it out of the way."

hind against Mike McCormick (7-6). It was Milwaukee's third victory in nine games with the Giants this season and all three were behind Spahn (8-7).

Dick Stuart and Don Hoak belted two-run homers for the Pirates, handing right-hander Art Mahaffey (6-7) his fourth straight defeat. Lefty Harvey Haddix (5-2) shut out the Phils on four hits for eight innings, then needed relief help from Elroy Face in the ninth.

Three singles, by John Roseboro, Maury Wills and Charlie Neal, and an error gave the Dodgers all three runs in the seventh and beat Glen Hobbie (4-8). Koufax (10-3), the first pitcher to win 10 in the NL this season, didn't allow a hit until Ernie Banks singled with two out in the seventh. The young lefty walked two and struck out 14.

Kaline Gets Only 2 Chances In His Debut as Infielder

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Maybe after they see me play third base for one game," said Al Kaline, "they won't want to see me there any more."

But it didn't turn out so badly Tuesday night for the veteran Detroit outfielder as he played in the infield for the first time in his professional career.

Manager Bob Scheffing made the shift because of injuries to third baseman Steve Boros and shortstop Chico Fernandez. Boros is expected to be back in the lineup in a day or two, then Kaline will go back to the outfield.

Kaline socked a double and a single, each driving in a run, and scored once as the first place Tigers defeated Washington 5-4. Kaline was not very busy in his first game at third base after eight seasons in the outfield. He had only two chances, retiring Billy Klaus on a pop foul in the third and throwing out Gene Green in the seventh.

The Detroit manager said before the game he had no hesitation in tapping Kaline for the new job.

"He can play anywhere," said Scheffing. "He's a good ballplayer, as long as he can hit."

2 Young Net Stars Seeded At Wimbledon

Chuck McKinley, Karen Hantze Lead U. S. Challenge

LONDON (AP) — Stocky Chuck McKinley and teen-ager Karen Hantze, two of America's rising young tennis stars, will lead the U.S. challenge at the Wimbledon championships next week.

That was officially decided Tuesday when McKinley, 20-year-old from St. Louis, and Miss Hantze, 18-year-old from Chula Vista, Calif., were the only American's seeded for the English tennis classic. Both were placed eighth in their respective divisions.

McKinley, fourth-ranked in the United States, will be trying for the men's title that has eluded America tennis aces since Tony Trabert copped the big prize in 1955.

The top spot in women's singles is held by Sandra Reynolds of South Africa, who drew the No. 1 seed due to the absence of ailing defender Maria Bueno of Brazil.

The seedings:

MEN'S SINGLES — 1, Neale Fraser, Australia. 2, Rod Laver, Australia. 3, Nicola Pietrangeli, Italy. 4, Roy Emerson, Australia. 5, Manual Santana, Spain. 6, Louis Ayala, Chile. 7, Ramanathan Krishnan, India. 8, Charles McKinley, St. Louis.

WOMEN'S SINGLES — 1, Sandra Reynolds, South Africa. 2, Margaret Smith, Australia. 3, Ann Haydon, Britain. 4, Lesley Turner, Australia. 5, Yola Ramirez, Mexico. 6, Christine Truman, Britain. 7, Angela Mortimer, Britain. 8, Karol Hantze, Chula Vista, Calif.

MEN'S DOUBLES — 1, Roy Emerson and Neale Fraser, Australia. 2, Rod Laver and Bob Mark, Australia. 3, Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola, Italy. 4, Luis Ayala, Chile, and Ramanathan Krishnan, India.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES — 1, Sandra Reynolds and Rene Schuurman, South Africa. 2, Ann Haydon and Christine Truman, Britain. 3, Jan Lehane and Margaret Smith, Australia. 4, Sally Moore, Bakersfield, Calif., and Lesley Turner, Australia.

David Blank Scores 370 at Chain O'Lakes

WAUPACA — David Blank, Neenah, took top honors with a 370 in the recent Central Wisconsin Archery League shoot at the Chain O'Lakes Conservation Club.

Other highs were Bob Kostustchowski, Stevens Point, 358, and Don Rahrbesk, Menasha, 354.

Melodeen Matheson, Waupaca, placed first in the women's division with 316. Della Grimm, Little Chute, had 310 and Ellie Pyle, Merrill, 282.

The boys were led by Ronnie Spulak, Stevens Point, who shot a 296. Ron Zdruik, Stevens Point hit a 280 and Charles Westphal, New London, had a 216.

Honors in the girls division went to Vicki Barnett, Menasha, 154; Elodie Pyle, Merrill, 126, and Mildred Berlo, Amherst, 112.

Guy Schuelke, Manawa, copped the cadet class with a 252.

Law's Return Will Make Big Difference, Says Danny

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pittsburgh Pirates said today that as soon as sore-shouldered right-hander Vern Law gets well enough to pitch "we'll make our presence known."

"Naturally, Law has a tremendous effect when he's able to pitch," Murtaugh said of last year's 20-game winner who helped the Pirates take the National League pennant.

Meanwhile, it appeared that Harvey Haddix and Bobby Shantz may have to carry the pitching load for the world champion Pirates, who are in fourth place, 5½ games from the top. Last year at this time they were four games in first.

"Haddix has been pretty good most of the year," Murtaugh said of the little left-hander Tuesday night after he beat Philadelphia 6-2 for his fifth victory against two losses.

The Pirates hitting seems to be as adequate as last year with Don Hoak leading the NL with a .347 average and Roberto Clemente and Dick Stuart up high.

But the loss of Law, who hasn't been in regular rotation and who can't work a full game, and Bob Friend's recent slump, have hurt the Pirates.

NEENAH — The Marathon Ramblers moved into a tie with Banta's for first place in the Twin City Industrial League Tuesday night behind the four-hit pitching of Doug Wiatrowski.

Neenah Paper topped Soo Line, 10-1, the Packagers trounced Strange's, 11-5, and Lakeview defeated Foundry, 11-0.

Hurls Shutout

Len Adams hurled the shutout victory for Lakeview, limiting the Foundry batsmen to only two hits. Adams led the attack himself, coming up with three hits.

Neenah Paper scored in every inning but the fourth. Darrell Schultz was the team's leading hitter with three-for-four. Schultz got credit for the mound victory, limiting the Railroaders to eight hits.

The Marathon Packagers tallied five times in the sixth inning to put their game with Strange's in the proverbial ice box. Willie Bolwerk was the winning hurler, and Harry Huff was the loser.

Top Lineman at Tennessee Signs With Cowboys

DALLAS, Tex. —(AP)— Ken Frost, voted the outstanding lineman at Tennessee last season, has been signed by the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

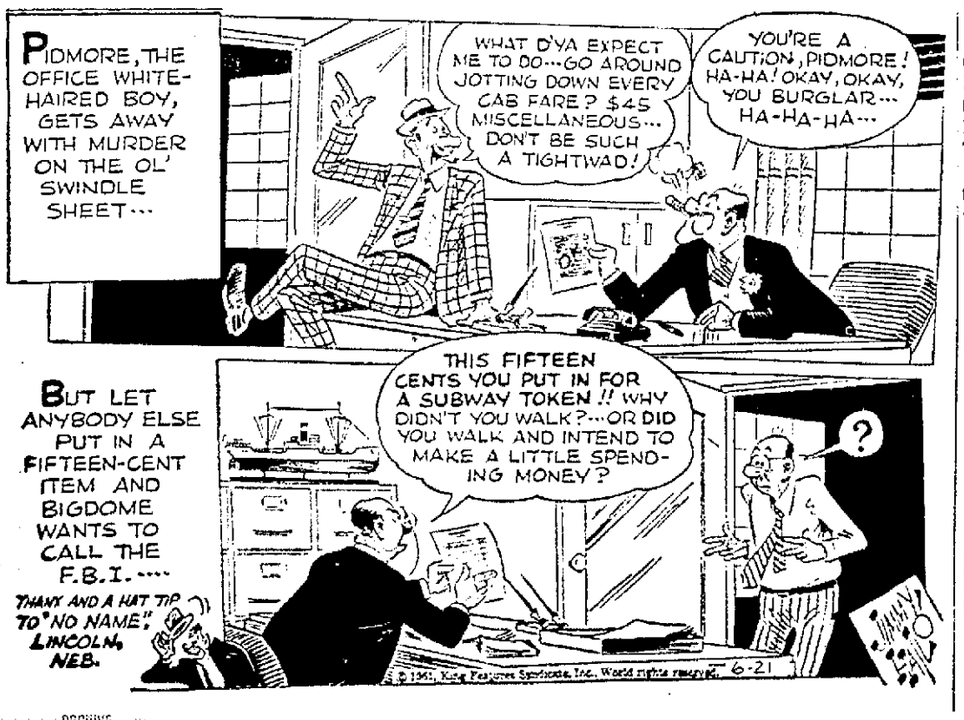

Frost, 6-4 and 250, had been picked as a top tackle in the Southeast Conference this coming season, but ran into scholastic troubles and will be incligible.

"If there were any opportunity for him to get back into school, we wouldn't have touched him," said the Cowboys' general manager, Tex Schramm Tuesday.

"We cleared it with his coach, Bowden Wyatt," Schramm said. "Of course, we feel we're very lucky to get Frost."

Lawrence Says

Legal Power Misused in Rail Ruling

High Court Failed to Judge on Violation Of Workers Rights

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — No more flagrant example of the confusion that arises from the arbitrary misuse of the judicial power could be cited than what is set forth in the 35,000 words of conflicting views expressed by the Supreme Court of the United States in deciding this week the case of six railroad workers who had appealed for protection of their Constitutional rights. They were being forced to contribute dues to a labor union which used the money for partisan political purposes contrary to the wishes and views of these members.

Lawrence

Did the Supreme Court decide that such a disregard of the rights of the individual to freedom of association or freedom of political belief was a violation of the Constitution? It did not.

Did the court decide to safeguard the rights of those silent workers who did not dare to protest for fear of being dismissed from the union and their jobs? It did not.

Entitled to Refund

Five out of the nine justices did decide that perhaps the six workers were entitled to refund of that part of their dues which could proportionately be calculated as having been used to finance political activity disapproved of by those workers. But it was only to provide the necessary five-vote majority that Justice Douglas — after frankly disapproving of much of the majority opinion as written by Justice Brennan — decided to go along with this decision. He said he recognized the strength of the arguments advanced in the opinions of Justices Black and Whittaker against giving a "proportional" relief to the six railroad workers, but pointed out that "there is the practical problem of mustering five justices for a judgment in this case." Mr. Douglas then added:

"So I have concluded dubitante to agree to the one suggested by Mr. Justice Brennan, on the understanding that all relief granted will be confined to the six protesting employees."

For the benefit of those who may have forgotten their Latin, this means that Justice Douglas concurred in order to make a majority of five, but retained grave doubts as to whether the majority opinion was really correct.

Dissenters Certain

No such doubts were expressed by the dissenters — Justices Frankfurter and Harlan, who filed one opinion, and Justice Black who wrote another. Justice Whittaker "concurred in part and dissented in part."

Echoing to some extent the view of Justice Douglas that "some forced associations are inevitable in an industrial society," Justices Frankfurter and Harlan made the strange claim that labor unions are somewhat like the government itself. The opinion said in part:

"Responsive to the actualities of our industrial society, in which unions as such play the role that they do, the law regards a union as a self-contained, legal personality exercising rights and subject to responsibilities wholly distinct from its individual members."

Justice Frankfurter went on to say that the expenditure of funds, despite the views of members, was analogous to that of the government which "expends revenue collected from individual taxpayers to propagandize ideas which many taxpayers oppose."

Not In Constitution

There's no power derived from the Constitution which could give a labor union such a quasi-governmental status. The Frankfurter - Harlan opinion, moreover, uses the analogy of virtually compulsory affiliation with an "integrated bar" association. It so happens that a state has the right to say what the qualifications of a lawyer must be before he can become a part of the process of the courts or its procedures. There is really no similarity to a labor union, because the members of a bar association perform functions supplementary to the government, while a labor union is not a part of the governmental process — at least not yet.

Justice Black, in his dissenting opinion, did not mince words. He said previous decisions of the high court "did not hold that railroad workers could be compelled by law to forego their constitutionally protected freedom of association by participating as union "members" against their will." He concluded that the "union shop" clause in the law, as applied in this case, violates the First Amendment to the Constitution. This is just what the Georgia Supreme Court had ruled.

Oddly enough, though Congress has passed a law forbidding labor unions and corporations from making contributions to political campaigns, directly or indirectly, the Supreme Court refused in this case to take note of any illegal activity of the labor unions in fostering political propaganda. Yet, in another case, the Supreme Court held this week that evidence illegally obtained by a state could not be used in state courts. One wonders when the high court will take cognizance of the illegal activity of those labor unions which participate actively in politics, but merely call it "educational."

Embezzler Gets 5 Years On Probation

MADISON (AP)— Herbert Van Abel, 44, a director of the Lime Ridge bank in Sauk County, who left his wife and seven sons and disappeared with more than $10,000 of his employer's money, has been sentenced to federal prison for five years but placed on probation for that period.

Van Abel pleaded guilty Tuesday to an embezzlement charge before U. S. District Judge Patrick T. Stone. He disappeared last August and was arrested in March of this year in Las Vegas, Nev.

U. S. Atty. George E. Rapp told the court that the exact amount of money taken by Van Abel was not known but a bonding company received a claim for more than $33,000.

Defense counsel said that Van Abel fled when he realized he could not continue embezzling indefinitely without discovery. He blamed the embezzlement on Van Abel's inability to support his family on his salary of $325 a month.

Judge Stone said he was placing Van Abel on probation out of consideration for his family.

Forger Offered Choice, Takes Longer Sentence

A man in Municipal Court Tuesday on a check forgery charge took one year at Waupun rather than six months in the Outagamie County Jail when offered a choice by the judge.

Roman Bolda, 58, Milwaukee, wandered around Appleton trying to cash a forged check Friday. He finally cashed it and received $20 at Mauthe's Beverage Mart. Then he tried to cash another at the Red Owl Store in Kaukauna and was arrested.

The $20 check was signed George Stevens and endorsed Roy Miller. It came back to the beverage mart from Appleton State Bank marked "no account." The second check, for $40, was also signed George Stevens, but this one was endorsed Jack Weber.

Kaukauna police picked Bolda up after they were notified by the Red Owl Store. He admitted passing the check at Mauthe's to Appleton police while in the county jail.

Number of Sports for Olympics Undecided

Committee Must Select 18 or 20 Events For Games at Tokyo; Talks in Last Day

ATHENS (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today went into its last day of meetings still faced with the thorny problem of deciding the sports for the 1964 summer Olympics in Tokyo.

The IOC, which has been holding its annual session here, is being asked to choose between judo, volleyball, canoeing and the modern pentathlon.

If it decides to have 20 sports on the Tokyo program, the decision will be easy. There will be room for all four. But if the IOC sticks to 18 sports, as there were at Rome last year, then two of the four disputed sports must be eliminated.

The Japanese organizers of the games want to drop canoeing and the modern pentathlon. European countries and some South American nations are fighting to retain these two sports. Most IOC members want to hold the program to 18 sports. Discussion of the question took up most of the IOC sessions Tuesday. The vote was put off until today.

The Japanese distributed the text of a speech before the IOC by Kazushige Hirasawa, of the Tokyo organizing committee, who argued that the pentathlon was too expensive to be popular in Asia and that canoeing required more leisure time than Asians could afford. Moreover, Hirasawa said, Japan lacked horses for the pentathlon.

After Hirasawa spoke, Hungary offered to give the Japanese 100 horses for use in the pentathlon.

The IOC also was expected to discuss proposed changes in the amateur rules.

The Soviet Union wants a rule that an athlete cannot be considered an amateur if his "only source of living" is sports. This apparently is aimed at athletes getting free board and lodging, if not actual pay in a straight professional manner.

West Germany has proposed that national committees or sports federations be allowed to reimburse athletes, within limits, for any wages they may lose while on leave from their jobs to train for the Olympics and to participate in the games.

Power Struggle Hinted In Nelson's Naming of Realtor Board Member Committee Feels Governor's Choice Will Weaken Unit

Post Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — A struggle for power over the state agency that regulates and polices the licensing and practice of thousands of Wisconsin realtors and salesmen was hinted at guardedly in a senate hearing Tuesday on Gov. Gaylord Nelson's nomination of a new member of the state real estate brokers board.

An executive of the Wisconsin Association of Real Estate Boards, a trade association that counts nearly half of the licensed realtors in the state as members, testified before the committee that the brokers want a "strong" board. They feel Julius Dinger, Eau Claire, retiring member, would have been a better choice for reappointment than Nelson's nominee, Harold Gilbert, Elkhorn.

Can't Measure Up

Darwin Scoon of the Association spoke carefully, emphasizing that he did not wish to oppose Gilbert.

The proposed new member "cannot begin to measure up to Julius,' Scoon said of the Eau Claire veteran. Dinger is one of the best known of the professional brokers in the state and has been chairman of the state board.

In the background of the proceedings is the worry among many brokers, it is understood, that the seating of Gilbert will bring about the election to the board chairmanship of Howard Meister, Nelson's 1959 nominee, an aggressive Democratic politician who is Democratic leader in Milwaukee County.

Persuade Refusal

Gilbert is a Democrat. The third member of the board, M. William Gerrard, LaCrosse, is a hold over appointee of the last Republican administration three years ago.

Dinger and Meister were in Madison Tuesday but did not appear in the committee room.

Although Schoon did not explicitly say so the apparent purpose of his testimony was to persuade the Republican-controlled senate committee headed by Sen. A. A. Laun of Kiel to refuse to approve Gilbert, and thus to keep Dinger in office.

Scoon said brokers had called upon Nelson many months ago to urge him to rename Dinger to another term. They were told that the governor probably could not do so. They then asked for the nomination of another representative of 'northern Wisconsin" who would be familiar with the economic characteristics of the upper half of the state. Scoon said. The board, as Nelson proposes to constitute it, would lack geographic balance.

No Plan

There was no immediate indication of the plan of the Republican senate leadership on the Gilbert nomination.

Schoon said brokers want a "strong board," and that if there is a "weak board' it will encourage the "curb stone operators who work on the edge of ethics."

Sen. Walter Hollander of Fond du Lac asked Gilbert whether he believes a farmer who wants to sell residential building lots by subdividing his farm should be required to hire a broker to represent him.

Gilbert hesitated, then said he does not believe there ought to be such a requirement. Many members of his profession would disagree, he ventured.

North Central Sets New Daily Passenger Record

North Central Airlines again set a new daily passenger traffic record for the nation's 13 local airlines, boarding 4,285 travelers over its 10-state system Friday.

"This is nearly 300 more than the previous single-day high, also set by North Central May 26 when we carried 3,929 passengers," said Frank N. Buttomer, vice president, traffic and sales.

Buttomer said Friday's boardings marked a new record for the local airline industry—the first time any local has exceeded the 4,000-per-day figure.

North Central, based in Minneapolis-St. Paul, serves 91 cities in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Indiana, and Michigan and the provinces of Ontario and Saskatchewan, Canada.

Recommend Cream Base Lotion for Dry Skins

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.C.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 33 and have a very dry skin. What ingredients should a sun tan lotion have to combat dry skin and still insure a good tan? — G.Q."

Dr. Molner

Use a sun tan preparation in a cream base rather than in lotion form. Fortunately most people with a dry skin problem find the condition alleviated during the summer.

As to anything to "insure a good tan," not the preparations nor the lotions but the sun does that! The major purpose of the various preparations is to filter the sun's rays to some extent and thus minimize the chance of burning.

And a different skin question: "I am 33, married with two children. I have had psoriasis all my life and have tried many physicians and medications, but it gets worse.

'I am a businessman calling on the public and therefore it is quite embarrassing for me. Do you know of any new medication? Are there any foods that I should not eat? — W.P."

Difficult to Treat

Psoriasis is one of the most baffling and difficult of all skin conditions to treat. One difficulty in treatment is that psoriasis sometimes varies with the seasons, and frequently improves in summer. These seasonal changes make it most difficult to judge whether some improvement is due to medication — or just because of the time of year. Or even just because! For the condition can start, and likewise can stop, for no reason we can ascertain.

I'm sorry to say that I know of no new medication that has proved itself. There's an endless stream of potions suggested for psoriasis, but none so far has proved to be the anwer.

The reason, no doubt, for the number of proposed remedies is that somebody has had success with each one. Whether it was the medication or just that the psoriasis happened at the time to decide to subside — who knows?

No Certain Remedy

All I can say is that it has been the experience of uncounted physicians to see one case clear up while another remains completely untouched by identical treatment. A friend of mine, an entertainer, is plagued with psoriasis and he has gotten along very successfully by relying on cosmetics to cover up the blemishes.

There is no reason to believe that psoriasis will be affected by anything you eat.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 15-year-old girl. What causes a rash to appear on my legs when I shave them? First I soap them, then I use a safety razor. Then I rinse them and put some lotion on. — D."

Skins vary. Some are more sensitive than others. Some men have this trouble — and it's no fun. The most likely solution is for you to use one of the good brands of depilatory cream (but you could of course be sensitive to one or more of these) or to use an electric razor.

Constipation

'Dear Dr. Molner: My son 5 has had constant constipation since birth. At present he passes bright red blood with the first section of stool, which is much too large for his size and age. He also suffers much pain. — Mrs. F. J.'

This child should be checked promptly. The tissues are probably being torn by the large stool. The cause might be a congenital rectal defect, or some disorder of the colon. In any event, measures to soften the stool can be advised by your doctor to lessen the little boy's discomfort, and other remedies if required can be decided on the basis of further study.

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, 'The Calorie Chart," write Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Minow Assails Crime, Violence Over Television

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the Federal Communications Commission said that his agency should have power to regulate networks to make television perform a more wholesome service to the community and protect youngsters against over-exposure to crime and violence on the home screen.

Newton N. Minow, FCC chairman, made the recommendation to a senate judiciary subcommittee on juvenile delinquency.

"When a broadcaster uses crime and violence and other shoddy devices to monopolize a child's attention," said Minow, "it's worse than taking candy from a baby—it is taking previous time from the process of growing up."

Before Minow testified, subcommittee Chairman Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., ordered a showing of excerpts from film clips used to advertise coming attractions on weekly action-adventure programs.

For 15 minutes, the specially erected screen in the hearing room was filled with scenes and sounds of gunplay, thudding of falling bodies, fists banging against jaws, and suggestive dialogue.

"I think this clearly indicates that the broadcasters feel that 'violence sells'," said Dodd.

Deadline for Introduction Of Sales Tax Bill Today

MADISON (AP)—If Republican legislators hope to hold a public hearing next week on their tax revision bill, the deadline for its introduction is today.

Failure to meet the self-imposed deadline would move the earliest hearing date into the first week of July.

A caucus vote Tuesday by the Assembly's 55 Republican members showed the party able to corral only 49 supporters for the measure, which is known to include a three per cent sales tax and a recommended switch to withholding of state income taxes.

Although Tuesday's vote left the Republicans two short of the 51 needed for passage, majority floor leader Robert Haase of Marinette, predicted "when the time comes we will have the votes to pass the bill in this house."

The six dissenters were Assemblymen Nile Soik of Whitefish Bay, Thomas St. Angelo of Cumberland, Vincent Zellinger of Phillips, Theodore Abrahamson of Shawano, Harvey Gee of Wisconsin Rapids and David Martin of Neenah.

Martin said today he was against withholding and a three per cent levy on sales. "I don't think more than a two per cent sales tax is warranted at this time," he said.

License Revoked 8th Time, Driver Gets Jail Term

OSHKOSH — A Milwaukee painting contractor, Richard C. Mueller, 27, was sentenced by Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane this morning to 180 days in jail and fined $115.

Mueller pleaded guilty of night time speeding and driving after his license had been revoked. The fine included $105 for driving after revocation and $10 for speeding.

State police, who arrested him at 9:35 p. m. Tuesday on U. S. 41, told the court Mueller's license had been suspended twice and revoked seven times since 1955.

Judge Cane revoked it for the eighth time this morning.

The judge provided that Mueller may serve out the 180 days in the Milwaukee County jail.

Rural-Urban Day Program Attracts 250 at Oshkosh

OSHKOSH — An estimated 250 Winnebago County civic, industrial and rural leaders took part in a rural-urban day program Tuesday, sponsored by the county farm bureau, county grange units, 4-H leaders, county holstein and guernsey breeders associations and dairy plant operators association.

Businessmen from Neenah-Menasha, Oshkosh, Winneconne and Omro toured farms in their areas in the morning and then toured the Winnebago County Hospital farm.

Jerry Shea, chairman, county hospital board of trustees, said their first consideration is for the patient who must have the free run of the 520 acre hospital farm without getting hurt.

He said the farm produces about 2,200 pounds of milk a day from 60 cows and provides food for 500 people. "We raise all our pork, most of our own beef, all of our own eggs," Shea said.

With state support, Shea added, the farm about breaks even.

County Agent Vernon Peroutky said the county hospital farm has the only meat inspection before and during slaughtering and while processing the meat on the same grounds.

NEW BVI INSECT FOGGER RIDS YOUR PATIO, PORCH, TERRACE, LAWN, GARDEN OF FLIES AND MOSQUITOES IN SECONDS!

When you pull the trigger, liquid insecticide is forced through an atomizing nozzle into the heated fog-producing chamber. The heat vaporizes the insecticide, and a stream of thick fog surges from the end of the barrel. As the fog spreads through the air and rolls over the ground, it kills insects that fly through it

IT'S PORTABLE! IT'S ELECTRIC!

Justice Fines Tipsy Driver

Bryan Wright, 64, Clintonville Pays $100 After Trial

CLINTONVILLE—Bryan Wright, 64, 71 W. 14th St., Clintonville, was found guilty of drunken driving by Justice Harold Hedtke. Wright was fined $100 and his driver's license revoked for a year.

Wright pleaded innocent to the charge after his arrest by the Clintonville police May 31. His trial was held June 14. Justice Hedtke took the case under advisement and gave his decision Tuesday.

Deaths on Area Roads Higher in First 5 Months

Highways and streets in a six-county area surrounding the Fox Cities were the scene of seven more deaths in the first five months of 1961 than in the same period last year.

There were 41 fatal traffic accidents in the counties this year and 34 last year.

The greatest increase was in Brown County, where the 1960 toll of four jumped to 11 from Jan. 1 to June 1 this year. The Outagamie County, Shawano and Winnebago tolls dropped by one.

Outagamie County had six deaths last year and only five in 1961. Shawano County dropped from seven to six. Winnebago County showed eight deaths, as against nine last year.

Other county tolls rose. Waupaca County had two more deaths, four as compared with two. Calumet County had a rise of one death, from six to seven.

Statewide the five month toll was up from 286 to 313, but the May toll was down from 72 to 66.

New Device May Stop Wire Taps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told Tuesday that the State Department has virtually perfected a device which may prevent spies from listening in on telephone conversations in U.S. embassies abroad.

William O. Boswell, director of the department's Office of Security, told about it — in general terms—at a hearing before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Boswell appeared to urge that the Senate put back into the state department appropriation bill funds cut out by the House. Included was $50,000 needed for perfecting the device.

Judge Tells Man, 72, That He's Not Too Old for New Start

MADISON (AP)—A 72-year-old federal judge placed a machinist of the same age on probation Tuesday, saying it was not too late for a fresh start despite a criminal record dating back to 1898.

Harry S. Brown of Hudson admitted to Judge Patrick Stone he should not be stealing cars because he has "a first class education and a first class trade."

"But," said Brown," everyone tells me I am 25 years too old for a job." The judge disagreed.

"You are still young enough to get off to a fresh start," he said.
